We and Charlie

Charlie Chaplin, it has become fashionable and none the less true to admit, is a very great artist and largely because a remarkable intuition has led him to search out the very truest and the major stops in the human instrument and subject them to the whimsical treatment of a sensitive and subtletized genius.

Here at Oregon The Emerald sees a situation quite comparable except in this—that it lacks humor. The University in this little affair is the street car, the students, who are an appealing lot as a rule and not ungifted with a real sense of humor, carry Charlie's role, while the mob is portrayed by the department of Physical Education and the R. O. T. C. acting in unison.

Just at present Charlie—no the students—are pretty well up toward the front of the car, with pressure from the rear bearing very hard. What with four and sometimes five hours a week required from military activity and three hours for physical education, almost a full working day is lifted bodily each week from out a man's best hours.

But now comes the final push, and remember it was that last tragic shove which put Charlie in the street, with the department of physical education prepared to go before faculty meeting next Wednesday with the request that three hours a week physical education be confirmed. Here is the story that goes with it: When the military training was brought to Oregon the usual three hours of physical education work was reduced to two for obvious reasons.

And now what have we, we who like Charlie cling to straps with no avail—not only pre-war conditions in the P. E. department but the R. O. T. C. to boot.

It's too much, that's all, laying aside all matter of principle or anything else. The R. O. T. C. is here and it would seem may remain by virtue of what the Administration terms national expediency. The Emerald had hoped that it might have been thrown out never to be brought back—but those hopes grow slimmer very day and it hesitates to say any more about it.

But it does not hesitate to state that it thinks that this proposal of Dean Bovard's, admirable as it may be for the purposes of his department and, useful as three hours in the gymnasium may be to any college student, is too much.

Some adjustment should be made. The Emerald believes physical education invaluable, prefers it to military training, believes it to be one hundred per cent more constructive, but three hours of it added to four and five hours R. O. T. C. is too much, we repeat, far too much, out of proportion, unreasonable, and burdensome.

Reasons, for its stand The Emerald thinks obvious. This is an institution of learning. Add to it your military training if needs be and no way is seen out of it. Give your students exercise—they need it, but be reasonable. Think of it—eight hours a week!

Dean Bovard, do you happen to remember what Henry Cabot Lodge said to Teddy Roosevelt about the Panaman dealings? In case you don't—"Mr. President, I shouldn't have the slightest taint of legality about it."

SHORT STORY MAGAZINE OFF PRESS NEXT WEEK

"Green Ink," Pot and Quill Publication, to Contain Literary Works of Campus Writers

"Green Ink," the campus magazine published by Pot and Quill, honorary literary society, will appear early next week. It will be on sale about the campus, in town, and in Portland book stores. It will contain short stories by Laura Moates, Marion Crary, Nancy Wilson, Mary Lou Burton, Lillian Auld, and Margaret Carter.

by Lillian Auld, one the cover design, the other a Pot and Quill book-plate for a fly-leaf.

ELM DONATED BY LOCAL MAN The variegated elm tree on the west part of the campus near the dirt tennis courts is from the stock of a large variegated elm tree in the yard of F. M. Wilkins of this city. Fifteen years ago T. J. Wilson secured scions from the Wilkins tree and root grafted them on a cork elm. Last spring Mr. Wilson donated the tree to the campus.

FISHERMEN REPORT BIG CATCH Over 100 prize trout were taken from their peaceful homes in Wolfe creek Tuesday by Snooks Moore, Bill Kays and Isty Moores, students of the University. The largest fish measured nearly 16 inches and dozens had to be thrown back because they had not reached the six-inch minimum.

SCHROFF'S WORK PRAISED

Visiting Artist Sees Some Effect of Impressionist School

That the school of impressionists has had a decided effect on the paintings exhibited by A. H. Schroff, professor of fine arts in the University, is the opinion of Mrs. Lucy Dodd Ramberg, portrait artist, of Portland, who has recently returned from 26 years spent in Europe, studying art in France, Italy and Germany and other countries while there, and who has exhibited portrait drawings in Portland the past year.

The individuality of nature and the atmosphere expressed in the Schroff landscapes were features which particularly impressed Mrs. Ramberg, who was here to attend the formal reception of the Warner collection Monday afternoon. Mrs. Ramberg is a graduate of Wellesley.

MILITARY DEPARTMENT

CONFERS HIGH HONORS

Emerald Sloan Soon to Have Army Commission

POST TO BE IN REGULARS

Don Zimmerman to Be Next Cadet Major

With the choosing of Emerald Sloan as honor student in the University military department for the present college year and the appointing of Don Zimmerman as cadet major of the University R. O. T. C. for next year, the two greatest honors conferred by the military department on military students annually have been conferred.

The custom of choosing an honor student in the military department was originated last year by Major R. C. Baird, head of the military department. For each honor student, a silver ring, engraved with his name and the year he was chosen, is placed on the staff of the colors used in the R. O. T. C. parades and reviews.

Emerald Sloan, this year's honor student, has registered for honors in the military department for the last two years and expects to enter the regular army, having been recommended to be a second lieutenant. He was cadet major during the present year and, according to Major Baird, has put in several hours extra each week on his military work. He is soon to receive a commission as lieutenant in the organized reserves and has written as his thesis a 15,000 word article on "Gas Warfare."

In commenting on the appointment of Don Zimmerman as next year's cadet major, Major Baird said, "Zimmerman was chosen on account of the exceptional ability and excellence of his work in this department as well as his excellence in other departments of the school." Zimmerman has been captain of Company D in the R. O. T. C. this year. Arnold Koepke was appointed honor student in the military department last year, and was the first to have a ring put on the staff of the R. O. T. C. colors.

2 COLLEGE GROUPS PICNIC

Oregon and O. A. C. Cabinets Spend Week-end on McKenzie River

Hikes, fishing, marshmallow roasting, business, devotional and discussion meetings were features of the Y. W. C. A. week-end party spent at the Marion Veatch and A. R. Tiffany cottages on the McKenzie. Last Saturday afternoon was given over to the consideration of the part the association can play in the procuring of world peace. Those who made the trip from O. A. C. were Miss Gladys Taylor, general secretary, Edna Readen, Mildred Forrest, Avis Smith, Margaret Wells, and Ella Anderson, the latter being members of the O. A. C. cabinet. Those from Eugene were Miss Dorothy Collier, general secretary, Miss Louisa Davis, assistant secretary, Mrs. George Bohler, chairman of the advisory board, Mrs. Bruce Giffin, and the following cabinet members: Helen Addison, Edna Largent, Glenn Frank, Emily Veazie, Marjorie Flegal, Mary Parkinson, Katherine Watson, Alice Tompkins, Alice McCurdy, Lelaine West, Grace Tigard, and Jean McKenzie. Miss Alice Brown, northwest field secretary, was also present.

There's a Hint Here--- We know a fellow that went on a picnic last Sunday. You know what kind of a lay Sunday was; well this bird had a good girl and he had a borrowed Indian blanket and he might have had a good time—but he was sort of absent minded, or ignorant, or goofy, or something and now the girl wishes that he would jump into the Willamette and drown— Know why? He forgot to come down to the Peter Pan and stock up on those salads, sandwiches, pies, cakes and pastries that are so sure to make a picnic a big success. Peter Pan Walt Hummel, Prop.
