

ACTIVE MEMBERS OF SIGMA DELTA CHI, ALL PROMINENT IN CAMPUS CIRCLES, WHO INITIATED SIX LAST NIGHT

Raymond Lawrence,
Harris Ellsworth, John
Dierdorff, Stan Eisman,
Alexander Brown.

Second row: Floyd
Maxwell, Leith Abbott,
Eugene Kelty, Harry
Ellis, Edwin Hoyt.

Kays, Kenneth Youel,
Pete Allen, Phil Brogan.

The active chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, the national men's journalism fraternity, has 16 members at present. The object of the organization is to promote good journalism both in school and after graduation. To be elected, a man must attain prominence in journalism, besides having good moral standing.

Raymond "Curly" Lawrence, president of the organization the past year, was a reporter for two years on the Emerald, and since that time has been active as a correspondent for the Portland papers.

Stan Eisman was also a reporter on the Emerald for two years, after that time being connected with the publication of Lemon Punch, of which he was editor this year.

John Dierdorff served on the Emerald as reporter his first year, took the position of news editor his second, and this year has been doing features for the paper.

Harris Ellsworth was active on the managerial part of the paper during his freshman and sophomore years, being assistant manager the second year. He became associated with Lemon Punch as manager this year.

Kenneth Youel, recently elected editor of the Emerald, and also newly elected president of Sigma Delta Chi, has been actively connected with the paper since his entrance three years ago. The first year he was a reporter, the second, daily news editor, and this year was news editor.

Floyd Maxwell, editor of the Emerald this past year, was a sport writer his first year, sport editor the second, and editor this year.

Alexander Brown has been connected with publications of all kinds since his entrance. He was a reporter and sports writer the first year in college, and served as sport editor the next season. Since then he has been connected with the University Press.

Eugene Kelty was active as sport writer and reporter his first two years in college, but left the Emerald this year to write the sport section of the Oregonian.

Leith Abbott, editor of the Emerald three years ago, was active on the paper from the time of his entrance. He was a sport writer the first year, sport editor the second, and was elected editor the third.

Harry Smith, editor of the paper last year, worked as a reporter the first two years of his college work, from which he was raised to editor two years ago.

Edwin Hoyt, sport editor on the Emerald this year, worked as sport writer on the paper last year, and was promoted to the place of sport editor.

Harry Ellis has worked on the Emerald staff for the last three years as reporter, copy reader, and feature writer.

Phil Brogan was a reporter for the first two years, being promoted to the position of daily news editor this year.

Pete Allen worked as reporter his first year and served as assistant news editor this year.

Jay Allen, who transferred from Washington State college at the first of the year, has been editorial writer this year, while on the Register.

Warren Kays was on the managerial staff for two years, but with the founding of Lemon Punch transferred his work to that publication, of which he is now manager.

The three men elected this time are John Anderson, Edwin Fraser and Fred Michelson. Anderson is daily news editor, Fraser sport writer, and Michelson night editor.

APPOINTMENTS MADE; PRESIDENT SPEAKS AT R. O. T. C. REVIEW

The issuing of commissions as officers and warrants as non-commissioned officers in the University R. O. T. C. unit was the occasion of a review on the military drill grounds yesterday morning at 11 o'clock and a presentation ceremony at which President Campbell spoke about the national expediency of military training and the reason for college R. O. T. C. work. With the flashing of swords in salute, the band playing martial music and the battalion in alignment, the cadets and officers to be presented commissions and warrants marched forward and faced the reviewing party, made up of President Campbell, Major Carr of Camp Lewis and Major Baird, head of the University military department.

President Campbell said that although the importance of the R. O. T. C. was difficult to understand by some, he himself realized its value, because he had seen the conditions and reactions of two wars and in each instance, although the nation's young men were willing to serve, there was little preparedness and much resultant needless sacrifice. President Campbell noted that after wars as a rule, the people believe that there will be no more war—a belief which many are now hopefully entertaining. Wars have come though, in spite of this.

PREPARATION SERIOUS WORK

"In the face of the situation in Europe," said the president, "it may be but the turn of a hair one way or the other that will cause another outbreak." He believes it is probable that war is not done for, although leading minds are occupied with preventive schemes. "We should take seriously all this work of preparation," he said, and pointed out that in the event of war, college military training not only stand the nation in good stead but will give the student a good lead in the service.

Major Baird's work in connection with the University R. O. T. C. was warmly praised by the president. He states that in spite of the difficulty of reorganizing the college military force from its condition during the world war, Major Baird has brought the unit into a shape of which the University has occasion to be proud of. President Campbell characterized Major Baird as a wise organizer and director and a good educator. Major Baird replied that the president's assistance, more than anything else, had helped him in his work.

COMMISSIONS GIVEN

The commissions and warrants issued yesterday morning went to men who have acted as commissioned and non-commissioned officers in the R. O. T. C. at various times during the college year now approaching its finish. One commission as major, four as captains, seven as first lieutenants, fourteen as second lieutenants, a warrant as assistant band leader, three as first sergeants, one as sergeant bugler, 24 as sergeants, and 30 as corporals were issued.

The men receiving the above are as follows:

Major—Emerald F. Sloan.
Captains—John Homewood, Marcus Latham, James Meek, Don Zimmerman.
First Lieutenants—Arvin Burnett, Harold Bonebrake, Orvin Cant, William Hopkins, Robert Stewart, Adam Wilhelm, Kenneth Youel.

Second Lieutenants—Raymond Andrews, Vernon Bullock, Jackson Capell, William Durham, Marvin Eby, Herbert Geary, Prentice Gross, Delbert Hill, Percy Lasselle, Leonard Lerwill, Rul McCulloch, Webster Ruble, Arthur Rudd, Frank Whittinger.

