

FRESHMEN WILL BATTLE RED MEN HERE SATURDAY

Half-Back Out; Hard Game With Chemawa Expected

Next Saturday the freshman gridsters will tangle with the Chemawa eleven on the home field, in the third game of the season. According to the dope the two teams will be more evenly matched than has been the case in the two previous games. Chemawa's team is neither as strong as the Washington yearling aggregation nor as weak as Mt. Angel's.

The Chemawa team played the O. A. C. varsity squad at the opening of the season, and were defeated by a score of 54-0, but in a later game with Willamette the red men managed to keep the result from becoming lopsided. The Indians have a formidable gang of battlers that will make the Oregon boys travel to gain a lead.

Coaches Baz and Brandy have been giving the men practice in running signals this week, working the line and backfield separately. No scrimmage has been participated in since the return from Seattle because several of the players appear a little the worse for wear.

Slowly but surely the yearlings are getting the much needed gridiron experience, and it will be a greatly improved team that faces the O. A. C. rooks on November 12, over the one that went up against Mt. Angel three weeks ago.

The game with the Rooks will be one of the hardest of the year, and will wind up the frosh season. They have defeated Columbia University by a 7-3 score and Albany college 39-0, giving them considerable edge on Baz's men with their one victory and one defeat. However the old fight which has characterized the frosh playing from the first is still with them, and they do not propose to let the Aggie yearlings slip anything over on them.

Lovelace, first string halfback, received a serious bruise in the eye in last Saturday's game which will put him out of the running for some time. The other members of the first squad will be able to participate in the coming game.

PORTLAND ALUMNI PLAN HOMECOMING INVASION

Meeting to be Held Saturday to Make Final Arrangements; Grads Are Confident of Victory

Mighty Oskies and "Oregon Our Alma Mater" will ring out in the Arcadian Gardens of the Multnomah hotel in Portland Saturday at noon. Oregon spirit will reign supreme, for the Portland alumni are getting together to plan their invasion during Homecoming. A rally equalling the rallies here on the campus in spirit, if not noise, will be staged.

"Home to meet 'em, Back to beat 'em" will be the slogan of the meeting, for the Portland alumni are just "champing at the bit" waiting for the 18th and 19th. In a forerunner to this meeting held Tuesday night at the University club, confidence was expressed that the team would round into form and that the old time fight would be displayed against the Aggies.

Robert Kuykendall, president of the Portland alumni of Oregon will be the yell king of the rally. He telephoned the alumni secretary here for campus representatives. So Jack Benefiel will attend and tell about plans for the Homecoming reception. Dean Boward will probably represent the faculty. The varsity quartet will also make the trip to Portland and be on hand for the meeting.

OLD OREGON IS OUT

Theta Sigma Phi Edits Magazine; Material Covers Wide Range

"It does great credit to the girls who undertook the publication of this issue" says Prof. W. F. G. Thacher, head of the advertising department in the school of journalism, of "Old Oregon," the alumni magazine which has just come off the press. Theta Sigma Phi, women's national journalistic fraternity, edited this issue and it is fully up to the standards set by the editors of previous years, according to Prof. Thacher.

"Old Oregon" keeps up its progressive typographical improvement; it is better each issue," said Mr. George Turnbull of the school of journalism. "Its material covers a wide range from the purely scholastic clear over to sports and alumni gossip. I can see how old 'grads' would read it through from cover to cover."

This issue of "Old Oregon" contains articles by Dean Colin V. Dymont, Dean Eric Allen and Carlton Spence, squibs about "alums," and stories of little journeys around the campus.

NOV. 16 TO BE JURY DAY

Work of Architecture Students Will Be Judged by Portland Men

Wednesday, November 16, will be Jury day at the architecture department of the school of architecture and the allied arts. Professor Ellis F. Lawrence, dean of the school, has asked Morris H. Whitehouse and Joseph Jacobberger, prominent architects of Portland, to act as judges of the work of the majors in the department at that time.

At the end of the day there will be a banquet for the majors in the school, the faculty, and the judges, at the Anchorage. The plans for this feature of the day are in charge of Cleo Jenkins. Jury day is an institution in the architecture department and this is the first one this term.

TRE NU HOLDS INFORMAL

Tre Nu entertained with a very informal "get acquainted" party Sunday afternoon in the Y. W. C. A. bungalow. Guests were Margaret Jackson, Mildred Brown, Vera Prudhomme, Ruby Towers, Inez King. Members of Tre Nu are girls who are partially self supporting, and who are earning part of their way through college.
