Your Team and You

Every afternoon, from three to six while you are cakewalking leisurely down town or perhaps taking a little rest in front of the old fireplace, there is a great football team in the making out there on the sawdust strewn practice gridiron beyond Hayward field.

Every afternoon from three until six for three long weeks that football team has been drilling hard under the direction of Shy and Bart and Bill. The personnel is there for a championship eleven, there is material, abundant and of undisputed excellence of quality. And those boys have the fight, the old and famous Oregon fight.

One thing is needed, and that is the absolute and unqualified support of that team and those coaches by the Oregon student body. At the rallies and at the games the attendance of every Oregon student is a decided factor in the development of the team.

This afternoon the Northwest Conference opens when Shy's gang swings into action against the eleven from Willamette University. The presence of every man and woman in the University is needed out there in the rooting section to help get the team away to a good start.

Throughout the year there will be rallies in the afternoon on Hayward field, when the varsity will scrimmage for your entertainment and there will be other rallies at the station when the Oregon huskies depart to join battle on a strange gridiron.

It's then that you can prove your loyalty to the Oregon you love and help the team win.

The first chance comes this afternoon; let's go!

Lemmy Needs a Boost

A university must have a comic magazine just as it must have a newspaper and in the past two years the Lemon Punch has become one of the best in the whole United States. This year it will be published eight times and will be bigger and better than ever.

The staff should be commended and encouraged and the best that can be done is to support the subscription campaign. There may be praise and favorable comment but that fails to pay printing and engraving bills and unless the whole student body lines up behind the magazine retrenchment may be necessary. The University needs a comic and it needs a good one. In addition to providing clean humor Lemmy is helping to advertise the University. Two thousand subscriptions should be in by Wednesday night.

Say Hello Today

When visitors from other colleges and universities visit the Oregon campus a striking thing that seems to be indigenous to our University attracts their attention and almost invariably they ask how it's done.

That thing is the "Hello," the famous Oregon Hello. People from other colleges simply can not see how we do it and they all like it. The Hello is a part of Oregon, it's more than a tradition, it's an institution and one that must be preserved. When you say hello to another Oregon student you are helping build that institution stronger and greater; you are giving something of yourself to the spirit of Oregon.

The parade Thursday afternoon may not have seemed serious to the new freshmen, but it was their first introduction to some of Oregon's traditions. As time goes on they will learn more of these traditions. They will walk carefully around the seal, at first from respect for authority, later from love for the great university which the seal represents. They will learn not to smoke on the campus and not to sit on the senior bench and will know that Oregon's honor demands that the O on the butte be kept spotless. They will learn to love Oregon and her traditions. It's all a part of a college education.

MRS. BECK PICTURES TRIP

town band and who took her to meet another member of the band who played an Alpine horn and who was "quite delightful." In Switzerland she picked up some unusual and rare bits of folk music.

The impression that she had brought back with her from Italy is one of warm colors—colors in the clotheshanging from windows—for there are no clotheslines in Italy, color in the sails of boats, colors in roofs and flowers, colors everywhere. And moonlight. "I can't remember when it wasn't moonlight in Italy," she said.

There was more than a bit of the element of picturesqueness and romance in her visit in Amalfi, where she lived in an old monastery, up 200 steps from the road, up which they were carried in chairs by men who "puffed all the way."

Passion Play Seen

The outstanding thing about their trip to Germany was the passion play at Oberammergau. Mrs. Beck said that the peasants were the soul of hospitality and absolutely free from profiteering. She lived in the home of one of the peasants.

Illustrative of the remarkable depreciation of the German mark is the fact that board and room and a first class ticket to the play in Oberammergau from Saturday afternoon to Monday morning was 450 marks, much less than forty-five cents in American money.

"The whole trip was so very wonderful and so very easy," said Mrs. Beck. "that after it was over I wondered why I hadn't done it before. It was very unlike our life here, but I wouldn't have changed a thing. Nevertheless I found myself glad to come back and to be back."

