HEADS OF HOUSES TO BE HEARD ON JUNIOR WEEK-END

Student President Will Hold Conference

Based on Interpretation of Campus Sentiment

Action on the proposed changes in the method of conducting Junior Weekend will probably be taken this afternoon at a meeting of the heads of the houses and the special investigating committee which was appointed, according to Lyle Bartholomew and several members of the committee.

The plans of the junior class for the spring festivities have been held up by eager that some definite policy be adopted in order that work can start immediately.

At the meeting of the investigating committee and the heads of houses which was held last week it was decided that no action would be taken until the sentiment of the students themselves should be sounded out. It was decided to postpone the matter until this kind of opinion could be obtained through the meetings of the various groups which are usually held on Monday evenings. The proposals were brought up at the meetings of the various organizations last night, and the meeting this afternoon may close the mat- Willett will speak on an educational

On investigation it was Any Changes Made Will be found that two Hendricks hall frosh were taking a dip in the race. Of course, it was a bet; for two sane people even though they were frosh would not go swimming in the millrace on the 29th of January with two inches of snow on the ground, for fun.

"It was great," one of them was heard to exclaim as she climbed out after the last dive, "I'd do it again tomorrow." But it was noticed that the peace and quiet of the millrace was not disturbed yesterday by feminine swimmers. Perhaps the fact that the weather was a little warmer scared them out.

epidemie is over, according to information given out yesterday by the Univershown here February 15, according to W. K. Newell, who is in charge of sity Health Service. This rule covers the arrangement of the display. Since no all house formals and informals, as well as student body affairs, and many fraternities and sororities which have scheduled their annual dances for the next week-ends are wondering whether they can give them.

Dr. John F. Bevard, director of the Health Service urges all students to cooperate in putting down this siege of eolds and grip, which has been a menacing factor on the campus during the past two weeks. Few students are sick for a longer period than a few days, but new cases appear as soon as those who are on the sick list begin to improve. Conditions as a whole are improving, however, and if the students and houses will be careful for the next few days, it is hoped that the epidemic will be brought under complete
