

At the Campus Luncheon

Tweeds! Orange sweaters, "O" sweaters, green sweaters, lavender sweaters! All the spring flowers wreathing spring straws! Fruit salad, tin cups, weak coffee, dripping ice cream cones! A scattering of somberos! A smattering of green caps! Cars! Guests! Greetings! "Hellos" and "Why there's —!" The Campus Luncheon!

Girls standing about comparing boys and sandals. Boys standing about comparing girls and sandwiches.

Members of Scroll and Script sitting on the grass in caps and gowns. Self-conscious pledges with pink roses.

An elderly lady with a dipping skirt hem, circles an ice cream cone with a careful tongue and laps cat-like at the center. The pathos of an old lady with an ice cream cone!

A visiting boy in square-toed oxfords, very new; that knee-trousered look still clinging to him, saws solemnly ly at a peach in his salad with a paper spoon.

A young girl with a pink hand bag shakes brazen liliaes on a black hat and shrieks excitedly, "Oh, there's Rod."

The orchestra plays "Till We Meet Again." Ironic requests for "Red Wing." A well-known member of a campus dance orchestra moans in pain.

Leith Abbott with a paddle and a pickle.

"Prexy" with colored glasses and paternal gestures.

Groups of "sisters" admonishing one another to keep their "eyes open."

A handsome youth with a consciously careless cigarette a "come-in-to-the-garden-Maud" smile, looks Oregon over from the front seat of a newly polished car.

PARTY AT HUT TONIGHT

Y. M. and Y. W. Will Entertain for Those Not Attending Prom

Students and guests who are not attending the Junior Prom are reminded of the party to be given Saturday evening at the Y. M. hut, under the joint auspices of the Y. W. O. A. and the Y. M. C. A. An unusually interesting program has been arranged, including games and music. Instrumental numbers will be given by the Hawaiian string quartet, and Germaine Dew will give several juggling acts. Refreshments will be served. The committees in charge are under the direction of Glenn Morrow and Louise Leonard. High school visitors will be admitted on the tickets which were issued to them upon their arrival on the campus, while an admission charge of 10 cents will be made for University students.

BOOKS WIN GAME 11 TO 8

The Oregon frosh came out at the small end of an 11 to 8 score at Corvallis yesterday. The battery for the frosh was Skinner, Brooks and Orr.

Junior Week-end

THE week-end of all week-ends will soon be history. You will cherish the memories of all the events that take place during this festive occasion. You will be taking pictures of the Canoe Fete, baseball games, track meet, and the different comical experiences of Campus Day. How are you going to preserve these priceless snaps and programs? There is only one way, and that is to secure a

KINCAID GRANDSTAND VANISHES IN BONFIRE

Senior Police Efficient; "O" Receives Tribute of Paint; Frosh Thrown in Fountain

Do you hear the fountain gurgling? Aye.

Does it call for food? Aye.

Seniors, in line, company march!

It was the old cry, without which no Oregon Campus Day would be complete. Many were the offerings offered to the hungry fountain, and unnumbered frosh provided entertainment for students and visiting preppers.

Somehow, someone managed to do some real work, because the campus appears with acleaner face this morning. The last of the old Kincaid grandstand disappeared in a bonfire, weeds were found in unexpected places and removed. The "O" received its annual tribute of lemon yellow paint, although if one can judge from appearances, several frosh got more paint than did the O.

Led by A. S. U. O. President Lyle Bartholomew and Senior President Leith Abbott, the police were most efficient. A frequent note of seriousness was sounded, however, when a halt was called in order that the men might be reminded of their duty to vote. Colonel Leader spoke for the support of the friends of the University and reminded each man of the responsibility that voting entailed.

All in all, it was just a campus day, with all that the tradition means. To the frosh the passing of the day meant that they would no longer be distinguished by a verdant headpiece, that now they were officially accepted as members of the great University family. To the seniors it meant a recalling of other campus days and a bit of regret that this was to be their last, because campus day will ever stand out as one of the favorite "Memories of Oregon."

PI BETA PHI WINS PRIZE

Gamma Phi Beta and Delta Theta Phi had an artistic tableau with a tall clock, an owl which winked yellow and green, old Father Time and other figures, called "The Witching Hour."

In "Vanity Garden," the float of Hendricks hall and Chi Psi, stood a fairy figure in ballet costume in a realistic garden where a peacock strutted.

"The Ship of the Holy Grail," taken from Abbey's "Solomon's Ship," was the float of Kappa Alpha Theta and Kappa Delta Phi, and showed knights of olden time in their search for the grail.

A bonbon box, from the lifted lid of which peered "candies" which looked decidedly sweet, was the float of Kappa Kappa Gamma and Kappa Theta Chi.

"A Grecian Ship," all of white, with a winged victory in the prow, was the float of men's and women's Oregon club.

Susan Campbell hall and Kappa Sigma showed in their "Phantom Ship" the gruesome picture of ghostly shakers of dice in a skeleton ship.

In "Futility," which was wrongly printed "Utility" in the program, Thacher cottage and Friendly hall had a personified figure of scholarship, in cap and gown, playing chess with a pretty girl, the chessmen being toy figures of college students.

An original float was "The Love Ship," of Zeta Rho Epsilon and Phi Delta Theta, which presented a miniature airplane, with doll bride, groom, and cupid, all complete.

Alpha Delta Pi and Bachelordon built "La Pinta," one of the three ships of Columbus, which did not sail across the sea in 1492, but down the Oregon mill race in 1922, with students and guests of the University watching its course.

Drizzling rain lasted through the greater part of the fete.

O. A. C. TENNIS TEAM VICTOR BY 3-2 SCORE

Singles Tournament Goes to Visitors; Doubles Events Will Be Played Off Today

The O. A. C. racquet wielders took the tennis singles tournament from the varsity players yesterday afternoon, with a score of 3 to 2. Kenneth Smith, with his usual brilliant playing, and George Hayden, varsity stars, both showed excellent work, with Smith, varsity captain, winning over Kenneth Joy, captain of the O. A. C. men, in two fast matches, 6-1 and 6-4. Hayden with good drives and careful placing, defeated Viron Parnin, Aggie player, 6-4, 4-6, and 6-0. Dr. D. E. Lancefield, instructor in the University in the department of zoology, was the official referee.

Tom Maberly, O. A. C., won two matches, 6-1 and 7-5, from Steve Williams, U. of O., whose playing was handicapped by his shoulder which he strained while playing in the south. Pink Kincaid, Aggie player, showed some neat playing when he took two games from Leon Culbertson, varsity man, 6-3 and 6-1. The match between R. G. Johnson, O. A. C., and Herbert Darby, U. of O., was a walk-away for the Aggie, who won in two 6-1 sets.

The doubles matches will be played off today after the tournament at 12:30 between the rook and the frosh players. Smith and Williams will constitute one varsity team and Hayden and Culbertson the other.
