Write-ups are due December 15.

SHIRLEY MASON STARS

"Shirley of the Circus," in which the charming Fox star, Shirley Mason is starred, closes its engagement at the Heilig theater tonight. This is Miss Mason's latest production and it has scored a distinct hit. Miss Mason is seen as a daring stunt rider of a circus and her many startling feats of horsemanship provide thrills aplenty.

COMMUNICATIONS

Letters to the EMERALD from students and faculty members are welcomed, but must be signed and limited to 250 words. If it is desired, the writer's name will be kept out of print. It must be understood that the editor reserves the right to reject communications.

TERMS "SPECTATOR" DUMBELL

To the Editor:
There is not much to say in reply to such a letter as appeared in the Saturday Emerald from "Spectator." Such writers are generally "dumbells;" I mean not to be abusive, but only to try to speak the truth frankly. (Soft music and white flowers, six pall bearers and a hearse.)

Dear beloved brethren, our gymnasium is already well equipped, and plus, so also is our campus. Certain people there are who come to the Oregon campus, who do not absorb, they remain "lumps" in the college, and if they still allow the acid of bitterness to work upon them, and to wear off the naturally rounded corners of their humanity they become "barnacles" and prickly at every approach of student and college life to the "intimacy" of their soul. Such ones in a college community are comparable to the hyphenated Americans which showed up in America during the war. So will these hyphenated University of Oregon men show up when a crisis faces the University, and I am very much afraid that they will show up the wrong way.

One more word we hear much about universities running all men in the same groove. Certainly they do, and the same is true of all great institutions. It is only after you have passed the requirements of the common mould that the fates decide whether or not you are worth pouring into the super-mould.

Finally, friend, remember that the fraternity-non-fraternity question is negligible on this campus. Apply the caustic to your self, and not to society in general. HELLO.

DOES "HELLO" BORE YOU?

To the Editor:
What is going to happen to our cherished "Hello" tradition, unless these fossils, these crepe-hangers, these gloom spreaders, are taken out and exterminated? Fortunately this species is confined to a few self-centered individuals that the University blushing claims. Oregon wouldn't be Oregon without the "hello." Beauty Robison assures us that it is just as hearty, just as full of spirit, as it was when he was here. The "Spectator" should read the communication of the adopted alumnus, who came here a stranger and went away a staunch friend. Why? "It was the wonderful school spirit that was manifested in the friendly 'hello'."

As for the faculty member who is so annoyed by having his noble thoughts disturbed by the democratic 'hellos,' if he will be so kind as to wear a placard, "DON'T SPEAK TO ME—I'M THINKING," the students would all cooperate in preventing this lamentable thing from going on.

"Where College Folk Buy Footwear"

They Have Learned the Fundamentals

Unless California reverses her decision not to play at Pasadena on New Year's day, it seems likely that either the University of Oregon or the University of Washington will be chosen to represent the West against Penn State. The records of both teams are good, and in all probability the winner of the Thanksgiving game will be named to battle against the Easterners.

Sport critics have not been enthusiastic over Oregon's prospects. Until the Washington State game the Lemon-Yellow chance to end the season among the conference leaders was held slight. The early games were won by small scores and Oregon lost to Multnomah by three touchdowns. The varsity seemed to lack the punch. But gradually it became apparent that Huntington's machine was gaining momentum. The game Saturday with the Aggies, and with W. S. C. a week ago leave much to be desired, but go to prove that the team is now finding its stride. If it continues to improve, the chances to defeat Washington and to represent the West will be good.

That the team hasn't shown flashes, but has rather been noticed for its steady improvement in the fundamentals of the game has not been accidental. It was well calculated. The Oregon mentor preferred to keep some of his best men out of the lesser games to allow them to recuperate from minor injuries, rather than waste them piling up a big score. During this time there were a few outspoken championship seekers who failed to realize that the team was being saved for the more important games.

The varsity is just beginning to feel its strength. Under the Oregon system of training and coaching they can go on improving until New Year's day, if necessary. Shy Huntington has been painstaking in teaching his team the fundamentals. They are well schooled. From now on the machine should work faultlessly. The material this year is good, but it could have been spoiled had the coaches been of lesser calibre.

Student support has not been lacking. Practically every person taking work in the University was in Corvallis Saturday afternoon. The big contest of the year will be in Seattle Thanksgiving day. There is no reason why several hundred students should not accompany the team north. Wouldn't it be possible to devise some plan to send the band along? The team is just getting under way. Let's back them to the limit.

The University has expressed gratification at the friendly spirit of hospitality the O. A. C. student body tendered Oregon students in Corvallis last Saturday. The spirit was excellent and was the only way to promote good feeling between the two institutions. It is such things as this which prove that nothing but friendly rivalry exists.

The usual protests against extra penalties for cutting classes on days preceding or following holidays seem out of order. At Ohio State such absences result in cutting the credit in half, according to a new ruling.

Co-eds at the University of Washington have formed a fiancées' club. It sounds like a joke—but why not?

NEWS PLEASES PRESIDENT

Congratulation for Victory Sent to Coaches by P. L. Campbell

"Delighted with news of the victory," Mr. Karl Onthank, Eugene, Oregon: Please convey my heartiest congratulations to the coaches, and each member of the team.—P. L. Campbell."

This message was received from President Campbell, who was in Berkeley, California a few hours after the game Saturday. He left California Sunday night for Kansas City, where he will spend a day with his daughter, Mrs. Sidney Henderson.

President Campbell expects to arrive in New York, November 28, when he will confer with the representatives of the important foundations, such as the Rockefeller and Sage foundations, in an effort to interest them in the University of Oregon Endowment campaign.

THE JOY SHOW

"A factitious feast of frolic and frivolity," is the way the managers of the Famous Georgia Minstrels announce their coming to the Heilig theater Thursday, November 23.

The company numbers over forty people and these sons of joy will be seen in an elaborate production of up to date minstrelsy and vaudeville. The stage settings and wardrobe being compared to a spectacular production. The music both instrumental and vocal is a prominent feature with the company, and the years this attraction has been before the public has given the management ample opportunity to study the public taste.

Seat sale opens Wednesday at ten a. m. at box office.

"REMEMBRANCE" AT REX

Nothing is more American than that national institution, the Thanksgiving Day Feast—nothing, that is, except a Rupert Hughes motion picture. And no picture that Rupert Hughes has ever written or directed is more American than his latest film "Remembrance," now playing at the Rex.

In situation, in characters, in theme, plot arrangement, in details and in titles, "Remembrance" is distinctively American. No other country in the world save the United States could have produced it, and no other author or director in the United States save Rupert Hughes could have written and produced it.
