

MAY NUMBER OF LEMMY WILL FEATURE PREPPERS

Art Value of Magazine High; Large Staff Contributes

CIRCULATION IS LARGER

Copies on Sale Tomorrow and Saturday at Track Meet

Lemon Punch, bright and snappy in its "prepper cover" and half again as large as usual, will appear on the campus Friday to greet scores of old friends and the hundreds of high school guests who will be here participating in Junior Week-end festivities.

Under the management of a new staff, "Lemmy" is not the old comic of previous months but an entirely new creation with the best array of art work ever presented since the founding of the happy little comic.

Doc Braddock, editor of the Punch, reports that the circulation has been increased by 700 copies and that the extras will be sent to news stands all over Oregon.

Has High Standing
"With the standing of Lemon Punch equaling any coast college publication, there should be no difficulty in getting good news stand distribution," says Si Sonnichsen, circulation manager, through whose efforts the additional copies will be disposed of. Many preppers are expected to send copies home to their friends, according to Sonnichsen.

Several of the artists and writers of this issue of Lemon Punch have had their work accepted by national publications. Lemon Punch is constantly being clipped by other college magazines and the general worth of the paper is increasing rapidly, is the belief of those in charge.

Great care was taken with this issue to keep all material clean, says the editor. The experience of the University of Washington Sun Dodger was noted with interest by the Lemon Punch staff and although the northern comic sheet has been reinstated, the local humorous writers intend to let nothing happen here that will injure the Lemon-Yellow paper's reputation or standing.

On Sale Friday
Lots of jokes and the result of 15 students' efforts in art work feature the May or "Preppers' Issue" of the Punch. The cover is especially good, having been drawn by Ray Bethers, who has achieved a wide reputation as an artist.

The editorial page, the work of E. J. H., the "campus cynic," stands out as one of the brightest spots in the magazine, the usual critical attitude being tempered with a rare humor for which E. J. H. is famous.

The Punch will be on sale all day Friday and Saturday at the meet. A special corps of salesmen have been lined up and it is hoped that the 2200 copies will be disposed of even as the proverbial "hoteakes."

TWO NEW DIRT COURTS COMPLETED ON CAMPUS

University Tennis Players Get Added Facilities for Rest of Racquet Season

The two dirt tennis courts which have been under construction recently at the west end of Deady walk will be completed today and ready for players soon, according to John L. Hanna, superintendent of campus grounds. The ground has been under preparation for several weeks and the remaining task of putting in posts and putting up the nets will be done before Friday.

It is hoped that these courts will relieve the congestion on the cement courts during the tennis season, and it is expected by the committee in charge that more cement courts will be started as soon as sufficient funds may be obtained. The cost of two cement courts will be $1500, and part of this has been arranged for by Lyle Bartholomew, president of the A. S. U. O., who has been working with the committee on athletic facilities. Work will begin as soon as the rest of the fund is secured and a location can be decided upon.
