The Students Are Disappointed

On the whole, the campus is disappointed over next year's football schedule. The only game of importance to be played in Eugene is with O. A. C., according to present arrangements, and the students feel that they have a right to at least two contests of major importance.

Although Washington State was the only big game during the past season on the home gridiron the fact that there were three interesting, although unimportant, games here early made it seem fair enough. And, another phase is that the tilt with the Aggies is easy to reach no matter where it is played.

Next year's schedule, as drawn up by the managers at the recent meeting in Seattle, seems to give Oregon eight games. Of those eight only two are to be staged on Hayward Field, as things now stand. If the Idaho game, the location of which is still up in the air, comes to Eugene, the situation will seem brighter. And of course if a game with Multnomah club is scheduled, the students may be as well off as they were this year. But the schedule doesn't show it, and the fact remains that considerable discontent has been voiced.

It is to be regretted that circumstances seem to prevent bringing a big team to Eugene. The fact that football is so thoroughly commercialized is responsible. It becomes necessary for the managers to consider a great many things in the arrangement of a game. It must always be remembered, however, that fundamentally, football games are for the undergraduate, and that commercialization is a departure from this principle.

In view of the number of teams, distances to travel and other conditions the arrangement of a schedule is no easy task, and criticism should be made with this fact in mind. Too many games played at other than college towns should be discouraged. Representatives should be held strictly to account to the student body. Dissatisfaction should be voiced. And on the other hand, it must be easy for students to see that football must be financially successful, and that sometimes sacrifices are necessary in order that it may be.

Make an Example of One

Numerous cases of petty thievery have been reported from various parts of the campus, and it seems evident from the number of articles stolen that it is a systematic process. No effort should be spared to apprehend the culprits. Make the first person caught an example to the others by punishing him to the limit. There is nothing more contemptible than a petty thief.

ETHEL CLAYTON AT HELIG
By all odds the most spectacular production in which Ethel Clayton has ever appeared, now showing at the Helig theater, is "If I Were Queen." Founded on the romantic novel "The Three Cornered Kingdom" by Du Vernet Rabel, the scenes are laid in a mythical kingdom in the Balkans. Blended with the romantic episodes are several thrilling scenes, one of which is reported to be one of the most gripping railroad wrecks ever filmed.

"THE YOUNG RAJAH" CAST
For "The Young Rajah," Rodolph Valentino's latest picture at the Rex theater, Paramount has assembled a cast which reaches all-star proportions. Wanda Hawley, just completing her featured role in George Melford's production, "Burning Sands," will play Molly Cabot, the American girl with whom Amos Judd (The adoped name of the young Hindu) falls in love while attending Harvard.

ST. CECILIA MASS SUNG BY UNIVERSITY CHOIR

John Stark Evans Acts as Organist and Director; Work of Three Soloists Pleases

The ringing of Gounod's St. Cecilia mass by the University choir again proved one of the successes of the year, when it was given Sunday in the Methodist church. John Stark Evans, of the school of music, was organist and director of the choir.

The soloists for the mass were Madame Rose McGrew, soprano, John B. Siefert, tenor, of the school of music, and John Claire Monteith, baritone, of Portland. "The composition of the mass is extremely difficult, and it was sung by the choir in an admirable fashion," said Dr. John Landsbury. "The freshness and enthusiasm of their voices was especially noticeable, and at the same time the attacks and shading were done in a more mature way. The vestments of the choir made a pleasing uniformity of appearance, and the translation of each part of the mass, from Latin into English before it was sung, by Professor Frederick Dunn, was novel and informative."

PRESIDENT LEAVES FOR HOME

President P. L. Campbell is expected to arrive in Eugene Friday night, leaving the University of Wisconsin Monday night. Last Friday and Saturday President Campbell was at Cornell, and Sunday was a guest of President Burton at Ann Arbor. A wire received from him states that both these visits were most valuable and interesting.

is not merely a surface application of gasoline with a cloth or brush, as some people believe.

Garments are immersed and washed in the solvent which removes imbedded dirt as well as surface dirt.

Steam pressing completes the process, leaving a thoroughly clean, sweet smelling and sterile garment.

Our methods are modern and sanitary.

Keeping Up the Morale---
Put up a bold front these next few days—it will help the looks of the "scandal sheet" when it comes out. There is some sort of psychology about it that the fellow that keeps a smooth, clean face and a well trimmed head has a clearer brain for the proverbial term crisis.
