UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, EUGENE, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 5, 1922.

NUMBER 2

FIRST ASSEMBLY HELD TODAY IN MEMORIAL HALL

Class Meeting Arrangement Is Explained; Faculty March in Group

FROSH SIT IN BALCONY

Juniors and Seniors to Use West Entrance; Others Go in East Door

The first assembly of the new collegiate year will be held today in the Woman's building, and will be the first student assembly to be held outside of Villard since 1885, when that building was completed. The keynote of the assembly will be the launching and explaining of the ten million dollar campaign, which is the amount to be raised in the next ten years for the purpose of erecting new buildings, creating endowment funds and caring for other University needs.

A delegation of prominent insurance men headed by E. M. Strong, and representing the state chapter of the national Association of Life Underwriters will be here. The members of that delegation are interested in the campaign and are representatives of the leading insurance companies.

The program will consist of numbers by the glee clubs, Oregon songs, and three addresses, by President Campbell, Lamar Toozie, and John MacGregor, student body president. Oregon yells will be given, and assembly will close in the usual way, by singing Mighty Oregon. Invocation will be given by Rev. J. M. Walters of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Seating Arrangement Explained
The seating arrangement in the Woman's building for the assembly will be substantially the same as in Villard hall. The freshmen boys will sit in the balcony, while the members of the other classes will be ushered to their places by the Oregon Knights under the direction of Jimmy Meek.

The juniors and seniors will use the west entrance, and the freshmen and sophomores will go to the east door on the north side at the front of the stairs. Members of the faculty are to use the entrance on University street, and will go through Alumni hall to the sun room, where they will gather and march in a body to their places in the assembly room. The exits will be made in the same way, thus avoiding the usual congestion.

The assembly will begin and close on time. It is expected that the assembly today will be one of the largest of the term.

"OLD OREGON" WILL BE PUBLISHED MONTHLY

Alumni Magazine Will Now Use Cuts, First Time in History; Other Changes Made

"Old Oregon," the alumni magazine of the University, will make its first appearance as a monthly publication, about the eighth of this month, with Miss Grace Edgington, '16, as editor, and Miss Jeannette Calkins, '16, as manager. This first issue of the year will be devoted principally to the $10,000,000 gift campaign launched to aid the growth and improvement of the University.

In addition to its change in frequency of appearance, this year, Old Oregon is to carry cuts on its cover, and to show a change in typographical style. This is planned in order to make it a more attractive and newsy-looking publication. The cover stock will be changed to a smooth-surfaced paper of white, in order to use the cuts, which cannot be run on a rough paper like that used for the covers of former issues of the magazine. This will be the first time in the history of Old Oregon that pictures will be used on the cover.

Old Oregon expects to use more student news than ever before. Miss Edgington says, "We think the alumni want to know more of the student point of view, and this year we are planning to give it in more detail."

The alumni periodical has been in existence four years. The first two years it appeared four times in the school year; the third year it was published every two months, the fourth year four times, and now in the fifth year it has become a monthly.

It is planned to have the first issue in the mails about the tenth of this month. The second issue will appear shortly before Homecoming, and will be devoted to news of the Weekend.

Smythe Makes Sure No Reporters There Then Makes Address

So rigorous is the high altitude of the Andes near Lima, Peru, that the only insect which lives amidst the peaks that rear themselves into the clouds 17,000 feet above the level of the sea is the "cootie," said Donald Smythe, University graduate, who spoke to the Condon club last night. Before beginning his talk, Mr. Smythe made certain that no Emerald reporter was in the room.

Mr. Smythe described in detail the country of Peru—a fertile land handicapped by the lack of transportation. Mr. Smythe, who decided to take up the study of geology when with the Second Engineers in France, spent one year in Peru with a private corporation, the Cerro de Pasco Copper mining company.

Glaciers near the equator; mine workings so high above sea level that no white man can live in them; the geology of the Andes—these were only a few things discussed by the speaker. Mining in Peru is still in its infancy, said Mr. Smythe. Nearly any mineral can be found in that country.

Mountain sickness in the high Andes is hard for humans to overcome, said Mr. Smythe, who recently returned from South America. There are no birds living in the lofty mountains. Pneumonia is the only sickness known among the mine workers. One of the few animals which lives in the high altitudes is a short-eared rabbit which has a bushy tail and elongated whiskers.

DO-NUT BASKETBALL LEAGUE SOON STARTS

SCRUB TEAMS WILL ALSO BE FORMED

Do-nut basketball will get under way Monday, October 16. Basketball coach Bohler requests that each living organization elect a representative, who will attend the first meeting Tuesday, October 10, at 4:15 in the men's gym. The system of scheduling games will be discussed at this time and the different representatives are asked to bring in any new ideas that they have regarding the arrangement of the league.