"BLACK PANTHER'S CUB"

Ziegfeld's elaborate screen production of "The Black Panther's Cub" with Florence Reed and a star cast is the attraction at the Eugene theater today. It is a fascinating story based on Swinburne's "Faustine" and its scenes for the most part are laid in and about Paris and many of them are extremely elaborate. Besides Miss Reed the cast includes Norman Trevor, Earle Fox, Tyrone Power, Henry Stephenson and others.

EDITORIALLY CLIPPED

A COMMENDABLE STAND

A San Francisco paper has admirably championed the cause of the student in a thoroughly commendable editorial in reected primarily at the wealthy men and women of the state of California. It is an appeal, to those who would be able to benefit education, not to delay their gifts and donations till they die.

Now is the time that their aid will count. Today is the critical time in the University's career. Equipment is inadequate; buildings too few; funds for scientific research pitifully insufficient; salaries of professors and assistants so shamefully meager that men and women of the calibre that students need and deserve are practically unobtainable.

California's growth and development has been and is phenomenal. In the few decades of its existence it has surpassed most of the country's and even the world's greatest institutions of higher learning. It now ranks with the best—but what of the future.

The needs of so great an enterprise are naturally tremendous. At present the financial support of the state is not keeping pace with the necessities contingent upon so great a growth.

This is the proposition. Is the University to progress or retrograde? Is it to step into first place or is it to drop back into the ranks of dispensaries of low grade education? It is bound to be one or the other for a static position is impossible. Today we are growing but the crisis has been reached. What of tomorrow?

Californians take the stand of the San Francisco Chronicle as the first step toward a great awakening throughout the state which will bring the universities directly to the attention of those who can and will come to the rescue.—Daily Californian.

WORKS OF GRADS IN PRINT

Bernard C. Jakway and Virginia C. Bacon Break into Literary Light

Bernard C. Jakway, former student of the University of Oregon in the class of 1901, now in the extension department of interior decorating of the University of California, is the author of a book recently published by the MacMillan company entitled "The Principles of Interior Decorating." Copies of the publication have been secured by the University of Oregon library.

Virginia Cleaver Bacon, who was in the class of 1904 of the University, has written a story, "The Path Treader," which appeared in the August number of Scribner's magazine. Louis Rosenberg, formerly a member of the faculty of the school of architecture has contributed two new drawings to the August number of the Journal of the American Institute of Architects.

STUDENTS GET POSITIONS

gency fund for the association amounting to $52. This fund has turned over twice within the last week so great has been the call for loans.

A plan used by the employment service this year was to send letters to the business men of Eugene, telling them that sixty per cent of the students at the University are wholly or in part self supporting and would be unable to go to school unless the citizens of Eugene aided them in securing employment.

Many occupations are listed as clerking, library work, garage work, piano tuning, stenographic work, show card writing, tutoring, adding machine work, printing, press feeding, carpenter and janitor work.

One hundred applications are yet to be filled.

REGISTRAR'S OFFICE HAS NEW ASSISTANTS

Enrollment Is Handled With Little Extra Help

Four new assistants have been added this year to the office of Registrar Carlton Spencer.

Chief among the newcomers is Miss Leta Sabin who assumes charge of the records, filling the place left vacant by Miss Caswell who has held it for the last four years. Miss Sabin holds a B. S. (H. Ec.) degree from the University of Idaho where she completed her studies in 1921.

Miss Caswell, who has been granted a year's leave of absence, is a sister of Dr. A. E. Caswell, professor of physics. Filling the place left by Margaret Fitzsimmons is Miss Lula Davis, a member of the class of '24. Mrs. H. W. Sims, formerly Margaret Mansfield, former Oregon student, has also been added to the staff.

In addition to these regular assistants, Francis Taylor will occupy the place left by Borden Wood as part time assistant. Mr. Taylor holds a B. A. degree from Pacific University and is at present studying in the Oregon law school.

