

INTERESTS OF DISABLED VETERANS INVESTIGATED

H. L. McCoy, Head of Portland Office, Visits Campus

H. L. McCoy, head of the Portland Rehabilitation office of the U. S. Federal bureau, has been on the campus during the last two days, investigating interests of the 35 disabled war veterans, who are enrolled in the University. Mr. McCoy has been looking over the cases of the men here, seeing that they are satisfied in the lines of work they are undertaking, and that they are not trying to take work which is too hard for them.

The work of Mr. McCoy has to do with getting in touch with the disabled men, finding out what line of work they prefer, and placing them in the educational institution which is best fitted to develop them along their preferred line.

Two or three such trips of inspection are planned for the present school year. Mr. McCoy was in Corvallis last week, going over the work there, and working out more efficient methods of coordination with the Portland office. The Portland man spoke of the work done by Red Cross in getting the claims of the disabled men before the government board. The men are hard to get in touch with, he said, except when they come in for compensation. Last year there were 31 disabled veterans getting training on the campus, as compared with 35 this year.

The Portland office includes rehabilitation, medical and claims departments, and is directed by Colonel C. R. Forbes of Seattle.

PSYCHOLOGY CLUB MEETS

Paper on Sub-Average Mind Read; Honorary President Attends

The Hawthorne club, a society composed of psychology instructors and students majoring in the subject and who have it as a major, listened last night to a paper read by Oscar Richards on "High Test Scores Obtained by Sub-average Minds." Richards is a sophomore majoring in zoology. The meeting was held in the men's lounging room of the Woman's building.

Professor Benjamin J. Hawthorne, honorary president of the Hawthorne club and the man for whom the club was named, was present. Professor Hawthorne was instructor in psychology in the University in 1910. He now lives at 382 Lawrence street.

Y. MAN IS DINNER GUEST

Plans Made by L. P. Putnam for Great Student Organization

L. P. Putnam, the new executive secretary of the University Y. M. C. A., was the guest of honor at an informal dinner reception at the Anchorage Thursday night, which was attended by faculty members, students, ministers of local churches, and downtown business men. Mrs. Donnelly, hut mother, also was present.

A hearty welcome was extended to Mr. Putnam in short talks by everyone present, and he was assured the support and co-operation of practically all campus organizations. In his reply the new secretary stated his appreciation of the welcome of the students, and said that he could already feel the Oregon spirit. He gave a general outline of his plans and said that he looked forward to having a great student "Y". Dean Bovard acted as chairman.

DOG DEVELOPES AVOIRDUPOIS

Professor Reddie's dog, Ming, is apparently in art of Anti-fat. A promising young art student, yesterday, in search of a real live model, hit upon the idea of modelling the pup. "He has no lines," the Professor protested, "it would only look like a lump of clay." Ming is evidently due for some violent reducing, if he hopes to attain canine perfection.

FACULTY VS. MERCHANTS AT VOLLEYBALL IS PLAN

Practice Develops Hard Fighting Spirit Among Instructors; Games Hoped to Promote Athletics

The faculty volley ball team is to meet the downtown business men in a series of games, according to a statement made by Professor H. A. Scott, of the school of physical education. No definite number of games have been decided on as yet, nor has a schedule been made out, but the first of the games will be played in about two weeks.

The faculty team has been practicing regularly during the term on Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday afternoons, and expect to give the downtown team some strong competition.

According to Professor Scott there may be two teams from each organization in the series.

The purpose of the games, says Professor Scott, is to stimulate the interest of both the faculty and the business men in athletics.

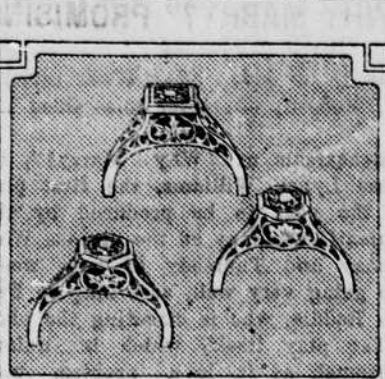

1918 GRADUATE RETURNS

Paul Scott Attracted by Courses in Accounting Department

Paul L. Scott of the class of '18 is back on the campus and is enrolled in the school of business administration. During his three years absence from the university Mr. Scott has been with Whitfield, Whitcomb and company, certified public accountants, as manager of the Spokane office of that firm. After completing his course here, Mr. Scott will again take up his work with this company.

"If all the departments in the school of business administration are as efficient as the accounting department, this certainly is one of the best schools of business administration in the west," said Mr. Scott after having enrolled in that department.

Sunday morning, 9:45. City Y.M.C.A. WE WELCOME YOU.

It was a safe bet.

Last Sunday

Two girls made a bet

That they could each eat

Six French eclairs

A la mode.

They came to The Rainbow

Because our French eclairs are

Delicious.

The girl that won the bet

Got away with four.

She couldn't eat six, they're

So rich and "filling".

Both girls are still alive,

Because our French eclairs are

Fresh and well-made.

This is a true story.