The time of the games will be the same as last year; 4, 5, 7, 8 and 9 o'clock. Each organization will be allowed to use seven men during the season. Due to the late start of school this year the schedule has to begin early and this leaves the houses with only a few days to prepare their men for the hard grind. They are urged to pick their men and start practice immediately.

There will also be a scrub league this year. This league will be composed of players who are not good enough to make the organization team. The scrub teams will be coached by varsity lettermen who will also play with them. The fraternities may draft a player from the lower league, but in doing so they must drop one of the original seven men, so that they will still comply with the league ruling, that only seven men be carried.

Coach Bohler believes that about 300 men will benefit by these two leagues. The games will be played in the men's gym and the outdoor gym.

CAMPUS SCRIBES HEAR DEAN ALLEN GIVE PLANS

Journalism Students Urged to Keep Up Friendly Spirit Despite Loss of "Shack"

The campus journalists old and new, bereft of their former rendezvous, the famed "shack," which was burned last summer, assembled yesterday morn in Guild Hall at eleven o'clock to hear words of advice and encouragement from Dean Allen of the school of journalism and to meet the crew who are to steer the good paper Emerald through the coming year.

Dean Allen recalled to his audience the spirit of comradeship and friendly informality that prevailed last year and urged the new students to develop the old morale in themselves and the old ones to continue in their former interest.

The new Journalism building, which will be a wing of McClure hall, is expected to be finished by January 8, providing bad weather does not interfere or the building supplies are not delayed. Dean Allen said that although the building is only under way, he saw no reason why the school of journalism could not continue to be among the country's foremost. The new building will have twenty-eight rooms for journalistic subjects.

Ralph Casey, a new member of the faculty of the school of journalism, was introduced. Mr. Casey, a graduate of the University of Washington, where he was editor of the college paper and later on the faculty, has also been on the faculty of the University of Montana.

POLICY CHANGES PLANNED BY NEW R. O. T. C. LEADER

Colonel Sinclair Gives Promise To Co-operate With Student Body

EXCELLENT CORPS IS AIM

Schedule of Drill Changed; Unit to Help Campus In Activities

A new commandant for the Reserve Officer's Training Corps unit of the University and new policies on relationship with University student life to the R. O. T. C. unit, are notable changes in the military life of the University for the year just beginning.

The general attitude of the military department toward University students this year, as outlined yesterday by Lieutenant-Colonel William S. Sinclair, who succeeds Major Raymond C. Baird as commandant of the University R. O. T. C., is one of co-operation.

"We are not treating any man here like a six-year-old," he said, "if we can't help the University we ought to get out and I would be the first to start such a move in that case."

The demerit system as used last year has been discarded by Lieutenant Colonel Sinclair and in its stead, the commandant expects the "same conscientious work as is done in the other departments." If a cadet refuses to co-operate with the military department, he may be forced to withdraw. Colonel Sinclair emphasized that he desired to make the military department an asset to the University and a supplement to the various college interests of the student.

Militarism Subordinated

He pointed out that the R. O. T. C. unit is here at the request of the University authorities and not at that of the war department. Lieutenant-Colonel Sinclair said that he realized the students were here for the educational and other advantages of college and not primarily for the military. The military department intends to work upon this basis and accordingly freshmen will drill only once a week for a two hour period, and sophomores will drill one hour a week. Freshmen will have one hour of lecture on military science and second year men will have two.

The new commandant gives as his aim the turning out of a trained battalion of infantry. The first goal is to get the unit in shape for a parade on Armistice day, in which it is expected that the R. O. T. C. will be asked to take part in.

The band is expected to be especially good this year and at the service of the student body for rallies, football games and other occasions when martial music will be wanted. Uniforms other than the official uniform for military parades will probably be worn for these events.

Yell Practice Planned

Another innovation to be sponsored by the department is a fifteen minute yell practice at the beginning of each drill period to be under the charge of yell king Rosebraugh. Students not taking military are urged to be out for these practices.

Members of the military staff this year include Captain F. C. Lewis, Lieutenant M. E. Knowles, both of whom were here last year, and Captain E. G. Arnold.

Lieutenant Colonel Sinclair, who has brought with him to Eugene his wife and two sons, has been attending for the last year the army school at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, where Major Baird, last year's military head is studying in the School of the Line. The new commandant has been stationed not only in the United States but in the Hawaiian islands, where he was acquainted with Major Baird.

The Cadet Major for this year is Don Zimmerman.

TEXAS RUSH RULES NEW

Before any bids are sent out to prospective members by sororities at the University of Texas the dean of women explains the history of the various organizations on the campus and gives the rushes an idea of the obligations of sorority members. This is an innovation. No rushing is allowed during registration week.

U. OF C. HAS NEW EDIFICE

The Student Union building at the University of California will soon be completed, according to the story recently carried in the Daily Californian. A barber shop, cafeteria and soda fountain will be housed in this structure.