NON-COMBS NAMED

Assistant Band Leader—James Pearson.

First Sergeants—Frank Carter, Harold Lundburg, Ollie Mercer.

Sergeant Bugler—Harry Serles.

Corporals—R. Bailey, E. Biggar, Joe Blicke, Quarles Burton, L. Cook, H. Coshow, J. Day, J. Dye, D. Faust, R. Garrett, Milton George, W. Godlove, H. Goldsmith, P. Gross, William Hart, R. Hill, John Madlung, W. Marshall, S. Maple, E. Miller, J. Myers, W. Nettleship, W. Palmer, Cecil Pierce, Orval Robson, E. Taffer, D. Woodward, D. Woodworth, F. Wright, Marcus Youngs.

Major Carr, who is from Camp Lewis, and a member of the morning reviewing party, is an old friend of Major Baird's. The two were officers in the same regiment.

OREGON TRACK MEN

Snook had a sore foot, but "Ole" is out to win and has a good chance to repeat. Oberteuffer won the 220 from Snook, but Hurley beat him out by inches. Obie is looked to place well up in the lead though, and if everything breaks right, may take a first.

STRACHAN LOOKS BEST IN SHOT

Scotty Strachan has led the coast in the shot this year and unless some rival comes out with an unexpected burst of strength, will capture this event. Scotty should also place in the javelin and discus. Peltier runs a pretty half after his season's training, and although Ray Dodge of O. A. C. and Pratt of Washington, who hold the coast record in this event, are booked to beat him, he may surprise the followers of track in this race.

The hurdles have been the weak place on Oregon's track teams for the last four or five years, and this year is no exception. Although Art Kuhnhausen may place in the high sticks, his chances in the low hurdles are slim, unless an unlooked-for burst of speed comes to him.

The relay team has made no exceptional time this season, but at that should be able to pick off one of the leading places, if not first, since all the Oregon men will enter this race fresh, as none are booked for any other race, while the relay men from the other colleges will no doubt be entered in other events, aiding the Varsity's chances.

Most of the 12 men leave today, although Coach Hayward and Captain Glen Walkley with several others left for Seattle yesterday.

Text Book Trade Of Co-op for Year Reaches $25,000

The Co-op store has done $25,000 worth of business in text-books alone this year, according to M. F. McClain, manager.

"We sell text books at the prices quoted by the publishers and assume the freight and express charges ourselves," he said. "In other words, the students at the University pay the same price for a book that he buys at the Co-op store as does the student of Harvard, Yale or Princeton who buys the book in the city where it is published." The Co-op does make a profit, and must, if it is to continue to operate, but the profit is not made on the text books, according to Mr. McClain.

At a meeting of the board of control of the Co-op Tuesday evening it was decided that a dividend of ten per cent in trade, or six per cent in cash would be paid student members of the association at the end of the year. At this meeting Jack Meyers was elected to fill the place on the board of control made vacant by the resignation of Edward Keeler.

The co-op fiscal year ends in June and all dividend tickets should be turned in at that time, but the time limit is set for the last of June, and all tickets must absolutely be in at that time.

Girls' Glee Will Give Out Door Concert Tonight

Another of the popular open air concerts will be given this evening from the steps of McClure hall. The University Girls' Glee club will furnish the program which will begin promptly at 7:15 and probably will not last more than 45 minutes. Chorus and solo numbers will be featured, according to John Stark Evans, director. There will probably be but one more of these concerts this year and this will be the last appearance of the Girls' Glee club.

60 DELEGATES WILL ATTEND

Sixty delegates have accepted the invitation of the department of English of the University of Illinois for the high school journalists' conference. More than half the delegates will be women.

CITY EDITOR THOMAS OF OREGONIAN GIVES UNIVERSITY PRAISE

Horace E. Thomas, city editor of the Oregonian, believes in the work of the University wholeheartedly. He said so in a talk Wednesday morning before Professor George Turnbull's class in reporting, which, with Dean Allen's class in editing, was the reason for his trip to Eugene.

"I have never seen a graduate from the University of Oregon school of journalism fail," he declared in discussing the work done here.

Outlining the work of a city editor, he told how big stories are covered, how reporters are expected to work, and of the activities necessary to the publication of a great metropolitan daily.

Although he regretted the so-called "yellow journalism" of Hearst newspapers, Mr. Thomas declared that William Randolph Hearst was the leader in the movement to play up news according to its value.

The speaker urged the youthful writers to keep their work lively and to avoid "sameness" in style. He declared that the paper depends largely upon the work of the reporter and that each "cub" has an important place to fill in the making of a successful paper.

Mr. Thomas was unable to stay in Eugene until evening, when he was to have been initiated into the Oregon chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, men's national honorary journalism fraternity.

A discussion of the choice of material for the feature section of the Sunday newspaper took up most of the 10 o'clock editing class period over which Mr. Thomas presided. The problem of the editor of the Sunday supplement lies chiefly in striking the proper medium between the sensational and the ultra-conservative in the nature of feature material, the editor said.

There are many news syndicates sending out all classes of pages for Sunday papers. The best papers are trying to steer away from the exaggerated and the suggestive, he continued, the idea being to make the section attractive and at the same time to put out a paper that can do no harm. The Sunday paper should be of a nature that it can be safely sent into the home.

Mr. Thomas, who motored to Eugene, was accompanied by Mrs. Thomas and by Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Callvert of Portland. Mr. Callvert is associate editor of the Oregonian. While in the city they were guests of Dr. and Mrs. D. E. Lancefield, brother-in-law and sister of Mr. Thomas. At noon Mr. Thomas and Mr. Callvert were the guests of Sigma Chi fraternity at lunch.
