Oregon Spirit and Football

Loyalty to traditions and support of activities has come to be a part of Oregon. These things go a long way to make up the mysterious something that has been named Oregon Spirit, that Oregon Spirit that being all but undefinable is actually a potent factor in student life. A test of the loyalty for which this University is justly famous comes this afternoon when the varsity joins battle with the husky aggregation from Multnomah Club.

Although the Lemon Yellow warriors have won handily enough two practice games from small schools they face a different proposition today. The injury list is a long one, and Shy and Bart have been hard pressed to get an eleven in the field that could creditably represent Oregon. With the assistance of Trainer Hayward they have done just this and whether Oregon wins or loses they will put up a real fight.

Oregon has an excellent chance at the conference championship this year. The coaches and candidates for the team are putting in long hours each afternoon drilling hard and steadily toward the perfection of a football machine. This afternoon you are afforded an opportunity to see the results of those weeks of work—an opportunity to express by your presence in the stands your appreciation of the grind coaches and men are going through and must continue to go through.

The go with Multnomah this afternoon promises to be a real game, an early-season grid classic, and purely as an exhibition of well-played football will be well worth attending. But it will be more than that for with a galaxy of stars representing Multnomah and a long series of defeats by Oregon to wipe out, a real battle will take place.

This afternoon will also be the last campus game until Homecoming, November 11, and your last chance to see the varsity really in action until that date. The presence of every Oregon student is needed in the rooting section.

Old Oregon

The University should be proud of the "Ten Million Dollar Gift Campaign Number" of Old Oregon which is making its appearance on the campus today. The magazine is not only filled with interesting news for the alumni but is the most attractive ever put out. Credit for the excellence of the publication should go to Miss Grace Edgington, editor, and Miss Jeannette Calkins, business manager.

News is so well represented that the interest of the alumni in the University will be more easily retained. Old Oregon is perhaps the best medium between the University and the alumni and through it they often remain active friends and supporters.

Although "Fire Prevention Week" has not been formally observed on the campus the dangers which are being pointed out throughout the state this week should be emphasized here. Conflagrations have not been frequent at the University, but a fire such as occurred last July is something which the University cannot well afford.

This is "Der Tag" for the thundering thousand.

school in Portland part of the week. Who's Who puts him down, among other things, as a member of the American Society of Zoologists, the American Society of Naturalists, Sigma Xi, Phi Delta Theta, and Phi Beta Kappa.

Dean Rebec Likes Farm
A man who has known great universities, in this country and abroad, is Dr. George Rebec, dean of the graduate school, head of the Portland center of the University, and professor of philosophy on the campus. He received the degrees of A.B. and Ph.D. from the University of Michigan, studied in Germany, and later in Italy; and was professor at his alma mater, Michigan, before coming to the University of Oregon. Dr. Rebec is on leave of absence this year and with his family is traveling in Europe. The dean of the graduate school is another University man with an agricultural hobby. He is the owner of a fine fruit ranch near Medford.

"Timmy" a Regular Farmer
Another professor who brings to Oregon the knowledge of European universities, is Dr. Timothy Cloran, best known as "Timmy." Professor Cloran, who is head of the department of romance languages, received his degree of A.B. from Western Reserve University in 1891. He studied at the universities of Berlin, Strassburg, Paris and Madrid, and, returning to this country, instructed in romance languages at different schools before he came to the University in 1908. Who's Who records the facts that he is a Democrat, Congregationalist, member of Beta Theta Pi and Phi Beta Kappa. It does not mention that, growing tired of seeing nothing much sprout in connection with the well-known young idea "Timmy" has adopted as hobby a vegetable garden, and between classes watches the little lettuce and endives grow and flourish.

Nicknames are said to be a sign of popularity when attached to university professors. Professor James D. Barnett of the department of political science is known to most of his students as "Stiffy." He was born in Cairo, Egypt, and was educated in this country, receiving the degree of Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin in 1905. He came to the University in 1908. Dr. Barnett is the author of a number of works on political science, and is on the editorial staff of the Political Science Quarterly. His hobby is not recorded in Who's Who; but Dr. Barnett finds pleasure and profit in his fruit ranch in the Mohawk Valley, just above Mabel. He spends much of his time there in summer and he had a successful year.

