Vote Intelligently—Or Not at All

For the convenience of student voters, today's Emerald carries a list of polling places in Eugene. Find out where you are to vote, and do it early in the day. This election means more to the state, and is watched by the nation with more interest than any Oregon election for some time. The campaign has been intense, and the measures proposed involve sharp issues. Not only is the highest state office in Oregon to be filled but representatives of the state in the national congress and state representatives are to be chosen. These men who are running for office have all been telling newspaper readers what they would do if elected. They have for the most part come out one way or another on vital issues.

Voters should know how the candidates stand. They should have read the platforms and the statements and have formed some idea of the fitness of each. In voting today remember to consider the best interests of all concerned. Be sure you know how the candidates stand on questions involved. And, one of the most important things, find out how they stand on education. See that the candidates you vote for are believers in higher institutions of learning.

Indiscriminate checking of names on the ballot is one of the evils it seems hard to correct. Just because one of the candidates happens to be first on the list is no indication that he is first in qualifications. If students are to assume the rights of citizens they must assume the duties of citizens and must vote intelligently. You owe it to the state and to the University to vote, if you are qualified, and to know for whom and for what you are voting.

If you have investigated the measures on the ballot and the aspirants for offices, and if you have come to believe one way or another go to the polls today and cast your ballot. But if you haven't come to any conclusions—if you haven't read anything in connection, stay away, or at least leave measures and candidates unchecked when un-informed about them.

Get Off Your High Horse

"The Oregon Hello tradition is the bunk," says an anonymous member of the faculty, who goes on to tell that since he always does his deep thinking while he walks across the campus, students' "hellos" are an annoyance. He says that the "hello" is perfunctory and that psychologically it is not sound practice.

The fact that this faculty member has refused to disclose his identity is enough. It is just this kind of people who are trying to kill the traditional spirit of friendliness and equality. Acquaintance is one of the first steps toward democracy, and even supposing that the "hello" is not democracy it certainly is one of the first steps toward promoting it. Perhaps if he would cease to argue on psychological grounds and remember that interest in others means a great deal he would see that the "hello" tradition has fostered and will foster democracy on the Oregon campus.

Men not in organizations should attend the meeting of the Oregon Club tonight and arrange for membership. Many college activities are handled through organizations, and the man who fails to avail himself of this opportunity will lose a valuable part of University life. Life in a study room or boarding house becomes monotonous unless there are outside activities to occupy the interest.

The Emerald would like an explanation of the incident in the game here Saturday where the Rook player wore a jersey similar to that of the frosh at the beginning of the second half. The grey-jerseyed Rook, unmolested by the Oregon players, tackled the frosh who was carrying the ball when there were no other Aggie men near. It seems a peculiar mistake to make.

Earle Richardson, graduate of the School of Journalism, is the new owner of the Elgin Recorder. Members of The Emerald staff, once Richardson's co-workers, extend the wish that his venture be successful. His career at Oregon inspires confidence in the outcome.

OWEN MOORE PICTURE SUCCESS

The Hellog theater has another Owen Moore picture; this time it's "Love Is an Awful Thing," which opened yesterday for a three day engagement. Moore has achieved a really remarkable success in having developed the ability to translate to pictures all the good points of the genuine old farce comedies which were quite the rage when Charles Hoyt was producing for the

"THE PIONEERS" IS BACKED

To the Editor:

The opposition to the adoption of the name "Pioneers" for the athletic teams of the University of Oregon seems to rest upon two objections. The first of these might be expressed this way: "We have never had a name; therefore we don't want one now." That is the voice of the reactionary, the stand-patter, to whom all change is of itself objectionable. I think the very small minority who hold this view may be ignored. Any innovation, no matter how intrinsically desirable it may be, will always encounter this obstruction.

The second antagonistic opinion runs like this: "This institution is known as the University of Oregon. If we should adopt a name, we would be in danger of losing the distinction that inheres in the use of the honored name of the institution itself."

That argument is a reasonable one and deserves thought. In answer it may be urged that whether we like it or not, a name may be attached to our teams, and the name may be not at all of our choosing or liking. We have all read newspaper accounts of games in which a University of Oregon team is a contestant with reference to the "Lemon Yellow." Within the last two weeks a story of one of our football games contained references to the "Webfoot" team. The point is that a writer of a sports story is almost compelled to find some other way of designating the team than the repeated use of "University of Oregon."

I would not for a minute urge the adoption of a name that would supplant "Oregon" or "The University of Oregon." But a secondary name, which can be used as an alternate or an occasional substitute is, I am convinced, really desirable. Princeton is none the less Princeton because her teams are called the "Tigers." California loses nothing when her teams are referred to as the "Bears." The "Nittany Lions" as a name subtracts nothing from the identity of Pennsylvania State.

Of course it isn't a killing matter. It isn't worth a plebiscite—nor any further discussion, for that matter. So far as I know, there is no body constitutionally charged with authority to adopt the name. No doubt the student council can do so if it pleases.

I repeat: "The Pioneers" is a good name. In fact, I think it is an unusually good name. I should like very much to see it adopted.

W. F. G. THACHER.

SUGGESTS CHANGE OF COLORS

To the Editor:

Good work! Get a better name. Both "Lemon" and "yellow" are awful. "Green" is not so bad, but still not good enough. Better change your colors. Red and Green or Gold and Green good combinations, or you might merge the traditional "yellow" and green and begin fresh with an acceptable blue.

Plaintoe Brogues

Just Arrived at Graham's

They're sure the latest dope. Pebble grain, black or tan, with all that snap and dash which makes the college man unhappy until he has a pair. Heavy enough for rough winter wear, but built on lines and of material that would make them ace high at a party. Wear 'em to classes in the day time and to parties at night time.

$10.00

is the price—a genuine Slater shoe. You'd pay twice that for the same shoe to an itinerant metropolitan peddler.