ANNUAL INFANT PARADE WILL BE THIS AFTERNOON

Sophomores Assume Kindly Attitude Toward New First Year Class

PADDLES NOT ABANDONED

Frosh President Will Not Be Disturbed According to New Soph Policy

Frosh parade today! At four o'clock this afternoon all freshmen of the masculine sex are ordered to report in front of the administration building without fail, says Tom Hughes, sophomore president. Woe unto any members of the class of '26 who fail to answer roll-call at the appointed time and place, for the class of 1925 will be out in force with "stingin' paddles and husky biceps" to initiate the wearers of the green lid into the ways of the University. Senior cops will be present to see that justice rules and that all shall have a square deal.

The old line of march will be followed. Good condition of the vocal organs will be a requisite while a "singin'" acquaintance with "Mighty Oregon" might be a wise precaution, according to an interview with several of the sophomores. Frosh caps must not be cut down this year or altered in any way. A fee of 10 cents will be extracted at the parade formation.

Hazing Is Opposed.

This year a new spirit is to prevail in the attitude of the members of the sophomore class in relation to the freshmen. In direct reversal to the action of the sophs in years past firm stand is being taken by the Class of '25 on its own initiative, to respect the position of the freshmen presidency and elevate it to an equal place in honor and desirability with other class offices of the University.

Hughes declares that every effort will be made by officers of the class to stop hazing not authorized by sophomore class action and that all "small town" razzing and night mill-racing parties by small irresponsible groups will be rigorously suppressed. Members of the class, generally, feel that the time has come when the University of Oregon is too big to indulge in this type of hazing and are backing the movement. This is the first time that a sophomore class has taken the initiative in this matter.

John MacGregor, president of the A. S. U. O., states that he feels very strongly on the subject and that he shall back Hughes to the limit in suppressing any infractions of this spirit. The president of the sophomores is held responsible for the actions of his class by the student body according to MacGregor.

Council Also Disapproves

Representing the 1925 class on the student council, Donald Woodward asserts that he is heartily in favor with the policies set forth by Hughes and declares they should become traditions here.

Dean Straub, "daddy" of the freshmen, is in sympathy with the movement and stated that it was very gratifying to him that the '25 class is inaugurating the custom without pressure from the faculty. He hopes that the fraternity houses will fall in line and urge their men to run for presidency. The position is one of responsibility and everything possible should be done to get good men to accept the leadership of the entering students and organize them successfully, declared Dean Straub.

The bonfire to be built by the freshmen will be limited to 26x25x25 feet this year. The first meeting of the class will probably be held Friday afternoon.

BEAVER EDITOR NAMED

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Oct. 4.—(P. I. N. S.)—Howard Lewis of Marshfield, a junior in civil engineering, was unanimously elected editor of the 1924 Beaver, college annual, at the junior class meeting. The Beaver this year will be the same size as the 1923 Beaver and the same kind of paper will be used.

PLEDGING IS ANNOUNCED

Kappa Theta Chi announces the pledging of Al Sinclair and Van Sinclair of Eugene, and Kenneth Stephenson of Portland.

Summer Is Gone;—So Is "Flashlight" Read and His Flivver

Gone, gone are the old familiar faces. The summer months have witnessed the passing of another distinguished personage, who though not a member of the teaching fraternity, was known on the campus as Professor Read.

"Flashlight" Read, A. C. Read of camera fame, sometime during the summer vacated the shop which he formerly operated a few doors west of the Co-op store and has left for parts unknown. A tonsorial artist now occupies Professor Read's time-honored photo shop.

Other changes about the campus have also occurred; changes which will more or less effect the student life at the University.

The Campa Shop during the summer to accommodate University patronage has constructed an annex to their establishment which will greatly increase their dining room space. Club lunches or other special dinner gatherings can be readily accommodated in this new dining room annex, according to H. S. Taylor, proprietor of the Campa Shop. During the summer the University Book store exchanged hands and is now operated as the University Pharmacy. Floyd Keeney, the proprietor of the store, is a registered pharmacist.

GIFT CAMPAIGN WILL BE LAUNCHED IN ROSEBURG

Work to Begin at Reunion of "Old Grads" Tonight

The campaign to obtain $10,000,000 in benefactions within the next ten years to aid in providing for new buildings and other development at the University of Oregon will be formally launched by alumni and former students of the institution at a big Douglas county "old grad" reunion in Roseburg tonight.

Alumni, former students and other friends of the University will meet at dinner in the Hotel Umpqua to discuss the endowment projects and lend their aid to the plan.

President Campbell, Capt. Lamar Toozie, '16, field director of the endowment fund campaign; W. K. Newell, who will have charge of campaign headquarters, and others from the University will speak, outlining the need of private benefactions to augment the funds obtained from the millage support.

