

ROCKHEY HIGH POINT MAN IN PENTATHLON FINALS

Names of 20 Men to Appear on Plaque in Gymnasium

The final physical ability pentathlon tests for the year were run off Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week with the result that about 20 men successfully passed. Rolland Andre, who took the test for the first time, succeeded in running up a score of 113 which gives him a place on the junior class plate on the plaque which is to be put up in the office of the physical education school.

Most of the other scores made in the final tests were around 50 or 60 and did not come close to breaking any previous records. The seniors who will have their names on the plaque have been picked from the results of the old tests since none of them evinced enough interest to come out and try to make a place in the last trials. The men picked are Floyd Bowles, Ace Eggleston, M. Fraley, Art Kuhnhausen, and Kenneth Smith.

Haddon Rockhey still retains possession of high place, and will have his name on the plaque as individual high point winner. Ralph Spearow succeeded in running up 136 points without the swim, but cannot be entered on account of not taking the swim and completing the tests.

The plans for next year's pentathlon tests are that the doughnut tests will all be scheduled for one evening, and a five-man team from each organization will compete at that time. The plan is to make this evening an event such as a boxing match or a basketball game, and to have rooters out for the different teams and men. This will help out greatly, the men in charge of the tests say, for this year they were stretched over a term of weeks and were hard to work out after they were completed.

The final results of the tests and the men who will have their names on the plaque are: High point man, Haddon Rockhey. Seniors, Floyd Bowles, Ace Eggleston, M. Fraley, Art Kuhnhausen, and Kenneth Smith; juniors, Albert Krohn, Rolland Andre, Austin Hazard, Clayton Ingle, and Lawrence Kays; sophomores, Lyle Palmer, Verden Hockett, Ben Virden, Howard Young, and Philip Ringle; freshmen, Sterling Beed, Don Woodward, Dwight French, Carl Beed, and Harry Meyer.

LABORATORY FEES ARE DUE

April 30 Is Last Day; Additional Dollar Charged May 1 and 2

Laboratory fees are due on or before April 30 and, according to L. H. Johnson, comptroller of the University, the students are showing the usual amount of indifference towards paying the fees before the time limit expires.

After April 30, a two-day period of grace is allowed, during which fees may be paid, but an additional dollar is charged for the privilege. After May 2, students who have failed to pay the fees become automatically suspended from the University and must petition the executive council if they wish to be reinstated.

PAPER MANUFACTURING DESCRIBED BY SPEAKER

Fred Miller of Blake McFall Company Tells Mill Methods in Talk to Students in Advertising

The manufacture of paper, from the time raw material is brought to the mills until the finished product is put upon the market, was described to a group of students in advertising yesterday morning by Fred Miller, the local representative of the Blake McFall Paper company.

Mr. Miller distributed samples of the most common kinds of paper and described the particular points in the manufacture of each kind. He gave the uses and the things which should be considered in buying stock for specific purpose. In brief he told of the entire process and illustrated by means of a chart the different finishing methods.

It is impractical to ship fine book papers by water from the East to the coast, according to Mr. Miller. He explained that the dampness of the air in the southern waters would ruin most coated book papers.

Modern improvements are coming as quickly in paper manufacture as in any other industry, he said. The chemical formulas must be exactly right and it is necessary to know just exactly the quality of the water in order to insure a uniform grade of paper. He exhibited a machine to test the strength per square inch of the paper and an improved set of scales.

The talk was arranged for the students by Professor W. F. G. Thacher, who has charge of the advertising classes.

CLUB TEAMS WILL MEET

Washington and California Students to Hold Baseball Series

Plans are being made for a series of indoor baseball games to be played by the California and Washington clubs during Junior Week-end. The challenge was issued by the Californians through Emil A. Ghio and Jack Myers, who will deal with the Washingtonians in making arrangements for the contest.

The idea of having the contest came about during spring vacation, when it was discovered, one day when the club was having a hike, that there were several devotees of this sport among those present.

It is rumored that the feminine members of both clubs will act as bat and water carriers and that if the Washington club fails to produce an entire male team, a mixed team will result.

The California lineup is as follows: Jack Myers, c; Emil A. Ghio, p; Chauncey Lawton, 1st b; Frenchy Du Paul, 2nd b; Don Parks, 3rd b; Stirling Bead, ss; Carl Bead, 1 f; Walter Atkins, c f; Ralph Crandall, r f.

As a matter of fact, the judges found the advertisement of Kenneth Youel the third best in the Stetson contest; but the copy was so worded that it could not be used except as the winner of the first prize. So we are running today the advertisement of Leo P. Munly, which was given the next place. Remember: Copy for the Vassar underwear advertisement must be handed to Professor Thacher by noon today. Open to every male student.
