Students Are Said to Be Careless About Leaving Articles; Professors' Names also Found in Books' Fly Leaves

A wool scarf, several umbrellas, a comparatively new hat, a fountain pen, several note books, about 50 text and fiction books, and a package of black Diamond Dye have accumulated in the library during the past year and are now waiting to be claimed by their rightful owners.

"The students are pretty careless about leaving things around the library and then going off and leaving them," said H. A. White, the janitor of the library and the custodian of lost articles. "Some of the students think they are a nuisance when they call for their stuff here but I am glad to have them reclaim the lost articles and get them out of the way."

Students don't seem to be the only negligent people on the campus, however. Among the lost books the name of one professor appears on the fly leaf. Names found in some of the other books indicate that they are the property of Boyd Haynes, Eva Kelly, S. R. Williams, Lorna Messner, Thomas Hardy, Margaret Seymour, and Leah Greenbaum.

GYM RULING WILL COME UP

Pre-war Requirement for Three Hours of Physical Education Discussed

The pre-war requirement of three hours of physical education per week for men students for one hour of credit for the first two years, may be reinstated on the campus if a motion to this effect by the school of physical education is acted on at the May faculty meeting. Although the three-hour plan has been carried on ever since the S. A. T. C. was mustered out, definite action in placing this on the statutes has been delayed several years.

An announcement by the school of physical education in the faculty bulletin makes the following explanation: "Owing to the strenuousness of the military work during the war period, the physical education requirement for men was reduced to two hours per week. This order has not been rescinded.

MILITARY MEN WILL MEET

Society Being Organized; Second Meeting to Be Held Tonight

There will be a second meeting of members interested in forming a military club on the University campus tonight in the "Y" hut at 7:15. A considerable amount of work has been done during the week on organizing the society by the committees in charge, under James Meek, general chairman. Information has been obtained in regard to affiliation of the fraternity with Seaboard and Blade, national honorary military fraternity, which will be presented.

Anyone interested is invited to attend the meeting, according to Meek.

chestra. In this act the music and the setting are equally important.

As a special number for the University Troubadours, Mr. Underwood has arranged the "Sing-Song Man" for the eight instruments in that organization. Mr. Underwood promises real novelty effects in jazz. "The day of noisy cow-bell jazz has gone, as far as we are concerned," he said in commenting on the nature of the program for next Friday evening, which he promises will be both light and serious.

Through an error a story in yesterday's Emerald announced the home concert for May 28 instead of April 28. Tickets are on sale at the Co-op and Kuykendall's drug store at 75 cents. This price admits to both the concert and dance.

Rumors Lack Confirmation

The names of a number of co-eds have been linked up with the women's positions on the Student Council, the Executive Council and the secretary of the A. S. U. O., but as yet these rumors lack confirmation or positive denial. More announcements are expected from day to day now as the official nominations will take place a week from tomorrow at the regular assembly period. Election will take place on Wednesday, May 10.

QUOITS GAIN POPULARITY

Quoits and horse-shoes are being played behind the Architecture building by students since the descent of fair weather upon the campus. The old games have been revived to such an extent that tennis, track, baseball, and even archery are utterly eclipsed in popularity. The fence along the track serves admirably as bleachers for the spectators. Their enthusiasm, however, when the horse-shoe slingers capture the elusive peg, threatens to tumble them completely from their perch. The present popularity of quoits is rapidly changing it from a between-class recreation to a laboratory sport.

SHORTAGE OF FERNS FOR COMMENCEMENT FEARED

Students Asked to Bring in Plants from Woods to Replenish Depleted Beds on Campus

The annual flower and fern procession at the time of commencement this year will not be as complete as usual unless students of the University will cooperate with the campus gardeners in bringing in ferns from the woods in the vicinity to be planted on the campus for use in the traditional procession in June. A bed of ferns for this purpose was started some years ago by Miss Luella Clay Carson, formerly a professor in the English department of the University, who was the founder of the custom of having a flower and fern procession before commencement.

This bed lies at the side of the steps of Villard hall and during the past year the ferns have been taken to such a large extent that the request has come for additional ferns to plant in order to perpetuate the bed. Students are asked to gather all the maiden-hair fern available on their numerous hikes in the hills surrounding Eugene and bring them to Miss Maude Kerns at the normal arts studio, who will see that they are planted at once.
