

AGGIES TAKE 1ST AND 2ND IN CROSS-COUNTRY

Koeppe, for Oregon, Comes Third in Annual Contest

By Wad Shirley

The Oregon-O. A. C. cross-country race preliminary to the big game resulted in a 35-20 victory for O. A. C. Time 16:20. Graves and Walker took first and second respectively for the winners, with Koeppe of Oregon taking third.

At 1:45 the runners flashed forth leaving Hayward field. Dodged, O. A. C. was leading with Koeppe of Oregon close behind. The runners kept fairly close together for more than a mile, Dodge and Koeppe keeping in the lead. After this the O. A. C. winner began to forge ahead and the whole gang began to string out. When they again came in sight of the stands roars of encouragement went up from the spectators. Two O. A. C. men had too much lead to be overcome. The first three men finished strong, the rest coming in on their nerve.

From first to last the competition for places was keen. The runners were all in the best of condition, 2:40. The course was over a water soaked country and it continued to rain throughout the run, preventing the participants from getting warmed up for a long time.

DAYS OF '49 RECALLED AT CONDON CLUB'S MEETING

Address Made by Claire Holdredge on Summer Activities of Geology Department Near Medford

The wildest revelries of the "hard boiled" forty-niners were recalled by the members of the Condon club plus their guests in a social meeting held in Johnson hall.

"Booze," in the form of cider, flowed freely over the bar, provided for the occasion, and enough gold dust changed hands, via the poker route, to make Jay Dee's millions fade.

"Pards" for the evening were chosen by matching cards upon which was written some fraction of some geologic term. The man holding the card upon which were written the words necessary for the completion of the term began on the card was the man you were to stick to no matter how hard the trail might be.

All of this followed a program meeting at which Claire Holdredge, graduate student of the geology department, gave an address the summer work of the department especially in the vicinity of Medford. Invitations to the meeting were sent to four chemistry majors and to seven members of the engineering society and according to Delmer Powers, vice-president of the club the entire meeting was primarily a move toward the coordination of all students interested in science.

PROFESSOR DUNN TO STAR

"The Mouse Trap," by Howells, Given by Eastern Star Nov. 18

What admiring student would ever guess, as he listened to a lecture on Latin literature delivered by Prof. Frederick S. Dunn, of the Latin department, that he was gazing upon a theatrical star?

This is another case when "things are not what they seem," for Professor Dunn appeared before Eugene footlights on Friday. He took the lead in "The Mouse Trap," by William Dea Howells, which was put on under the auspices of the Eastern Star here. Playing opposite Professor Dunn was Miss Nellie Lombard, a University of Oregon graduate now instructor in the Eugene high school.

FACULTY MEMBER JOINT AUTHOR OF TEXT BOOK

C. D. Thorpe of U. of O. and F. C. Lockwood of Arizona, Write Book on Public Speaking

Clarence DeWitt Thorpe, head of the department of public speaking of the University of Oregon, and Francis Cummings Lockwood, director of the extension division of the University of Arizona, are the authors of a new book called "Outline Speaking Today."

The text is intended especially for high school students and emphasizes the present day trend in public speaking. In the preface the authors state their purpose to teach the student "to speak in plain, strong, earnest, everyday conversation, carefully considered and forceful." An abundance of practical exercises in parliamentary procedure, play reading and all other forms of public speaking will give the student the practice which is necessary to become an effective public speaker. "Mr. Lockwood and I are both cranks on the necessity of material in argumentation," said Mr. Thorpe, "and we have emphasized that need in our chapters on debate."

The authors presented their manuscript to the publishers, Benj. H. Sanborn & Co. in December 1920 but at that time publishers were troubled with the high cost of materials and Mr. Thorpe and Mr. Lockwood were told that it would be 1923 before the book could be published. However, there was such a need for a desirable text on public speaking that the publishers set to work as soon as possible. The book has been on the market about a month and the publishers declare it to be the first high school text to cover the entire field of public speaking.

PRUETT ADDRESSES CLUB

Brownian Movements are Discussed at Science Gathering

"The Brownian movements, and experiments illustrating them," was the subject of Dr. J. H. Pruett's address before the science club recently. These movements are so-called after the botanist Brown.

In an experiment in 1827 Brown discovered that certain little particles, which he proved to be non-living, dance about under the microscope for no reason which he could then find. In 1890 the cause was definitely decided upon. Perrin, a French scientist, proved that the motion of the small particles was due to the bombardment of those particles by molecules.

A Declaration of Principles

I, JOE SHEAHAN, and I, PEEWEE EDWARDS, do hereby say that we, one and both of us, are resolved to give the students of the University of Oregon the very best restaurant and cafe service that it is possible to provide. We are resolved to establish and maintain a new standard of cookery and service. The very best food stuffs obtainable, cooked by experts, served swiftly and neatly—and cleanliness, first last and all the time—that much we insist upon. We may be new at the game; but we know what college people want, and we have the facilities to provide it. Our Thanksgiving dinner will be a demonstration of our ability to live up to our principles. Try it.
