

"THE WEDDING GUEST" TO BE PRODUCED SOON

Dramatic Department to Stage Play
January 25 and 26

A wedding, for all the world resembling a real wedding, with bride and groom, bridesmaids, a best man, flower girls, a minister, and a room full of guests, will be seen soon after the raising of the curtain in "The Wedding Guest," one of the most interesting Barrie plays which will be produced on the campus January 25 and 26.

The plot of the play is not unusually new, but it is handled in an extremely clever manner. The tenseness which is carried throughout the play is relieved by extremely clever comedy. The majority of the characters are Scotch and, as the play is supposed to take place in Scotland, particularly good opportunity is furnished for dialect work.

The story tells of a young girl who has been kept unusually innocent, either because of her father's because of his laziness. She marries a worldly artist and only a few days after her wedding all of her ideals are shattered by the man whom she trusted. The extraordinary character of the girl, Margaret, is shown in the way in which she meets the new situation.

The story of Margaret is sad enough; but it is Kate Ommaney, the girl who loved the artist, Paul Digby, before his wedding who has the hardest problem to meet and she proves to be a woman of extremely good character in spite of the fact that conventional society does not accept her.

Margaret is played by Lorna Coolidge whose interesting work has already been seen this year on the campus. The role of Kate Ommaney is played by Hildagarde Repenin, who will be seen in a leading part on the Guild hall stage for the first time. Margaret's father who is known as the easy-going Fairbairn will be played by Claire Keeney, whose work has caused a great deal of interest for the past three years. Arthur Johnson will play the part of Paul Digby, the artist. The other members of the cast are: Captain Armitage, the best man at the wedding; Delbert Faust; Rev. Mr. Gibson, Virgil Mulkey; Meikle, the butler, John Ellestad; Blanch Ripley, the bridesmaid, Mabel Gilham; Lady Jannet Dunwoodie, Margaret Nelson; and Jenny Geddes, Doris Pittenger.

STANFORD PROTECTS GAME
Stanford University, Stanford, Cal. Jan 11.—Plans for creating a game preserve out of the 8000 acres comprising the Stanford farm have been submitted to the President by the Zoology club. The petition asks that the campus be declared a wild animal refuge and steps be taken to give full protection to wild life, through posting of signs, patrolling, and planting of shelters; and that the campus, with the exception of the university community proper and the arboretum, be converted into a state game refuge.

KLAMATH GRADS LIVELY

John Houston, '21, Prominent Among Organizers, All College Folk Included

A University club, the membership of which is open to all former students and graduates of any college or university, has recently been organized at Klamath Falls, according to Nish Chapman, Oregon '21, who returned to Eugene recently from a business trip to southern Oregon. John Houston, who graduated last year from the University, has done a great deal toward getting the club organized.

Although the organization will partake of a more or less social nature, it will also work for the promotion of higher education. Several social affairs have already been held at the White Pelican hotel at Klamath Falls, a basket ball team has been organized, and interest in the club is at high pitch. It is the purpose of the University club to promote a friendly college spirit among college people, and to keep alive their interest in scholastic affairs.

WILLAMETTE GIRL WINNER

Student at Salem Captures National Short-Story Prize

Willamette University, Salem, Jan. 12.—(P. I. N. S.)—Miss Marguerite Gutschow, Willamette graduate last June, was winner of the short story contest given by the Epworth Herald last May for all college undergraduates in the United States. She was a member of the short story class in 1921 and wrote the prize-winning story as a class assignment. The new college anthology, just published, contains her poem, "I Am Rich Today."

Miss Odell Savage, who sold her first play to the Walter Publishing Company last March, was a member of the same short-story class.
