This Is the Term

Examinations, the grade sheet, and two weeks of vacation always produce their crop of resolutions to study harder and skip fewer classes. And there are those who remember their resolutions after the first week. But the average student settles back into the routine and straightway forgets any inspiration vacation meditations may have given him. It is not until the end of the term looms right ahead that he thinks seriously of his dust-covered resolutions—and then it is too late. Resolutions are formed for the next term—and the cycle begins anew.

In addition to providing an extra opportunity for a new start there is one other advantage for the three-term plan. It provides one division of the college year which is comparatively free from demands upon the student's time. There is no football schedule with its accompanying parades and rallies, and the weather is such that the mill race and afternoon strolls along the river are not universally popular.

If the college student is ever going to do any work, this term provides the opportunity. If the resolutions cannot be lived up to during this term they never can be. Students who fail to make good grades this quarter probably will be lower than ever in the spring term. Conditions are more favorable to study than at any other time, and if results are not better it is the fault of the individual.

Under the semester plan the beginning of the first semester and the close of the second were filled with demands from outside which are not felt in the present winter term. Practically the only non-scholastic activities provided for the coming three month period are basketball and social affairs. However, neither takes up as much time as the fall and spring activities. Hoop contests are held early in the evenings, which provides time for study after the games are over. Now if never before, interest in scholarship should be foremost.

When scholastic standards are being raised it is the fittest which survive. Nothing means as much as a good start.

Many students have been compelled to miss classes due to transportation difficulties and their exemption from payment of late registration fees is only just. Since they have been held up through no fault of their own, instructors should cooperate in every way to help them make up the work. A late start is hard to overcome and unless there is general leniency some of them lose out.

Now is the time to demonstrate to our new students that we have a custom of saying "Hello" to each other.

WASHINGTONIANS TO DANCE

Plans have been completed for a game at the army. All students are invited to come. Good music has been provided and the Washingtonians promise a good time to all who attend. The affair is in charge of LeLaine West of this week following the basketball and Wayne Meek.

HELEN CAPLES JOINS FACULTY AT ALBANY

Oregon Student Is Head of College Music Department; Is Highly Praised by Critics

Helen M. Caples, former student in the School of Music at the University, has been selected as head of the Albany College conservatory of music by the board of trustees.

Miss Caples has studied music under Mrs. Jane Thacher, of the University of Oregon school of music; David Campbell, brother of President P. L. Campbell, and former student of the Ellison-White conservatory in Portland; Thielo Becker of Los Angeles, one of the greatest pianists on the Pacific coast, and Caroline Alchin, teacher of harmony, of Los Angeles.

Miss Caples has had about ten years teaching and concert experience and her numerous press notices indicate she has no mediocre ability as a teacher and pianist. The Oregonian says of her concert at the Little Theatre in 1915: "Her playing shows unusual vigor, poise free and strong." Again in 1917 she appeared and the Oregonian says, "Miss Caples again proved herself to be a pianist of above the ordinary both in merit and performance—her playing shows brilliance, daintiness of touch and variety of tone coloring." In 1920 she appeared in concert in the ball room of the Multnomah hotel and press reports stated, "The list of numbers selected for rendition were noted for strength, magnetic style and virility."

NEW MARY PICKFORD IN "TESS"
 Mary Pickford in her new "Tess of the Storm Country" has taken this city by storm! Devotees to this star in particular and the cinema in general have been taxing the capacity of the Castle theater at every performance since the opening Wednesday afternoon. There is no doubt as to the wisdom and good judgment of Miss Pickford in selecting this triumph of the past as worthy material for the making of a still greater film.