Dr. Schmidt a Traveler
Professor F. G. G. Schmidt was also born a long way from his present home, in Untermeigen, Bavaria. He was educated in Bavarian universities and came to this country in 1890. He received his doctor's degree from Johns Hopkins in 1896, and came to Oregon and the University the year later. He has traveled extensively in the United States as well as abroad. He has been a contributor to a number of scientific journals in Europe and America.

Dean Sheldon Stanford Man
Dean Henry D. Sheldon of the school of education in his boyhood had the interesting experience of traveling in a private schooner from Southern California to the central part of that state. He was graduated from Leland Stanford Jr. University in 1896, and was a fellow student of Herbert Hoover and of Will Irwin. Hoover, Dr. Sheldon says, was not an intimate friend of his, but the two were associated in college politics. He came to Oregon in 1900, along with Professor Stafford of the chemistry department, and Professor Schaefer, now of the University of Wisconsin. With a student body of 180 persons and a faculty of 20, Dean Sheldon was instructor in all of the work in philosophy, education and ethics. He organized the first two courses the University offered in education; there were three students in one, two in the other. Some of the education courses now number over 150 students.

Dr. Smith Likes His Work

Professor Warren D. Smith, head of the geology department, returned to the campus this year after a two years' leave of absence in the Philippines, where he was engaged in geological research. Dr. Smith was born in Leipsig, Germany, and was brought to America as a baby. He got his doctor's degree from Wisconsin in 1906. He was a geologist of the United States Government Mining Bureau in Manila, was geologist with the division of mines of the bureau of science, and from 1907 to 1914 was head of the Division of Mines in the Philippines Islands. In 1914 he came to the University as head of the department of geology. Who's Who puts him down as a member of various geological societies of the United States, of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi. It does not mention the obvious fact that Dr. Smith is one of those fortunate men whose profession and occupation is also his hobby.

adhered to, only the cane rush has been eliminated. Action will start at 9:30 sharp.

Flag Pole Procured

Darkness last night found Kincaid field a deserted place, with only a deep hole and a slender pole to presage the activities of the morrow. Led by "Larry" Cook, of the tradition committee, a detail of Friendly hall frosh chopped down one of the slender cotton woods that overhangs the millrace and this pole is being used today in the flag rush. The pole is about nine feet in height, knotty and with a curved peak. Contrary to the custom of previous years, all members of both the frosh and sopher classes will take part in the flag rush, the concluding performance of the underclass mix. Dean Straub this year will be on the field and it is believed that squareness will be predominant.

The program for the mix as announced last night by a member of the tradition committee consists of the singing in gontests between the women of the two classes, yelling between the men, the tug-of-war, the sand bag contest, the tie-up rodeo, and the flag rush. Art Rosebraugh, varsity yell king, is to be the official announcer; "Bill" Hayward has been named starter for the various competitive events, and "Shy" Huntington is to be the judge.

Mustache Race Begins

An event immediately following the mix which is of great importance to the senior men is the official start of the mustache race, which is to end at Homecoming. Hal Simpson last night announced that all the men would be expected to start the day with a clean shave and that mustaches located today would be amputated by the scissor brigade of the senior battalion. It is probable that the senior force will hold a senior inspection during the progress of the mix.

It is the desire of the senior president and of members of the tradition committee who have arranged the lively program that every student in the University gather around the side-line of Hayward this morning for the one and only underclass mix of the year.

GLEE TRYOUTS MONDAY

Final Tests to Be Given Men at School of Music at 3:30

Final tryouts for places in the men's glee club will be held Monday afternoon at 3:30 at the school of music. The following men are requested to be present for the tryouts: Kuser, Myers, McKnight, Berkeley, Johnson, Palmer, Dick Adams, Sullivan, Leake, Larson, Bunker, Holloway and Piper.

RESTRICTIVE GYM PLANNED FOR MEN

Correction and Recreation for Restricted Students Is Central Idea

A plan whereby men who are unable to take the regular prescribed courses in physical education may be allowed to take restrictive exercises which will be correctional as well as desirable recreation has been devised by the physical education department for men.