One of the outstanding features of this year's registration here was the limited amount of outside help necessary. Both the University of Washington and the University of California employ over 300 student assistants to help at registration time. Under the system used by Registrar Spencer at Oregon only two student assistants were necessary this year.

LEAP WEEK PLACED IN HANDS OF SENIOR GIRLS

Dance Tentatively Scheduled for Next Week-End; Class Plans to Have Big Picnic Soon

In the enthusiasm of what President Hal Simpson terms a wonderful year ahead, the senior class at its meeting in the "Y" hut yesterday afternoon outlined its activities for the coming months. "Leap Week," which was instituted last year, is again to be a feature of the class program, and is to be left entirely in the hands of the girls who are planning to have some distinctive dress for themselves.

Del Oberteuffer was appointed the much needed chief of police, while Verne Fudge is to head the committee for the class play. A big senior bust, tentatively scheduled for next week-end is being arranged by a group composed of John Gavin, Ed Thompson, Frank Vonder Ahe, Margaret Beatie, and Ellen McVeigh. In addition to the dance the class hopes to have a picnic this fall, and Ned Strahorn, Johnny Palmer, Marvel Skeels, and Dorothy Chausse are looking into this matter.

The women in charge of senior week are Margaret Jackson, Ruth Fowler, Imogene Letcher, Beatrice Morrow, and Inez King. Those considering the distinctive senior dress are Lenore Cram, Aulis Anderson, Katherine Kaye, and Florence Jagger.

15 TRYOUT FOR ORCHESTRA

About 15 musicians turned out for the tryouts for the University Orchestra, held in the studio of Rex Underwood, director, yesterday evening at five. Among the applicants some promising material was found, Mr. Underwood said, but there are still a number of vacancies to be filled. He asks that still more students apply.

The biggest opening in the organization, according to the director, is in the woodwind sections. "Anything from a piccolo to a bassoon can be used if it is handled properly," he said.

A new plan which Mr. Underwood wishes to try this year will make places for three more saxophones in the orchestra. The plan is to use saxophones in the place of French horns. A drummer who can read music is also needed.

All old orchestra members are to turn out at the first rehearsal which will be next Thursday at 7:30. Others who wish to try out may do so by appointment with Mr. Underwood.

Two rehearsals a week will be held, Monday evening at 8:00 and Thursday at 7:30.

ALUMNI BACKS CAMPAIGN

gon is among the leaders educationally. "In the last two years the University of Oregon has been able to devote $900,000 of millage money to new buildings," said President Campbell. "But enrollment has crept up until it is taking nearly the whole millage fund to take care of the students."

More Funds Needed

The University could use several million, in addition to the millage support, to the very best advantage for new buildings and other developments," President Campbell declared.

"The University, for example, is badly in need of a new library," he said. "The present structure was built to accommodate 600 students, and all its facilities are greatly over-taxed. We require a new auditorium, new accommodations for science buildings, and other physical equipment as well as funds for fellowships and research."

It was because of these needs that the campaign for private gifts was launched, with the alumni in united support of the plan. The campaign, it was pointed out, was in no sense a drive. It is to be a campaign of education, telling the people about the needs of the University.

Hughes Not to Return This Fall Vice President to Take Chair

Tom A. Hughes, president of the sophomore class, left Eugene yesterday morning for Portland, where he expects to be occupied with business until the beginning of the winter term. In his absence the official duties of the executive of the class of 1925 will fall upon the vice-president, Mary Hathaway.

In leaving, President Hughes said that when he came to Eugene this fall he fully intended to register in the University, but due to unavoidable causes he cannot attend the first term. He expects to take up some University courses in the extension division while in Portland.

Hughes arranged to stay over until the Frosh parade was ended so that he could see the yearlings initiated. He does not know yet what his work in Portland will be.