Besides the foregoing, those who will leave the campus this afternoon for Roseburg to attend the reunion will include Mrs. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Outhank, Mr. and Mrs. Campbell Church, Miss Grace Edgington, editor of Old Oregon; Miss Jeannette Calkins, business manager of Old Oregon; and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph D. Casey.

The Douglas county graduates will be the first group of alumni to formally consider the campaign project, although large numbers informally have agreed to help organize and promote the campaign.

Among the speakers tonight will be O. P. Coshaw, M. S. Hamm, superintendent of Roseburg schools, and Mrs. Frank Liburn, Douglas county alumni.

Gifts to the University in the past few years aggregate not far from half a million dollars in value. These private benefactions, if increased to a considerable degree, will be a welcome and necessary addition to the millage support.

"Ten Million Dollars in Ten Years" was adopted as the slogan of the campaign. The necessity of private benefactions in addition to state support was reported to the board of regents by President Campbell at its meeting last fall. He pointed out then that the University enrollment was increasing nearly 20 per cent a year, while property valuations, the basis of the millage fund, has been for some years nearly stationary.

Besides many new buildings, the University is urgently in need of new books, collections, museum material, research funds, and scholastic funds, President Campbell says.

CALL MADE FOR MUSICIANS

Tryouts for places in the University Symphony orchestra will be held Friday evening at 5 in the studio of Rex Underwood, director, in the Music building. There are vacancies in all departments of the organization, according to Mr. Underwood, who is hopeful that as many as possible will tryout.

Both the woodwind and the brass sections are especially needful of new members. None of the three flutes who were with the orchestra last year have returned to school. Beulah Clark, flute soloist, is at present on a concert tour in the southern part of the United States.

Fewer places are open in the strings but Mr. Underwood expressed a wish that students try out for places there also. "We can always use good musicians," the director said.

OREGON'S GRID CHANGES HELD BEST IN YEARS

Hayward and Huntington Are Confident of Good Showing

CALLISON TO DON SUIT

Washington and W. S. C. Loom as Strongest of Contenders

"We have as good a chance this year for the coast championship in football as we have ever had," Bill Hayward said this afternoon when discussing the strength of the teams on the coast. The material this year is the best that has ever turned out for football at Oregon Coach Huntington says, and believes that with such material as Cog Campbell, the Shields brothers, Chuck Parsons, Rud Brown and Bill Spear the line will be as powerful as any on the coast.

First Game Saturday

The first conference game of the year is slated for Saturday with the Willamette Methodists. Reports from the Salem institution indicate that they are much stronger than last year, and that Coach Bohler is developing a strong line in hopes of holding the Oregon score down. Over 50 men are out for the Methodist team, and they are confident of holding Oregon gridsters to a low score.

Cog Campbell, a 210 pound boy reported for his first practice last night, and according to the coaches should de-weeks' practice. Campbell played Rook football at O. A. C. several years ago, but was ineligible here last year because of transferring from the Corvallis institution the year before.

Callison Recovering

Prink Callison is rapidly recovering from an injury to his legs which he received this summer, and will be out in a uniform some time next week. Tiny Shields who has been out in a suit all season, but has indulged in no actual practices is getting over an injury to his back received this summer, and will be in the regular lineup before long.

The stiffest competition for places will come in the backfield, the coaches say, as there are two or three good men for every place. Five lettermen are back for the backfield besides several men from the freshman squad. Chapman, Johnson, King, Latham and Gram are lettermen, while Jordan played on the varsity last year and is getting by big this season.

From the freshman squad of last year come French and Tergeson, both of whom are playing fast ball. French was injured in practice last week, but will soon be back into the game again.

Coast Teams Are Strong.

The coast teams are all strong this year and the coaches have not decided where the stiffest game will come from. Both Washington and W. S. C. are being rated high by fans, and the homecoming game here with W. S. C. November 11 promises to be the real thing.

The men are going through stiff workouts every night now and an occasional scrimmage serves to liven up the practices. Bart Spellman, line coach, is giving the men good snappy practice in bucking the line, while the backfield aspirants are working at punting, passing and interference plays.

KOREAN COMES TO U. OF O.

Chi Sung Registers in Journalism to Establish Paper at Home

Because he desires to obtain a thorough education in journalism in order that he may later establish a newspaper in his native land, Chi Sung Pil, whose home is in Seoul, Korea, has enrolled in the University of Oregon school of journalism.

Pil comes to the University with junior standing as he was a student for three years at Pacific College, Newberg. At Pacific College he played baseball for three years and was captain and pitcher of the nine in his last year. Born in Pyung Yan, Korea, Pil studied at the Kong Oak school at the capital before coming to America but his parents now live in Hawaii.

"There is no strong nationalist press in Korea," said Pil today, "and the result is that Korea does not exercise the influence in the Pacific world that the nation should. My country needs strong newspapers and well trained journalists."
