Not Too Fast.

Of course it is hard to curb the wave of spirit and enthusiasm which is sweeping over the campus. Naturally there is optimism, and why shouldn't there be? Students who know that Oregon's football team outplayed Washington State at Pullman, November 5, and who know that that same Washington State smashed through the Aggies Saturday at Corvallis, almost at will are bound to be optimistic. But we are going just a little too fast.

There is no use in underestimating the strength of the Aggies this year. They have strength; they demonstrated that against Washington, when they beat the Sundodgers 24 to 0. It is true that the Aggies have lost both games since that time, but the dope has been upset too many times this year on the Pacific Coast for that to be a criterion of the coming struggle.

The Aggies would give their eye teeth to have the privilege of beating Oregon just once. They have chance to do it. Oregon went into annual battle last year with all the dope pointing to a victory, because Oregon had walloped Washington 17 to 0 and O. A. C. had beat the Northerners, 3 to 0. The final score of that game was 0 to 0. The Aggies called it a "moral victory."

Saturday's game will be a battle. Both teams are on edge. Oregon's football players have no overconfidence. They are going to display that same old Oregon Fight Saturday. The O. A. C. football team knows it, the Aggies rooters know it and the Oregon rooters know it.

Students must not be over-confident about that game. It will be a battle.

The final touches for Oregon's greatest Homecoming are being added here and there. Too much credit cannot be given the untiring efforts of the committee making the arrangements.

The Red Cross asks your support if you feel that the organization merits it. The Emerald believes that it does merit support.

Oregon will be the host this week-end. Bear that in mind.

DEBATE SUBJECT DECIDED

HIGH SCHOOLS OF STATE WILL TRY FOR LOVING CUP

Question Involves System of Graduate Income Tax for Oregon; State Divided into Districts

The question upon which the high schools belonging to the Oregon High School Debate league will debate for the championship this year, according to the bulletin just published by the extension division, is: Resolved, that a graduated income tax should be made a feature of the state system of taxation in Oregon. Copies of the bulletin will be sent to all the high schools of the state enrolled in the league.

The debate league, of which A. C. Strange, superintendent of schools in Astoria, is president and Dan E. Clark, director of the extension division, is secretary-treasurer, has divided the state into districts. Each district has a special subject for debate, and the winners of district debate for district championships will contest at the University next Junior week-end for the state championship. Salem high school was winner last year.

The bulletin published by the extension division contains all the information needed by the high schools entering the contest. It explains how to obtain necessary books from the state library in Salem, lists the district officers, and gives the constitution of the league.

High schools of the state are enrolling now. The last date for entering the league is December 1. District contests will end March 10, and the district directors will report the district champions to the secretary, Dr. Clark. The champion high school of the Junior week-end contest will be awarded the DeCou cup, given by Professor E. E. DeCou this year. It will be presented annually to the state champions, and will become the permanent property of the school winning it three times. The University of Oregon cup, given under the same conditions by the Laurean and Eutaxian societies and by Professor DeCou in

SHU HSING KU MISSING

Goefrey Chu Chin, Chinese Student From Chicago Seeks Girl Friend

"Shu Hsing Ku." "Koo. K-u-u, Koo," spelled Miss Etta Burnett into the telephone not in an effort to transmit any of Prof. Howe's literature course but to find a former University of Oregon girl by that name at the request of Goefrey Chu Chen, dapper, well dressed Chinese student in the University of Chicago, who hastened to Eugene to assist Miss Ku from whom he had received a letter stating that she was in need of help.

As yet Mr. Chen has not located his friend although she has received mail in Eugene since March 15 last and was enrolled at the University in the fall term of 1918. She has a mother living on Alder street who told Mr. Chen that his sister had returned to Chicago. Mary Wo Chang who runs the Chinese noodle shop on 6th street informed him that Miss Ku had gone to Seattle.

Mr. Chen states that his studies at Chicago must be neglected until he finds his friend. He came to Eugene last Wednesday, registering at the Osburn hotel, and is still here.

Varsity Taken Into Camp BY O. A. C. SOCCER TEAM

Playing of Hammid Features; Vester Oregon Star

After holding the Aggie booters to a scoreless tie during the first half of the soccer contest staged at O. A. C. last Friday morning the varsity players went "haywire" in the final rough canto. When the referee's whistle signalled the end of the fray the count stood 4-0 in favor of the skilled collegians. Hamid, a dusky player from India, was the direct cause of this reversal.

The varsity lads played a defensive game throughout the match, making few dangerous shots at the O. A. C. goal. New stiff-soled soccer shoes worked to a disadvantage on the slick turf. The defensive work of Ingles, Staton, and Jacobs was a feature of the first half, but during the last half these hard-booting backs appeared to tire and the Aggie forwards brought the ball to the scoring zone with little difficulty. Hamid, tall, light, and tricky, was ever a menace to Gowans under the Oregon bars. Twice this lithe foreigner shot the pill under the bars with deliberate ease. One of the Aggie scores was made on a free penalty kick directly in front of Oregon's goal.

Cliff Vester, although handicapped by his broken arches, was easily the star among the varsity players. His swift runs with the ball down the right wing and fierce rushes was a feature of the match.

Spectators completely surrounded the field, and seemed to take especial delight in the frequent falls taken by the players.
