That The Spirit May Carry On

Oregon has long been known throughout the world as a University of true traditions,—instituted years ago and coming down through the years to the present age with the same loyal sentiment and pride that caused them to be created.

Dangerous precedents must not be established here which will allow traditions to be peremptorily abandoned at the will of any organized movement which has had its beginning not in the expressed sentiment of the campus but in a few individuals.

Oregon must have a tradition committee with its proper representation which will foster and preserve the cornerstones of the spirit of this University. And proper representation means an equal voice by alumni and faculty members to whom the traditions are a cherished recollection of dear old days,—a voice from out of the past which fans again to brightness the fast fading embers of the fire which made Oregon Spirit conquer on the gridiron in days of old.

Oregon is a growing institution and its growth is gratifying indeed, but in no instance must increased enrollment be cited as an excuse for the abolishment of the very essence of Oregon's democracy. Others have marvelled at the Oregon Spirit, and it must be kept such that they will continue to marvel.

The Means to An End

The petition being circulated among the students to urge the early erection of new tennis courts is significant. Not only does it mean that these needed facilities for the racquet-wielders will be brought rather forcibly to the attention of the administration, but it will likewise serve to bring to the attention of those who are in authority the imperative need for athletic facilities in general here.

And what "tommy-rot" is this? we are asked, that attempts to keep alive a tradition in which every student says "hello" to every other student on the campus in passing. Righteous indignation has choked more than one well-intentioned student into silence forever.

What a convenience the good old alphabet sometimes is. Just at present the political reporter for The Emerald uses the ancient and bewhiskered adage, "alphabetical order" when he moves one candidate ahead of the other in his news article,—and thereby saves his neck.

CLASS OF '20 MEETS: Although 1920 is a back number, the class of '20 is not, with 18 men of the class still on the campus, and plans are under way for a banquet to be held this week-end.

SALVATION ARMY DRIVE ON CAMPUS OPENS FRIDAY

Sanction Given Project by Student Committee

A booth will be erected on the campus Friday to receive contributions of students to the Salvation Army drive which was begun Monday, and will be carried on until Saturday. The booth has received the sanction of the committee of student drives, of which Raymond Lawrence is chairman, but there will be no personal solicitation.

It is planned to have a speaker at the assembly today present the work of the organization, and the booth will be erected the following day.

To raise $4000 is the aim of the drive, for the purpose of carrying on the maintenance work of the organization for the coming year. Their work includes relief work among the poor and general social service. During the war their activity overseas will be remembered. However, this budget will be used for work in Eugene and Lane county only.

The city has been divided into districts for the campaign, which is under the management of E. L. Graves. The Elks, who have pledged to raise $2400 of the amount, will canvass the business district. The Salvation Army is making the house-to-house canvass of the residence district. Up to last night a statement had not yet been made of the amount raised, as the drive is just getting well started.

Captain and Mrs. Anthony are the permanent officers of the Salvation Army in charge of the work in Eugene.

"Economy" Keeps Some Men Hard Up!

You've heard of men so extravagant that they never have a dollar.

Well there are also men so economical that they never have a nickel.

It just keeps them broke replacing the cheap things they buy!

There are many clothes that are lower priced than Green Merrell's clothes in the beginning, but they are all higher in the end.

Does your P. M. schedule read like this?

If your burning ambition is to excel as an all-around society man, you couldn't have planned your evenings better. Such persistence will win out over the indolence of the rank and file, for as the poet says,

"The heights by great men reached and kept Were not attained by sudden flight, But they while their companions slept Were toiling upward in the night."

But if you intend to make your mark in engineering or business, don't expect that supremacy on the waxed floor will help when you start hunting a job.

Not that you need swing to the other extreme as a "grind" or a hermit. Let's concede it is all right to minor in sociabilities—but certainly it is only common sense to major in the math and sciences and English that will mean bread and butter to you later on.

Remember this—the harder you work right now in getting a grip on fundamentals, the easier things will come to you when you must solve still bigger problems. And if you take it easy now—well, look out for the law of compensation.

It's up to you. While you've got the chance, seize it, dig in, plug hard. It will pay—in cold cash.

Western Electric Company

Maybe it's against all campus tradition, but some men who stood in the upper third in their class and who entered this Company years ago have since become its executives.
