Their Loyalty and Ours

There are many factors besides the personal effort and sacrifice on the part of the individual students, concerned in the complete success of student activities. Here in Eugene a feeling of loyalty and pride on the part of the residents of the city and the county is evidenced at every opportunity, for the achievements of the students of the University. These same loyal residents have watched and kept faith in the gradual growth and advancement of the University and their assistance then was even more essential than it is now.

Among the activities which have grown and been materially aided in that growth by the assistance and faith of the citizens of Eugene is the one in the school of journalism which has made possible The Oregon Daily Emerald which greets the students each morning. This publication could not be possible without the faith and confidence which the business men have displayed in it by their liberal purchasing of advertising space in its columns. And just as they have faith in the value to us of our daily publication and of our other activities, we must have a spirit of faith and loyalty for those who make these things possible. They solicit our patronage on a fair and square basis just as we have solicited their patronage on the same grounds. They and we are essential to each other.

Where Individuality Is Concerned

Not so very long ago a prominent member of Oregon's alumni decried the fact that there was danger of losing some of the distinctive traditions, which have endeared Oregon to him since he first entered the institution to seek a higher education. He noted the attempt to discard the campus luncheon and urged that every effort be made to continue this democratic tradition and not to drop it at any cost.

"When it comes to the matter of dropping some of those good old traditions which have made the name of Oregon distinctive, I am pretty much of a standpatter," he said. And the farseeing students into whose hands the keeping of these traditions are placed can only appreciate such sentiments after they have conversed with members of the alumni. There is more need for standpatters among some of the students who are here now, else they, too, will have occasion for regrets in the future,—regrets that Oregon with a false conception of the march of progress had discarded its individuality.

"Every generation has its own Hamlet, and so for that has every actor who has essayed the part. Nothing is more futile than to rummage back into memory for comparison, except to declare that the current Hamlet is the greatest that ever was since Garrick, or Booth or Irving. . . . Walter Hampden stands in his own right as uncontestedly the reatest of living American tragedians. His performance of Hamlet last night at the Century proved that. It was as Shaw would say, thoroughly 'like Shakespeare's play of the same name.'"

The above criticism of the work of Walter Hampden who comes to Eugene the first of next week was written by Idwal Jones in a San Francisco newspaper. Hampden's signal success throughout the world as an interpreter of Shakespeare means that something of value will be offered all who attend the presentations here.

Perhaps you were not one of the many who shared the coffee and doughnuts with the Salvation Army "over there," but surely you must have had a friend or relative who did. And the memory of what that may have meant to him must surely warrant a contribution, that the good work of this organization may go on at home as it did across the water.

CALIFORNIANS WILL HIKE PARENTS' DAY TO BE HELD

Sunday, May 7, Date Set for Trip; Ball Team to Play

Plans for a hike Sunday afternoon, May 7, were discussed at the meeting of the California club yesterday in the Commerce building. Members of the organization who were not at the meeting are reminded to keep the date in mind.

The Californians are completing arrangements for the indoor baseball game with the Washington club in the near future. The battery for the southerners has been selected, Jack Myers and Emil Ghio being chosen to work in those positions. The rest of the team is an unknown quantity so far, and no practices have been held.

U. of W. to Entertain on May 13; Mothers' Day to Be Observed

Washington State college, April 28.—(P. I. N. S.)—At Associated Students meeting Thursday it was decided that an official Parent's Day would be held on May 13. Special entertainment will be offered and opportunity given the parents to inspect the school. On Sunday various group houses will entertain in honor of Mother's Day.

In connection with publicity for Washington State, $3000 was appropriated towards paying expenses of teams which will visit the high schools of Washington. It is the purpose of these teams to advertise W. S. C. and get in touch with prospective students.

21 Years Ago

News of Early Days of the University Clipped From the Files of the Oregon Weekly, April 29, 1901.

R. S. Bryson, '99, now a junior at the Columbia law school, New York City, is expected to arrive home this week.

The twelfth annual junior exhibition of the University of Oregon will be given Friday night in Villard hall. The program for the evening will consist of six orations by members of the class, while a number of selected vocal and instrumental musical numbers will also be heard.

Wink at me only with thine eyes,
Then I'll wink back with mine;
And if you get me on the string,
Why I'll not break the twine.

The class of 1903 is planning something new in U. O. customs in the shape of a sophomore day. A meeting of the class was held last week when the matter was taken up, and the date, Friday, May 31, was set for the class reception, which will be given at night in Villard hall.

Let us have a tennis tournament at U. O. this year.

The Webfoot will be out in about two weeks. It will contain nearly 200 pages, over 20 full page cuts, several pen and ink sketches and numerous other illustrations. Several articles of historical interest have been written. Contributions in the form of serious prose and poetry as well as stuff of a lighter vein are to be published. Several pages especially arranged for the occasion but of a nature not to be mentioned at this time, will add to the happiness of students and others.

The senior class will leave a bronze plate to perpetuate the memory of the late Professor McClure, who lost his life on Mt. Rainier in July, 1899. Professor McClure was a general favorite with all the students and it is only proper that there should be some token for the high esteem in which he was held.

LAST SHOWING TONIGHT OF COLORFUL GUILD PLAY

Very Effective Costumes Add Greatly to Success of Company Production

Shaw's "Caesar and Cleopatra" which has played two nights, and which has been very successful, will be played again tonight. The stage effects in this play surpass anything which the dramatic department has ever done. The settings are simple, but with the soft lighting effects every possibility in the settings is brought out and the atmosphere is decidedly Egyptian. The costumes have been worked out to the smallest detail and many of the costumes are very effective. It is thought by many persons that this is the cleverest production of the year and it is of added interest because the department has never produced anything like it before.

Charlotte Banfield as Cleopatra is entirely delightful and Darrell Larsen as Caesar does some exceptionally good work. Margaret Nelson as Ptolemy plays a difficult role remarkably well.

KILPATRICK BACK FROM SOUTH

Earl Kilpatrick, director of the extension division, has returned from a four days trip to southern Oregon and reports that the high school students at Medford and Grants Pass, with whom he came in touch, expressed great satisfaction over the state high school conference which was held on the campus several weeks ago. They seemed to think it was a great success and are looking forward to another conference next year, Mr. Kilpatrick stated.
