PORTLAND RETAILERS WILL ARRIVE SUNDAY

Merchants' Three-Day Convention Will Be Supervised by Faculty of School of Business Administration

The Portland delegation to the State Retail Merchants association will arrive in Eugene at 4:30 Sunday afternoon on a special train which has been provided them. Registration of all delegates will be carried on at the Eugene chamber of commerce Sunday. This part of the work is being done by the association and not by the school of business administration.

Beginning Monday the merchants will attend classes conducted for their benefit by members of the school of business administration faculty. The convention will be in session for three days. There will be no division of the convention into groups for the various classes but all will attend in a body. The work has been divided into half day periods with two classes scheduled for each period.

Seniors will have charge of a number of the classes in the school of business administration in order to give faculty members the opportunity of devoting their time to the convention.

"GARRISON'S FINISH," CASTLE

One interesting "set" in "Garrison's Finish," showing at the Castle, is a complete home, exterior and interior, which was built on the closed stage of the Pickford-Fairbanks Studios. Surrounding this neat structure was a fine verdant lawn through which winds white gravel pathways. All were completely finished and furnished and much of the action takes place in these.

In order to round out the continuity, an exact replica of the judges' stand of a prominent eastern race-track was built on the lot.
