

Varsity Swings Into Last Week of Practice

Team in Best of Condition but Not Over-Confident

DOPE POINTS REAL BATTLE

Two Complete Set of Backs Tuned up by "Shy"

With a strenuous practice session last night the varsity swung into the last lap of the two weeks training that will at its crest bear them into the fray against the Aggies Saturday. The team is in excellent condition, the best condition that has been evinced all season, and the boys are confident, yet without that trace of overconfidence that leads toward defeat. They are confident, all of them, that they will give the Aggies a real battle, with an even chance to win.

Small Margin Seen

And an even chance to win is all that can be conceded, for although the Lemon-Yellow tied the Cougars 7-7 who in turn trimmed the Aggies 7-3 in their own balliwick even the most confirmed statistician would have to admit that 4 points is a small margin on which to dope a winner especially a winner of the Oregon-Aggie contest. With the lowering of the Aggie stock by virtue of the two defeats handed out by Stanford and the Cougars and the rejuvenation of a supposedly weak Oregon as evinced by the great game played against the Cougars, the two teams would seem to be evenly matched and it will be "Oregon Fight" pitted against the "Fighting Aggies."

Two Sets of Backs

Huntington is putting the finishing touches on two complete sets of backs. The combination of Latham at full, King and Johnson at the halves and Chapman at quarter has the call over the Jordan, Gram, DeArmand, Reinhart set and will probably start against the farmers. Billy Reinhart is again going strong after weeks of absence from the lineup and will likely be used part of the time as pilot. Gram and DeArmand two speedy men at half, are also practically certain of breaking into the game Saturday even if they do not start.

Lea Jordan is being developed to work as Latham's understudy at full back for with King a fixture at half and "Tiny" Shields going a million at guard big "Hunk" Latham is the only fullback on "Shy's" string, although King could be shifted to his old position should it be necessary. Jordan looks good in his new position and is going good after a long layoff with an injured knee.

Mutch Thrills Audience

choice of opera songs. He sang the "Eri Tu che Macchiavi," aria admirably. This is one of the songs that occur in "A Masked Ball," the opera in which Mr. Mutch and Mme McGrew are to appear on next Friday and Saturday in Portland. As encore, he sang Tonio's Prologue to "I Paglicci," bringing to it a ripe understanding and interpretation. It has probably never before been as well sung on the campus.

The fourth group contained a Burleighized Swedish folk song, a typical Irish ballad, Burleigh's, "Oh Didn't it Rain," always a favorite, and Lily Strickland's, "Lindy Lou." Recently this song received some criticism on the campus due to the manner in which it was sung by a visiting artist. Mr. Mutch coached with Lily Strickland, at one time, and on Saturday night the song was sung with her communicated musicianship and interpretation. It was very well received. Sober judgement of the song, however, would be to the effect that it is hardly worth "russing over."

A word should be added concerning Mr. Evans' excellent accompaniments. No one, on Saturday evening, could question the value to a singer of such sympathetic and understanding support.

Mr. Mutch demonstrated that to gain approval it is not necessary to sing trash. The present-day English ballad type was practically crowded out by the inclusion of many genuinely expressive and satisfying songs. And that the audience approved cannot be denied. A source of distraction was the singer's too great reliance on his book of words. The unity of the song was often marred by this dependence. The opera selections, in happy contrast, were memorized both as to music and words and in them Mr. Mutch displayed his fullest powers and best artistry.

Campus Clean-up Aid Solicited of Students

Receptacles Must be Used For Waste Materials; Old Bulletin Boards Removed and Walks Built

"Co-operation on the part of the students will be necessary to enable us to have the campus neat and tidy for the old grads when they come back," says James Say, chairman of the campus committee. He asks the students not to throw papers or trash of any kind around the campus but to get the habit of throwing such things in the waste baskets furnished for such a purpose. The sidewalks and parkings around the Co-op present a very bad aspect with their crop of gum and candy wrappers.

The campus committee with the aid of W. K. Newell, superintendent of properties is carrying out an extensive program to beautify the campus for Homecoming. The old bulletin boards in front of the library and Deady hall have been removed and board walks have been built between the Oregon and Commerce buildings and from Oregon toward Deady hall. The freshmen are utilizing all the old lumber for their bonfire that has been piled around the grandstand on Kincaid field.

NOV. 18 NOT TO BE HOLIDAY

Contrary to current opinion on the campus, the Friday of Homecoming week-end will not be a holiday, according to Karl W. Onthank, secretary to the president, who states that classes will be held as usual. Saturday morning classes will probably be dismissed, however, it is announced.
