A Vested Interest in Life

"The only vested interest of the student is in life, and in rational preparation for life," declares a notable article in the New Republic on May 3 on "Ferment in the Colleges," in which there is noted certain "growing pains" in eastern colleges which would indicate a dissatisfaction on the part of students with traditional courses and a desire for the substitution of "broader studies that may serve to orient the student in the world of adult thought."

"The college curriculum was not made in a day nor will it be revolutionized in a day," says the anonymous writer. "In every forward movement the majority of the faculty will hold back, and that is well. The college, with all its defects, is a good thing in itself, and it is proper that the burden of proof should be on the advocate of change. It is proper, too, that the advocates of change who receive the most respectful hearing should be those who emerge in the student body."

In certain colleges in the east where there are groups of students who do not believe that it is in the nature of the student "to present himself as raw material at the college gates, to be milled and sifted and done up in a neat parchment package according to the technical rules laid down by wise men long since dead and administered by other wise men not dead yet" there have been indications of a "ferment." And the notable thing about it all is that it comes from the students themselves.

From Yale there has been expressed a desire to "preserve the college from the cultural blight which inevitably follows the growth of economics and similar studies"; Princeton asks for increased emphasis on the humanities. A large step has been taken at Barnard where a student curricular committee has presented a report to the faculty. The fact that this report has been tabled means but little. What is important is this—that a committee of students has seen fallacies in the curriculum of Barnard and has had the nerve to point them out. All their suggestions, and bold ones they are, are designed to work for a broad humanitarian and cultural training in the freshman year which would better prepare the student to utilize the resources of the college in the later years of his course.

At the University of Oregon the humanities have not been forgotten. We have here our "service courses" and again as in the past The Emerald emphasizes their importance in the general educational scheme. The Emerald feels that Oregon needs no curricular committee to point out fallacies in things here, for Oregon is a growing institution and blessed with an administration which has thus far had the wisdom to change where change was needed, to innovate where innovation was needed. The Emerald thinks too that the administration sees the full importance of the humanities and would not make a bread and butter institution and that alone of Oregon.

Men and women must be equipped here to pay back what they owe to the state of Oregon. They must also be equipped to make the most of themselves. In so doing they will do the most for their state. Again, men and women, not machines are what must continue to graduate from this growing institution.

The amendment on the ballot today calling for the institution of a music fund is seen by The Emerald in an admirable light. Fifty cents a term means the bringing here of notable artists who will surely make for an enrichment to student life of which music alone perhaps is capable. Oregon is rather far from centers of culture. Your fifty cents will bring it closer.

Things will be sweet and rosy here next year. If you don't believe it, look over the platforms of the candidates in today's elections.

PORTLAND PIANIST WILL APPEAR HERE ON JUNE 2

David Campbell, Director of Ellison-White Conservatory, Highly Praised by Evans

David Campbell, acknowledged as one of the best pianists of the Northwest, will appear on the campus in a recital given under the auspices of the Woman's league on June 2. Mr. Campbell appeared in Eugene last spring as soloist with the Portland Symphony orchestra at the dedication of the Woman's building. He is now director of the Ellison-White conservatory of music in Portland.

player, but with all the finesse and delicacy that can be desired," said John Stark Evans of the school of music. Mr. Campbell was for four years a pupil of the eminent Swiss pianist, Rudolph Ganz of Berlin, under whom Mr. Evans also studied. Mr. Campbell held a position as head of the Whitman school of music at Walla Walla, Washington, for some time, and served in France for over a year during the war. He had the rare privilege of playing before Mr. Ignace Paderewski at his ranch in Pasa Robles, California. This distinction has seldom been conferred by Paderewski upon other pianists, as he has never consented to teach. Mr. Campbell received some personal help and many compliments from this famous musician.

LORENZ NEW PRESIDENT OF COMMERCE CHAMBER

Jason McCune Vice-president; Margaret Beattie Secretary, Ivan McKinney Treasurer; Trustees Elected

Officers and trustees of the University chamber of commerce were elected yesterday afternoon in a close-run race between the nominees of the various offices. However, Fred Lorenz was unopposed in the race for president, and will be the new man in that office. The office of vice-president went to Jason McCune, who was elected by a majority of 25 votes over his competitor. Ivan McKinney was chosen treasurer with 52 votes against 38, and Margaret Beattie was elected secretary with 52 votes against 37.

The five student trustees elected from a list of 10 nominees are: Marcela Berry, Victor Bracher, Ray Harlan, Joe Skelton, and John Simpson. P. U. Janney, A. L. Lomax and Miss Madeline McManus, all of the faculty of the school of business administration, are the three faculty trustees elected from a list of six. The balloting for the position of trustees was very close.

NEW FILM IS RECEIVED

"Jupiter's Thunderbolt" Is Title of Slides on Philippines

The visual instruction department of the extension division will receive, in a few days, a set of 70 slides from Jaime C. Deveyra, resident commissioner of the Philippines. The slides begin with the history of the islands and particularly emphasize conditions in the Philippines today.

"Jupiter's Thunderbolt" is the title of the film received by the visual instruction department from the extension division of the University of Montana. The film portrays Franklin's discovery of electricity in lightning and leads through to the making of the modern storage battery.

HENDRICKS TEAM WINS

The Hendricks hall baseball team proved its right to first place in League II of the girls' doughnut baseball league yesterday afternoon when it defeated the Kappa Alpha Theta team 40 to 3 in a three-inning game. The last game of the doughnut series will be played Friday afternoon when Hendricks hall will defend the cup, which they won last year, against Oregon club, who are the winners in League I.
