

MRS. H. B. TORREY HELPS POT AND QUILL MAGAZINE

Girls Declare that No Attempt to Get "Highbrow" Wanted

Plans for the magazine which will be published by Pot and Quill, the campus writers' society for women, are being made. At a recent meeting, Mrs. Harry Beal Torrey of Portland was present and helped the girls work out their plans. Mrs. Torrey has always been an interested member of Pot and Quill and as a professional writer has been of great help and encouragement to the student members.

No editorial staff has been chosen, because the organization is small enough for manuscripts to be criticized in a round-table discussion by all the members. The magazine will contain several rather brief short stories, and some essays and verse. The name "Pot and Quill" will not be used for the magazine because the members feel that, although this issue is entirely in their own hands, the name would not suit if later on the magazine should become the organ of the campus in general. Members hope that the publication will prove of interest to campus readers, for there is going to be no attempt to make it "highbrow" or even near "highbrow." The material included will be only the sort found in the usual college magazine.

This will be the first publication issued by Pot and Quill. The members are all interested in writing, however, and a number of them have had work printed in various periodicals. All Pot and Quill members are encouraged to make a study of markets and to make a real business of the attempt to sell manuscripts.

Most of the students belonging to Pot and Quill have taken or are now taking University courses in short story writing, play-writing and other forms of expression. Thorough criticism by members is one of the chief things done by the organization.

Officers for the coming year were elected as follows: President, Marion Crary; vice-president, Emily Veazie; secretary, Margaret Carter; and treasurer, Margaret Skavlan.

GOLF INTEREST GAINING AMONG STUDENT PLAYERS

Establishment of Holes Near Campus Is Proposed; Department of Physical Education May Furnish Clubs

Student golfers who are now watching sadly the decline of their golf stroke due to the lack of clubs with which to keep in practice, will be interested to hear of the offer made by Dr. John Bovard, dean of the school of physical education, to furnish students with golf sticks. If a large enough number of students are interested in the sport to make it worth while for the department of physical education to supply itself with the clubs, Dean Bovard would like to hear from them, and immediate steps will be taken to get the required supplies.

"Golf is a great game," said Dean Bovard, "and I expect to see it included in intercollegiate athletics in the near future." In many colleges, especially in the East, golf has come to be one of the leading minor sports, and great interest is being shown in the game, according to reports from colleges and universities all over the country. Here on the Oregon campus, enthusiasm for golf is rising in bounds, especially since the arrival of the warm spring days, and the course at the Country club is dotted by student players on all days during the week.

Several holes will probably be established somewhere on or near the campus, according to Dean Bovard, if enough students register enthusiasm over the idea. This will make possible the frequent practice which is now so hard to secure, due to the long distance of the course from the campus. Back lots and open fields near the University are now in constant use by the enthusiasts, but a smooth green of two or three holes will be a great advantage.

Dean Bovard asks everyone interested in the sport to come and see him, and promises that any steps taken will receive his enthusiastic support. He hopes some day to see golf one of Oregon's minor league sports.

CANOE RACING CONSIDERED

Girls Will Meet Monday to Discuss Plans and Arrange Schedule

There is to be a meeting of the girls interested in class canoe races Tuesday night at 7 o'clock in the major library, on the third floor of the Woman's building, to discuss plans and to arrange a schedule for practices with the canoes belonging to the University.

"We want a lot to turn out so that we can have lots of races before the finals," said Emma Jane Garbade, head of canoeing.

The following girls have signed up to enter for triouts: Seniors, Margaret Russell, Dorothy Miller; juniors, Viola Powell, Mildred Brown and Charlotte Howells; sophomores, Adah Harkness, Agnes Schultz, Gladys Thomason, Gertrude Andrae, Agnes Christy and Muriel Meyers; freshmen, Dagmar Skulason, Allegra Ragsdale, Helen Cantino, Mary Clorin, Marie Strube, and Yvonne Smith.

30 IN WORD STUDY CLASS

Spring Term Course Enables Students to Increase Vocabularies

Thirty students are enrolled in Miss Burgess' class in the study of words. The course, which has been given in the spring term for the past four years, is intended to increase the vocabularies of students by adding words of practical, conversational value in particular, and of literary value to some extent. Technical and foreign words are avoided, and those words which are found in modern fiction and essays are emphasized. "The students are expected to compile a dictionary of from 400 to 500 words in the course of the term," said Miss Burgess.

Y. M. TO BE REPRESENTED AT TRAINING CONFERENCE

O. A. C. Host to All Colleges of State Saturday

Five representatives of the campus Y. M. C. A. will go to Corvallis to attend the state officers' training conference Saturday and Sunday. Webster Ruble and Lot Beatie, newly elected president and secretary of the "Y"; L. P. Putnam, general secretary; Bruce McConnell and Roy Veatch are the men chosen for the trip, which will be made in Mr. Putnam's car.

The conference is held each year in April, so that officers of the various "Y" organizations in the higher educational institutions of the state may meet together and lay plans for the coming year. Last year the conference was held at Pacific college in Newberg.

The meetings for this year's conference are to be held in the "Y" hut on the O. A. C. campus. Officers and important committee chairmen will be in attendance from all colleges throughout Oregon. The various men will be housed and cared for by the O. A. C. organization.

Problems of administration, faculty cooperation, campus service, new student handling, employment, social work, foreign students, community service, boys' work, gospel teams, deputation teams, religious education, Bible study, mission study, religious meetings, church cooperation, personal work, etc., are to be fully discussed. Plans for raising large delegations from the various colleges to attend the Northwest student conference at Seabeck will also be made.
