Shirking Must Cease.

In this age of "getting by," there are a great number of students on the campus who take what the Emerald believes to be unfair advantage of conditions. The many ways in which this comes to light are open for criticism this week. There are two campaigns of merit now being vigorously conducted on the campus, and both of these are being met with an indifferent attitude by the students.

The freshmen are building their bonfire, the loyal members of the class are working night and day to make this bonfire a success. The indifferent ones are taking a roundabout route to the campus in order to escape doing their share of this work. From all appearances a conscription of the green cappers may be necessary before the bonfire is completed. Should this occur it must surely be a disgrace which few members of the 1925 class would like to look back upon during their four years at Oregon.

But the freshmen are not the only ones to be blamed for indifference and the criticism does not all fall on the male students. One of the famous traditions of Oregon's annual Homecoming is the campus luncheon, served before the Big Game every year. The success of this luncheon lies, not with any one class, but with the entire student enrollment.

The committee in charge of the luncheon has assessed each member of the A. S. U. O. with his quota for the Homecoming luncheon. The luncheon is a part of the Homecoming entertainment, and the alumni are the guests. Oregon must not abolish this tradition—the big gathering where old grad meets the undergraduate, and where the old Oregon Spirit of the nineteenth century rubs elbows with the new Oregon Spirit of the twentieth century.

The luncheon must be a success and its success depends upon the alacrity with which the students respond. The problem in the housing organizations has been taken care of; the executive heads of the organizations have arranged for their quota to be paid. The appeal now is to the students not living in the various organizations.

The success or failure of the Homecoming luncheon is up to a limited A. S. U. O. It must not fail.

Oregon rooters, Oregon yell kings, Oregon football players and Oregon coaches will all work together on Hayward Field this afternoon.

Approaching winter and colder water should mean fewer causes for the application of the "freshman persuader."

Assembly today. Remember, we started right.

TWO UNIVERSITY BOXERS TO PARTICIPATE IN BOUTS

Local Elks to Put on Charity Smoker Tonight

Two University of Oregon boxers, Charlie Dawson and Pete Jensen, will participate in the Charity Boxing show to be staged by the local Elks lodge at the new armory tonight. Dawson who is a clever boy with his mits, and incidentally varsity boxing coach will take on Freddie Anderson of Vancouver, Washington, in the main event of ten rounds.

Pete Jensen is matched against Carl Miller of Eugene in the main preliminary which is scheduled as a six round bout. In addition to these bouts there will be two four round contests the first between Belden Babb of the Eugene high and "Cap" Kuhn of Eugene, the second between Guy Berry of The Dalles and Frank Gheo of San Diego, to round out the boxing program.

In the way of wrestling there will be two bouts, arranged by E. A. Britton, physical director of the Eugene Y. M. C. A., Howard and Alpine appearing in the first event and Strome and Johnson in the second. All the matches both boxing and wrestling will be refereed by Bill Hayward, varsity trainer.

CO-OP FOR COLORADO

The University of Colorado will establish a co-operative store on the campus next January.

C. OF C. SECRETARIES MEET

Dean Robbins Addresses Gathering in Portland Saturday

In order to represent the school of business administration at the semi-annual meeting of chamber of commerce secretaries of the state, Dean Robbins went to Portland Saturday and spoke on the short course offered during the Easter vacation last year for secretaries. The course will be repeated this spring. Carl Myers, president of the campus chamber, accompanied Dean Robbins, and made a talk on what the organization is doing at the University.

The work of the chamber of commerce on the University campus is rapidly assuming an important place, and is attracting general attention. Through the short course which will probably be offered each spring during the Easter vacation, the secretaries of the state will receive valuable training in their work, and will be brought to follow a general plan, which will be uniform throughout the state.

"THE FLAPPER"

I play at Life by the latest rules
 But I'm only a bluff at the game;
 For I have 'nt the nerve to see it through
 And my ways are all too tame.
 I fling my hair in a sexless cut
 And effect an elusive smile,
 With my face "blase" and my mind
 rigged out
 In an ultra-Bohemian style.
 I like to think I am done with life,
 That it's all "old stuff" to me,
 But yet I thrill at the mystic stars
 And ache with the surge of the sea.
 I boil God down to a nebular mass
 And love to a chemical form;
 I "psycho" Genuis "a la Freud"
 And I find it off the "norm."
 I set about to "vamp" the men
 In a most cold-blooded way,
 But "the milk of human kindness" up
 And spoils my winning play.
 I play at Life by the latest rules
 As any maiden should;
 For out of the bluff of a foolish game
 Comes the stronger Womanhood.
