Painter Considers Harding a
Good Subject

Artists may not seem to have any place in a peace conference, but Mrs. Leonel Jacobs, one of the foremost American artists and a former student at the University of Oregon, attracted widespread attention during the course of the peace conference at Washington by doing a series of pastel sketches of delegates to the conference, diplomats, officials, and Washington social leaders.

President Harding is only one of the many famous people Mrs. Jacobs has sketched, and she admires him greatly. "He cooperates with an artist wonderfully," she said. "And that means so much. It enables an artist to make a much better portrait. I have to burn up sketches I make of unresponsive subjects."

Work Done Quickly

It takes only a few hours for Mrs. Jacobs to make one of her pastel portraits. In an interview with a Washington reporter she mentioned one fairly full day by saying, "I did Viviani at 9:30 one morning, the Princess Bertha Cantacuzene at 11 o'clock, and 'Uncle Joe' Cannon at 2:30 of the same day. And, strange to say, Uncle Joe's portrait was best of the three."

"It is very difficult to do one's best work, however," she said, "under the handicap of limited time and unprepared backgrounds and surroundings. One should have time to study and absorb the personality of a sitter."

Uncle Joe Cannon Amuses

Several amusing incidents are credited to Mrs. Jacobs. One of them occurred when she went to sketch "Uncle Joe" Cannon. Mr. Cannon lives at 1712 H St., only just around the corner from the Powhatan, where Mrs. Jacobs stops when in Washington. "After I had finished his portrait," she related, "he insisted upon driving me to my hotel. I protestingly explained that it was unnecessary. No matter. He was going to see me home. And the gallant gentleman did. We drove in much state around the corner and stopped before the hotel entrance. Distance, one-half block."

Many Notables Pose

Among the many famous persons whom Mrs. Jacobs has sketched are the vice-president and Mrs. Coolidge, Viviani, Prince Tokugawa, Lord Riddell, Madame and M. Jusserand, Roldo Ricci, Madame Wellington Koo, Senator Lodge, Senator Underwood, Senator Borah, "Uncle Joe" Cannon, Gen. Lejeune, Princess Cantacuzene, Princess Bertha Cantacuzene, Mrs. Alice Longworth, Mrs. Sumner Bird, Mrs. Edson, Mrs. Winter, Mrs. Egan, James Preston, and Ambassador de Cartier.

After leaving the Hopkins art school, Mrs. Jacobs was for a short time the head of the art department in the Eugene schools and later in the Portland schools. A period of study in Chicago and New York followed, which was rewarded by the winning of several medals for excellent work. During this time she married Henry Downing Jacobs, formerly of Springfield, Illinois, who was connected with the firm of Brang & Company, dealers in works of art. Since that time she has kept up her studies, with the result that when an artist was desired to sketch the prominent people around Washington at the time of the conference, she was selected. She is now living in Greenwich Village, New York.

Pictures of Different Stages in Silk and Rubber Industry Shown in Villard Hall

Three reels of motion picture films and about 40 stereopticon slides, picturing the rubber and silk industries in their various stages, were shown to about 200 University students in the combined classes in trade routes of Dr. F. B. Rutter and Professor A. L. Lomax Wednesday night in Villard hall at 8 o'clock.

The first reel of pictures showed a large silk factory in the United States in action, vividly portraying the various steps in the manufacture of the finest silks and velvet plush goods. The silk worm and the changes which take place as it hatches into the cocoon were pictured upon the screen.

A comparison of the plantation methods of Sumatra with the native methods of gathering rubber in South America was shown to bring out the advantages of a scientific system of growing and gathering the rubber. These facts were clearly shown by the use of slides which were made by the Goodrich Rubber Co. Preceding the showing of these slides, Professor Lomax outlined the history of the rubber industry and pointed out that the industry has developed and increased many times in its proportions in the last 20 years. He said, "Eighty-six per cent of the rubber of the world comes from plantations and the United States consumes over three pounds of rubber each year per capita."

In the last two reels of pictures the factories of the Firestone Tire Co. of Akron, Ohio, were shown in operation. The process of the manufacture of cord automobile tires was pictured from the time the first layer of the cotton and rubber fibre is applied to the tire until the finished product is wrapped, ready for shipment to the retailer.

MR. COON WILL APPEAR IN FAREWELL RECITAL

Request Numbers to Be Given
Sunday Evening

Prof. Leland A. Coon, instructor in piano at the University of Oregon school of music, will appear in a farewell organ recital at Central Presbyterian church on Sunday evening, May 28. Mr. Coon has been organist and choir director there for the past two years and his departure for France for a year's study will be a serious loss to Eugene music lovers.

After the short organ recital which will begin at 7:45, the choir will give the Oratorio, "The Holy City," by Goun. Soloists will be John B. Siefert, tenor; Herbert Pate, bass; Ruth Akers, soprano; Jean Mackenzie and Esther Baird, contraltos.

