It Has Been Carefully Considered.

The communication in this issue of the Emerald written by the "younger member of the faculty," might be summed up as saying that the students have not considered the question of the Thanksgiving vacation seriously; that they are showing partisanship; that they, as individuals followed the so called "mob" and signed the petition because they did not want to be "pikers." The writer of this communication has been misinformed. The opposite is the case.

The Emerald and well known students have been commended by prominent members of the faculty for the fair-minded treatment they have given the question. The Student Council might take exception to the inference that they have not been fair minded and have lost sight of the so called "square deal," a phrase which the writer used so effectively. A careful analysis of the question was made by the Student Council before deciding to petition the faculty. The faculty should bear this in mind when making the final decision.

Here's An Unbiased Opinion.

Only a hard-hearted faculty would refuse a holiday the day following Thanksgiving day. This applies to school boards, too. Don't they remember anything?—Portland Oregonian.

An assembly speaker has been arranged for to discuss the phases of the Armament conference. Are we as students, going to say after Thursday, that we do not know anything about the conference?

Remember the slogan, "Home to Meet 'em; Back to Beat 'em," and write the letter now.

CAN THIS BE "SOUP GRAPES?"

"The thinner you spread it, the better it sticks," reads a popular advertisement. But Mr. H. A. Scott, a recent Physical Instructor at Columbia, does not heed these words of an excellent business firm. The aforementioned person when he reached his new job at the University of Oregon, gave the following interview to the college paper. "We get a higher type of man here than we do at Columbia University."

Another big difference in the two institutions is the small number of unusually fat men, as compared with the large number at Columbia and other eastern colleges. Since we do not possess the precise data concerning the difference in remuneration between that Mr. Scott received from Columbia and the amount he will collect from Oregon, it is difficult to state just how much he is justified in his remarks. At any rate we shall propose his name to the Royal Order of Handshakers, with the recommendation that he forsake the homely art of physical instruction for the lucrative field of municipal politics.

AFTER THE WASHINGTON GAME: HOW NOW?

The result of Saturday's contest confirmed the opinions of most O. A. C. folk concerning their team. It showed them that the college has the strongest team that undergraduates have seen, and that all members of the squad are living up to their program of "sixty minutes of fight." The coaches, the trainer and every player are to be congratulated upon the splendid showing made.—O. A. C. Barometer.

EDISON MARSHALL COMING

Edison Marshall, ex-16, one of the state's best and highest paid writers, who is now in Alaska getting material for his new book, is coming back to the campus for Homecoming, and will spend the week-end at the Delta Tau Delta house, of which fraternity he is a member.

TRULY SPOKEN

Student critics come in for their regular censure every year. Criticizing the critic doesn't hurt anyone, however. Better have an opinion, than be a sponge.—Daily Illini.

COMMUNICATION

To The Editor: May I submit the following which seems a fair view to take of the controversy regarding the extra Thanksgiving holiday.

First, it must be admitted that to a large number of students perhaps a majority the pleasure of the home trip is indeed considerable and genuine. It must be admitted that classes on Friday after Thanksgiving will be of little effect especially during the first year or two of the new ruling. It must be admitted that a number of parents would like to have their sons and daughters with them on Thanksgiving. However, there are some very fair and logical reasons why it is better not to have the additional holiday and the author wishes to place them before the student readers of the Emerald for fair consideration.

It is desired that the student body do not go home for the Thanksgiving holiday for several reasons. Classes on Wednesday will be poorly attended and little accomplished by those who do attend, with their minds centered, as without doubt they would naturally be, on the home trip. Lessons on the Monday following have never been of much value. Students arrive back late Sunday evening or on Monday and come to classes weary and unprepared. Many students are not in classes at all on Monday. With the abolishment of the cut system this unfortunate situation will very likely be worse than in previous years. Rather than being a question of one day it is a question of three days or more.

It is also doubtful whether any considerable number of students should make the expenditure of from ten to fifty dollars for the short stay at home. This seems especially true when one recalls that the Christmas holidays are but a month later. Many students will feel compelled to make the expenditure to keep up appearances and many others less fortunate financially will be bound to stay over, idle and embarrassed by the situation.