According to Harry A. Scott, of the physical education department, little if anything can be done towards correcting the physical disabilities of the 103 students on the restricted list in the allotted time of three hours a week. By the plan he now has in operation each of these men is allowed to participate in some form of sport congenial to himself as well as beneficial.

Scott declares that by this method a man will become interested in some form of exercise which will in time correct his physical defects, as well as afford him interesting pastime after he leaves college. Swimming for example, says Mr. Scott is very desirable form of exercise for the correction of feet deformities. The physical education department, instead of requiring a man to take certain calisthenics which will remedy his trouble, encourages him to swim because this form of exercise is as good for his deformity as any other and he is likely to follow it up after he leaves college.

Men in the physical education department are grouped into four classes, A, B, C, and D. Those men in class A are practically perfect physically, those in class B are in good shape while men in classes C and D are placed on the restrictive list. Examinations are conducted frequently enough to determine whether or not a man on the restricted list should remain where he is, or be advanced on the list, or taken from the restrictive list altogether and placed in a class of men taking the regular courses in physical education.

MRS. PRESCOTT CANS 8000 JARS OF FRUIT

Bushels and Bushels Prepared Each Year for Consumption in Halls of Residence

Mrs. Elizabeth Prescott, who has been canning fruit for Hendricks, Susan Campbell and Friendly halls for the past fourteen years, may be said to hold one of the most important positions on the University campus.

Every year eight thousand half-gallon jars which have been emptied from the previous year are filled with fruits of different kinds. Imagine, girls—having to can sixty-four bushels of peaches or fifty-eight bushels of prunes in one or two days? Can you picture yourself making up eight hundred pounds of grapes into jelly? Mrs. Prescott does this same thing with her corps of workers every summer.

And one never-to-be-forgotten day, Mrs. Prescott ordered seventy-six pounds of pears with the promise of the fruit grower that they would ripen, as good pears should, in a period covering a week or more so they could then easily be taken care of. But what was her consternation to have them all get ripe at once, so the full force of eleven women were kept busy all day Sunday and far into the night canning the full lot of the pears.

Each year forty-one hundred sacks of sugar for canning are ordered and the force is kept busy from June to September caring for the various fruits as they ripen.

After personally supervising the canning this season Mrs. Prescott is enjoying a rest at Newport.

JUNIORS TO SHINE SHOES

Men of Class of '24 Will Raise Funds For Needy People of Eugene

Sometime between now and Thanksgiving men of the junior class will invade the campus with shoe polish, brushes and daubers, bent on giving the foot gear of everyone a shine. Present rank or previous distinction will exclude no one. Even Jimmy Meek, president of the class, will swing a dauber on shine-up day.

Funds raised by the shoe shining squad will be utilized by the junior class in providing a Thanksgiving dinner for the poor of Eugene. Down town shiners declare that they will not compete with the juniors in putting over their worthy program.

FACULTY MEMBERS APPEAR

Editor and Publisher to Show Ground Breaking Ceremony of New Annex

A picture of the University journalism faculty will appear in the next issue of the Editor and Publisher, a New York publication devoted to the interests of newspaper men. The occasion on which the picture was taken was the breaking of the ground by Dean Eric Allen for the new journalism annex now being constructed.

Those included in the photograph are Dean Allen, Dean Colin V. Dymont, Professor George Turnbull, Professor W. F. G. Thacher, Professor Ralph D. Cassey, Professor Robt. C. Hall and Miss Grace Edgington.

VARSITY WORKING

According to reports from Portland have been drilling for an effective defense against this system for some time.

Clubmen Hope for Victory

Oregon has been successful in handing the Clubmen the short end of the score in these annual games for the last three or four years, and the Multnomah men seem to think this is their time to win. Coach Faulk would also be greatly pleased by a victory as it has always been a regret of his that the University of Washington failed to play from Oregon during the years he played on the Husky elevens.

The victory for the Oregon eleven last year was a complete upset of the dope, as Multnomah was expected to humble the Varsity easily, and the memory of that unsavory defeat still rankles, so the visitors can be expected to put out the best line of football they can command.

The officials for the game have not been announced as yet, but according to Graduate Manager Jack Benefiel may be the same as officiated in the game against Willamette last week.
