We're Behind You, Shy

The writer of an article in Monday's Eugene Guard declares that if the Oregon team has any fight it is because they have developed it themselves, and not because it has been instilled by Coach Shy Huntington.

Eugene must not forget that she owes loyalty to the University, to its teams and its coaches. The student body is behind Shy to a man. The students believe that he is making a football team worthy to represent the University, even though under the handicap of disabilities.

One of the members of the Oregon team was called "a complete failure." "He tries hard enough, but simply lacks ability to make tackles, get down on punts, or do any of the vital things an end is expected to do," declares the critic.

What the University needs is cooperation, not adverse and destructive criticism. Things have been going rather smoothly. Students have been enthusiastic in their praise of the efforts of the team and of the coaches.

In the interests of good sportsmanship and loyalty to Oregon let's not allow anyone to "crab" the team and the coaches. The varsity is better than it has been for several years and if the University and Eugene get behind it we will keep on getting better as the season progresses.

We're behind you, Shy.

FACULTY ASSISTS IN PARENT-TEACHER MEET

Mrs. P. L. Campbell Receives Ovation on Work for Crippled Children; Luncheon Enjoyable

Campus people were active in making the three day session of the State Parent-Teachers association held in Eugene last week, a success. At the first meeting, Wednesday evening, Dean Fox gave an address of welcome.

Mrs. P. L. Campbell received an ovation from the convention on the work she did for crippled children in Oregon. It was largely through Mrs. Campbell that the present crippled children legislation was effected.

One of the most enjoyable affairs, held during the convention, was the luncheon in the Woman's building, Saturday noon under the supervision of Mrs. Datson. Five hundred guests were served by members of the Women's League.

The convention of the State Parent-Teachers' association will be held in Medford next year.

ANITA STEWART ON AT REX

"A Question of Honor," a First National-Louis B. Mayer attraction, starring Anita Stewart, comes to the Rex theater today. "A Question of Honor" was adapted from the famous Ruth Cross story of romance, adventure and conflict.

The story of "A Question of Honor" stirred up a nation-wide interest when it ran serially in the People's Home Journal a year ago.

ORCHESTRA ADDS MEMBERS

Portland; trombone—Bart Kendall, Redmond.

Applications for places in the "little orchestras" are still being received and so far about 30 people have signed up. Alpha Tau Omega is the latest house to apply for orchestra instruction and have an organized group of six members.

One feature of the University orchestra this year is that no jazz or popular music, by way of a drawing card, will be on its programs. Short trips and week-end trips are being planned to various towns around Eugene which are within easy reach, but no trip has been planned for Christmas vacation because it has proved an inconvenient time for students and audiences are rather indifferent during this season.

Members of last year's club are: First violins—Alberta Potter, Eugene; Margaret Phelps, Pendleton; Gwendolyn Lampshire, Eugene; Jane O'Reilly, Portland; Ransom McArthur, Baker; second violins—Anne O'Reilly, Portland; Charlotte Nash, Portland; Norma Wilson, Portland; Helen Schuppel, Portland; viola—Ralph McClafflin, Boise, Idaho; Claire Collette, Eugene; double bass—John Anderson, Ashland; cello—Lora Teshner, Eugene; Ralph Hoerber, Portland; flute—Genevieve Phelps, Pendleton; clarinet—Grace Potter, Eugene; Bass Clarinet—Frank Dorman, Ontario; horn—Harry Series, Astoria; trombone—Herbert Hacker, Portland.

All faculty and students interested are cordially invited to attend. Members of the society are urged to be present.

IRA RICHARDSON RETURNS

Ira Richardson, field representative for the University extension division, returned yesterday from Eastern Oregon where he has been doing routine institute work in connection with the department here. This tour, which is made in the fall of every year, is for the purpose of discussing general problems of education and for advising the teachers in matters of class room work. Mr. Richardson has lectured to the teachers of Harney, Malheur, Baker, Union, Morrow, Gilliam, and Wheeler counties and after a brief stay in Eugene will continue south to Roseburg where he will speak at a community meeting of the Parent-Teachers' association.

ENROLLMENT IN MOST DEPARTMENTS GREATER

Business Administration Heads List With 400

The schools, colleges and departments of the University of Oregon show a variety of changes in student enrollment from last year's registration in the major departments.

The School of Business Administration has the largest enrollment of 345 men and 59 women, making a total of 404 in that department. The registration in this school, however, is not as great as last year when a total of 425 students was recorded.

In the college of Literature, the department of English has the greatest enrollment of women, there being 219 women and 23 men, totaling 242. These figures are the same as last year's record.

The School of Law, which had an enrollment of 112 last year, has a total of 126 majors. There are 56 students registered in the Graduate School.

The following table, showing the major students in the schools and colleges, is listed to show the enrollment in the University for the year:

Plaintoe Brogues

Just Arrived at Graham's ARE Knocking the Boys Cold.

They're sure the latest dope. Pebble grain, black or tan, with all that snap and dash which makes the college man unhappy until he has a pair. Heavy enough for rough winter wear, but built on lines and of material that would make them ace high at a party. Wear 'em to classes in the day time and to parties at night time.
