

DR. BOWMAN TALKS ON COLLEGE LIFE

Moulding of Character Theme Of Lecture by Pastor; Chivalry Stressed

"The By-Products of University Life" was the theme of a lecture given last night in the Y. M. C. A. hut by Dr. H. L. Bowman of the First Presbyterian church of Portland. Character and its development, Dr. Bowman said, is the one great by-product of university life. The university cannot create a man's character but can place around him those influences which inspire him and enable him to develop his own character. It can give him only that environment which will aid in moulding him in nobility and uprightness. Character, its creation and development, depend entirely upon the student. A college diploma is no guarantee of a perfect character and moral standard, he pointed out.

The change from high school to college comes at the most crucial period in a man's life, for it is the change from boyhood to manhood, he said. When a man starts to college, it takes him from the sphere of parental obligations and puts him "out on his own." His college life is the first taste of personal liberty. It removes him from all parental restrictions. Such is really the beginning of a battle for one's own life. There is need for the highest type of chivalry on the campus, Dr. Bowman declared, for the college man is continually confronted by problems which take all his power and courage to solve.

Leisure time was another by-product of university life. The doctor advised every student to arrange his time effectively. There are many leisure moments that we ignore but which we could utilize if we planned on them.

There are two kinds of friendship which Dr. Bowman mentioned. They are the sort which is inspirational to others and that which is the source of mutual inspiration.

The cultivation of the spiritual element in college life is one of the most important in acquiring an education. There is nothing more important, he said, than to cultivate the fellowship with God.

KINCAID STREET PAVING SPONSORED BY Y. W. C. A.

Search for Snow Plow to Clear Away Mud in Front of Bungalow Is Now at End

No longer will fair Y. W. damsels gather up their dainty skirts or lift a disdainful eyebrow at the disgraceful sight before their door. No more will they search for a snow plow with which to clear away the six-inch mud in their path. At last Kincaid street is being paved! In fact, it is almost completed, about one more day of steady work is necessary to finish the laying of the cement pavement.

All last year the Y. W. girls endured the unattractive and disagreeable condition of the street on which their bungalow is situated. They waded in mud until their dispositions were almost ruined, to say nothing of their perfectly good shoes. Finally during the summer some of them decided upon action, the nearest approach to that being in obtaining a petition from the city engineer to have the street paved. After this was drawn up, it was circulated among the property owners and duly signed. When the matter was brought up at a meeting of the council, a property owner was present and the paving proposition was approved.

For a time it was thought that the cement shortage would delay the work somewhat. This difficulty, however, was avoided and a few weeks ago the up-to-the-time visionary pavement began to materialize so that now it is very nearly done. It was exceedingly fortunate that no more rain fell during this time, for no doubt this would have greatly hindered the work. After it is completed, the pavement will need to stand for a month in order to season it for use.

GRASS TO GROW ON KINCAID

Old Athletic Ground Now Being Plowed Will Be Seeded and Beautified

Kincaid field is to be beautified. At present the north end of the field not used in football practice, is being plowed. When football season is over and practice finished, the entire field will be plowed, levelled, and seeded in order to improve the looks of the campus.

H. M. Fisher, superintendent of properties, has several men working on the roof of the "Y" hut and as soon as they are finished the building is to be repainted. The grounds surrounding the hut are to be graded and levelled and shrubbery planted about the building.

FLAW WORRIES LEATRICE JOY

Leatrice Joy almost worried herself into a state of nervous prostration during the filming of some of the scenes of Cecil B. DeMille's production of "Manslaughter," which opens a four-day engagement Wednesday at the Castle. She believed that she had ruined a well-nigh priceless emerald which had been loaned to her from the DeMille collection to wear in the picture.

The emerald, which Mr. DeMille christened "the green temptation" when he purchased it some time ago, is one of the most beautiful specimens of this stone in existence. It's color is the perfect "emerald green" that marks the aristocratic of emeralds. A flaw, common to emeralds in nowise affects its beauty or value.

FILM TO BE SHOWN

A film picturing the life and inventions of Thomas A. Edison will be shown in 105 Commerce building, Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. The film entitled "Benefactor" is distributed by the General Electric company and was brought to the campus by the University chamber of commerce.

GIRL, 13, KILLS BEAR, HER FIRST, IN ALASKA

Adelaide Church, Niece of President Campbell, Tells of Bagging 300-Pounder in Water

"It was the first bear I ever shot, and I was quite excited," said Adelaide Church, thirteen year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Church, Fairmount Heights, and niece of President P. L. Campbell, speaking of the three hundred pound bear she killed last month in Alaska.

"Daddy and I were hunting near Irish creek, about one hundred miles south of Juneau, when we saw a mother and two cub bears fishing for salmon a half-mile up the creek," explained Adelaide, completely absorbed in her story. "We ran quickly through the woods and stopped within one hundred and fifty yards of the bears. The cubs were fighting over a piece of salmon, and the mother bear was still in the stream, while across the creek another big bear was stretched out on a sand bank.

"Shoot at the neck of the one in the water,' daddy called to me. I couldn't see the neck so I shot at the head, and hit her right between the eyes. The little cubs started to run away, one went up a tree, and I was shaking all over, so it took me two shots to kill it. Daddy shot the other cub, but the big bear on the sand escaped."

Mr. and Mrs. Church cruised in Alaskan waters during the summer months as far north as Skagway. They spent several days hunting, but Adelaide was the only one who got two bears in one day.

A Pot of Gold at the End of the Rainbow

A pot of chocolate at the end of the day—why, there's nothing quite like it if the going's been hard and the trail long.

After a steaming hot chocolate and a bit of snack you're refreshed, you're ready to hit the trail again and it won't seem so hard and long if you take a box of Rainbow candy with you.

The pot of gold is only a fable, but the pot of chocolate—well, just try it and see.