The oratorio, which will be led by Prof. Coon, is one of the most beautiful selections ever written and is one of the most popular being produced today. Many of the churches of the east give it annually and it is an unusual opportunity for Eugene people to hear it sung by such a group of excellent musicians.

The organ recital to be given by Mr. Coon will be made up of request numbers and the program will be as follows:

- Andantino ..... Le Marc
- Cradle Song ..... Iljinsky
- Even Song ..... Johnston
- Priere a Notre Dame ..... Bollmann
- Hallelujah Chorus ..... Handel

LESLIE TOOZE WILL BE

All Students Are Urged to Attend
Services at Former Student's Grave Decoration Day

All freshmen, in keeping with a custom recently established by the class, are urged to appear at the cemetery next Tuesday morning at 9:30 o'clock and assist in decorating the grave of Lieut. Leslie Tooze.

By decorating this grave, which is located in the northwest corner of the cemetery, the freshman class, as well as the University as a whole, will pay tribute to a typical and beloved Oregon student who perished in the war. "Furthermore," said Hesden Metcalf, president of the freshman class, "in accordance with the spirit of Decoration Day this honor paid Leslie Tooze will also be a tribute by the class to all American soldiers who died while in the service."

Two short talks will be given at the grave. After this taps will be sounded and a military salute given.

SALE OF PICTURES USED IN LAST OREGANA ISSUE

Oreganas Must Be Called for Before
First of June or Receipt
Will Be Forfeited

George McIntyre, manager of the Oregana, announces that all pictures used in the Oregana will be placed on sale in the Oregana office in the journalism shack this morning from 10 until 12 o'clock. These will include all the groups, including house and honorary organizations, as well as athletic, feature and scenic pictures.

He also states that Oreganas will be delivered at the same time and urges that those holding receipts call for their copies as soon as possible, since all receipts not presented by June 1 will be forfeited.

STUDENTS TO CO-OPERATE

Bartholomew Appoints Committee to Urge Attendance

Lyle Bartholomew, president of the A. S. U. O., has just appointed a committee of representatives from the student body to cooperate with those in charge of the presentation of the Warner memorial collection on May 29, in urging members of the student body to attend the program at the Woman's building on Monday afternoon.

Carl Vonder Ahe is chairman of this committee and those assisting him will be Dorothy Cash, Margaret Phelps, Remy Cox and Arthur Johnson.

CORNELL TO GIVE PENSIONS

Cornell university has set aside $100,000, the income of which is to be used as a pension fund for professors. Professors retiring at the age of 65 or after, will receive an allowance of approximately one-half of their salary at the time of retirement.

WASHINGTON MANAGER
PRAISES LOCAL CO-OP

Percy Dearle Is Visitor on Oregon Campus

"I would think a long time before I would advise that the Oregon Co-op be taken over as a student body enterprise," was the statement of Percy Dearle, veteran manager of the University of Washington Cooperative Book Store, who spent yesterday on the campus as the guest of Marion McClain, Oregon Co-op manager.

The University of Washington book store is under student body rule. Mr. Dearle, who is retiring after having been manager of the enterprise for 18 years, says that the system is "all right," but that "as long as Oregon's co-op is filling the bill, why change?"

The Sun Dodger book store is differently situated than the Oregon co-op, due to the fact that it is five miles from the center of the city of Seattle. "The students are practically dependent upon our service," the manager declared.

Discussing the book situation, the visiting manager said that it would be impossible to run a cooperative store on the profits from new books. "There simply are none," he said, "as the selling of new books is merely a matter of accommodation."

Mr. Dearle has visited scores of college co-op stores and is enthusiastic about his own and the Oregon store. He considers it remarkable that the local co-op has had such a successful year in view of the tumultuous business conditions.

While in this section Mr. Dearle visited Reed college and O. A. C. His trip was in the nature of a vacation, as he is going into business in Seattle shortly after June 1, the date of his retirement as manager of the Washington book store, and he wished a short rest before taking up his new duties.

J. E. McRae, who succeeds him as manager, visited the Oregon campus last week-end and was also the guest of Mr. McClain.

SCHROFF PAINTING PLACED

Gift Made to Susan Campbell Hall by Unknown Donor

The new over mantle decoration which is the property of Susan Campbell hall was finished recently by Alfred H. Schroff, professor of fine arts in the University. The canvas, which is an original conception of a scene in spring and carries out an idealistic representation of apple blossoms in the most delicate of tints, was made especially to fit into the room where it has been placed over the mantle.

This addition to the decoration of the living room of the hall is the gift of a modest donor who refuses to announce his name but nevertheless the enthusiasm of the girls in the hall shows their appreciation for the gift.

FIVE MORE APPLY FOR CAMP

The number of men applying to attend the citizens' military training camps at Camp Lewis this coming summer has increased by five in one day with the addition of the following applications: Percy Lasselle, Paul Gray, Paul H. Goodwin, Forrest E. Cooper, and Willis Rubie. The number of applicants is now 24.

MILITARY TOURNAMENT DRAWS

The O. A. C. military tournament this year drew nearly 6000 spectators, the largest crowd in the history of the college.
