

GIFTS AND LOANS AID ART STUDENTS

Friends Respond to Appeal of University for Help; O. A. C.
Sends Student Drawings

When fire last August destroyed the arts building, the normal arts department was left destitute of material. This was the situation faced by faculty and students at the opening of the first term in October, but they went to work with what materials they could find, make, or borrow. Gifts and loans were made at the first of the year, and are still coming in, which help to relieve the situation somewhat.

Gradually the gap left by the fire is filling up. Friends from widely separated cities are still responding to the appeal of the University for help until a sufficient quantity of material can be obtained.

Miss Maude L. Kerns, head of the department of normal arts, has announced that four loans and eleven gifts have been received recently. They are especially welcome, since they supply a particular need in that department.

Student Work Loaned

Prof. F. D. McClough of O. A. C. has loaned a set of student drawings and paintings consisting of about a dozen water color still-life paintings, pencil drawings, and landscape gardening designs. In all, there are about a dozen mounted sheets in this collection. It will be posted later in Professor Schrott's office for exhibition.

A design folio was loaned by N. B. Zane of Jefferson high school, Portland. Miss Margaret Widmire of Eugene loaned a brass kettle and a tea kettle for still-life painting. She has also made gifts to this department earlier in the school year. An iron kettle, also for still-life work, was loaned by Mrs. Lucy Abrams, head resident of Alpha Sigma sorority.

These loans are made until sufficient reference material can again be collected to carry on the work.

A gift from the Southern Branch, University of California, Los Angeles, consists of about three dozen sheets of student work, practically covering the art course of the Southern Branch.

Many Gifts Received

Mrs. Richard Wells of San Francisco has given a book of European textiles. Samples of textiles for pattern design were received from Mrs. Martha Chambers, and textiles or lace were given by Mrs. Emma Stevenson, both of Eugene. Mrs. P. L. Campbell presented the department with samples of Paisley textile weaving and hand woven linen.

A brass candlestick is the gift of Mrs. Marshall and Mrs. Keiffer of the Anchorage, and a beanpot and old copies of the Delineator, containing art material, were received from Mrs. T. B. Hendricks of Eugene. These gifts are useful as still-life objects.

Two money gifts have been sent from Seattle, Wash. Miss Clara P. Reynolds, supervisor of art in the Seattle schools, gave $5, and Miss Grace Denny, professor of textiles in the home economics department of the University of Washington, also gave $5 toward replacing some of the lost material.

For the time being, the normal arts department is located in the Woman's building, but will be moved into the new arts building when that structure is completed.

A. hut. Mr. Dirksen will talk on "Rambling in Persia" and will attempt to tell the customs and ways of living in that Mohammedan land.

Eleanor Houk, an American Indian, will give a recitation, and a representative of Austria will give a violin solo. The treasurer will make a report. All members are reminded to bring their term dues at this meeting.

hope on the defensive work of Crawford and Bryan, their veteran guards, and in the scoring ability of Lewis, a forward of last year's teams. They will be without the services of "Heinie" Sielk, last year's center. The choice of the pivot man will probably fall on Chuck Frankland, a sub from last year, but Hesketh, from last year's frosh, has been showing up well this season and may get the call. The other forward berth will probably be held by Frayne, who has been playing there steady this season.

Oregon Lineup Stands

The Oregon combination which will probably start the Washington game is the one which has worked so successfully this season. Although Latham has been playing wonderful ball this year, he has not been able to ring his usual number of long shots. To offset this, however, Zimmerman seems to have developed into a veritable "sliker" at long shots.

The Varsity suffered somewhat for the victory over Idaho, for most of the team are suffering from injuries now, the worst being that of Russ Gowans,

None Seriously Injured

None of the injuries seem to be serious enough to keep any of the regular lineup out of the game, although they probably will not be able to get their regular workouts in preparation for the game.

Following are the comparative scores of Oregon and Washington:

Order of O Football Men Plan Dances
for Winter Term

Several social events, chief of which will be a dance given in honor of the Order of the O football men, were planned for the winter term by several members of the football squad who met Thursday afternoon in the men's outdoor gym. The group composed of a number of football men who did not succeed in making varsity letters, was organized last fall with Moe Sax as president. The organization was completed to promote a better spirit of cooperation and friendship between the Order of the O men and members of the second team.

Committees appointed to make arrangements for the affair were: hall and date, Bert Gooding and Stark Akers; music, Jack Myers; refreshments, Joe Ellis. It is planned to give the dance on or about February 1 when an open date can be secured from the so-
