

FROSH HAVE BIG GAME OF YEAR ON SATURDAY

All Men in Good Condition Except Quarterback

TEAMS RATE ABOUT EVEN

Yearlings Being Put Through Hard Practice Week

Next Saturday at Corvallis the grid-sters meet in battle their greatest football rivals, the O. A. C. Rooks. The final week of practice is going on with a zip that shows clearly the yearlings know what they are up against, and what they intend to do against Coach Hubbard's aggregation.

With the exception of Smith, quarter, the frosh seem to be in first-class condition. Smith whose leg was hurt in the Chemawa game last Saturday still walks with a limp, and has been unable to take part in the regular scrimmage, but it is hoped that he will be able to go in against the rooks this week-end as he is a valuable man to the team.

Oregon Coaches Doubtful

Conches Williams and Brandenburg are dubious on the outcome of the contest, as the rooks have one of the strongest teams in years. Until last Saturday the dope favored the O. A. C. first year men, but it was upset somewhat when they defeated Mt. Angel by a 35-0 score as against the frosh victory of 53-7 over them. However the dope seems to be shying clear of regularity this year, and the outcome of the game will be better known after it is over.

Coach Hubbard has been looking forward all season to this game with the frosh, and has been concentrating his energy toward a victory. Some of his best bets were unable to go in against the Mt. Angel team, which may account somewhat for the size of the score, but all his men are primed for Saturday's contest.

Improved Over Chemawa Form

The frosh coaches have been limbering up this week by means of line scrimmage, signal running, and individual instruction in both the line and backfield. On the whole the frosh will be in much better shape than when they tangled with Chemawa, due to the fact that then they had not fully recovered from the hammerings received in Seattle the week previous.

Another incident of how he got an interesting interview with an old negro lady, who, he found, had been given away as a wedding present before the war; then another story and another until the hour had passed. "I intended to talk for only half an hour," he explained, "but I'm so used to being talked to that when I get a chance to do the talking I can't quit." Some time ago he had a few minutes between trains at Seattle. He saw a man with a long white beard going into a restaurant. Learning that the man was Ezra Meeker, the famous pioneer of the Northwest, he approached him. "About 50 years ago," said the pioneer, "my girl and I wanted to go a distance of about 50 miles, but we didn't want to take the risk of travelling on the trains so we used the old ox team." Questions brought out the fact that Mr. Meeker had recently made an airplane trip from Walla Walla to Spokane to keep a speaking engagement. Another good story.

After Lockley had finished his talk, he visited with George Melvin Miller, brother of Joaquin Miller, who lives in Eugene. On his way down the street he met an old man whom he stopped. It was Mr. Luckey, who came here in 1851. "I got a story from him and ideas for several more," he explained.

Mr. Lockley has a hobby. It is the collection of old or rare books. In his travels he is always looking out for more. While in Eugene he will visit the collection of Oregon books in the library.

OREGON TEAM IMPROVES SAYS O. A. C. GRID COACH

Aggies Have Chance With W. S. C. Declares Rutherford

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Nov. 8.—"We have a fighting chance to win the Washington State game," says "Dick" Rutherford, coach of the Aggie varsity, "and if W. S. C. wins, it won't be because O. A. C. hasn't the fight. "We know our men can play football for we saw it in the game with the University of Washington. The men are all going into it with a wonderful spirit of determination to win."

After laying off for two days, the orange and black warriors are having secret practice to fit themselves for the big contest with W. S. C. Armistice day. Very few changes will be made in the lineup though right end will probably undergo a shift. Richert, Clarke, Loughery, and Tousey are some of the men who have worked out for this position during the week, and "Dick" Richert looks as if he ought to find a berth. Tousey will probably relieve Captain Powell at fullback, at least for part of the game.

Varnell, Hinderman, and Doudit are to be the officials for the contest.

Coach Rutherford, who witnessed the W. S. C.-Oregon game last Saturday, could not say enough for the Lemon-Yellow.

"The University of Oregon has improved 1000 per cent," he says. "They played wonderful football because they are coming strong. Washington State was not quite as good as against the Bears, but at that the Cougars have an excellent machine, very aggressive. Jenne is great. The team is good at passing and line bucking."

Y. W. TO ELECT PRESIDENT

Three Names to be Voted on; H. L. Bowman to Speak

At cabinet meeting of the Y. W. C. A. held last night in the bungalow, two more names were added to the nominees for president of the association.

The nominees are: Lelaine West, Grace Tigard, and Jessie Todd. The regular meeting will be held this afternoon at 4:45 in the bungalow, when the president will be elected. Rev. H. L. Bowman, of the First Presbyterian church of Portland, will speak and Florence Garret, a University student, will sing.

Where Youth Is

the Hamilton Piano has a place.

Whether you own a piano or have any idea of buying one, we want you, for your own enjoyment of it, to hear the Hamilton. There is a quality of the tone of this piano found in the kind of music that lives—warm, deep and sweet, and it is a tone that sings.

It's the great thing, this human interest, in the tone of a home piano particularly and one that, except in the costlier makes, is met with as rarely as songs like "Annie Laurie." And when you know that the Hamilton piano is a favorite all over the world, because of its resistance to climatic changes, you can understand what a splendidly constructed instrument it is.
