Paper Supposedly Published by College Students Quotes Upton Sinclair

Madison, Wis., March 1 .- "The Scorpion," a four-page publication, calling itself "A political newspaper, published fortnightly by a group of students at the University of Wisconsin," appeared on the campus on February 9.

It declared itself "Not recognized as a University publication" and did not name its editors, but printed its office address. The first number carried articles criticizing various aspects of the university, and reprinted two chapters from "The Goosestep," a new book by Upton Sinclair. There was much talk in the newspapapers about "expulsion" of the editors. Noaction has been taken by the faculty, however, because the publication so far contains nothing for which students are ever disciplined, authorities declare.

The Y. M. C. A. has plans for a new building which would contain "social rooms," a cafeteria, as well as an auditorium. This building, like a Students' Union would presumably be erected on the campus. Its purpose and existence would be parallel to a Students' Union, and so, whichever building comes first, one will be a duplication of the other. Which means that the erection of a Y. M. C. Dean Dyment, Who Served Overseas During War, Is Asked to Help to Get Soldier's Fund

A reminder of war days has recently come to Dean Colin Dyment of the college of liberal arts in the form of a letter from a woman in Bloomdale, Ohio, who writes that a small girl there is unable to get $10,000 which was left to her in the shape of a war insurance policy, on account of a mistake in the spelling of her name on the policy.

This friend of the little girl asks the dean if he can recollect any information concerning the generous soldier which will clear up the difficulty. Dean Dyment served for several years as Upon one thing there is unanimous officer in the intelligence department

It is all the outcome of historically inclined bozos rooting up the muck in the Valley of Kings for the preserved hide and bones and kitchen utensils of one Tutankhamen, branded as the halfwit, high scepter swinger of Thebes, in the valley of the Nile.

Now we ask you, gentle reader, would you consent to having some one muss for the general public to gaze upon in some open place?

In the first place you wouldn't get by very heavy. By the time you would be ripe for the debut, your raiment would be a mess of shambles and they might run you in as a wobbly or a knight of the ties. That is where Tutank had it on us. His trappings were soaked in a conglomeration of cow horn, whale oil, and nearly dead eggs, a combination that would keep the elements at bay until the world bumps into the Pillars of Hercules.

Without doubt you wouldn't like to have some bird with a muck stick break up your slumber, by telling you to roll out and prepare for the parade to the museum. Well then, think of "Tank." He may have another year to pound the feathers in his sarcophagus. Again he may be jerked before that time to appear in a one act play before the rude, leering public.

Wrath Is Predicted Put yourself in the old boy's shoes (sandals to be exact) and think how you would act if a gang came in and told you to "rise and shine." What would you do? You'd rise right up out of your limestone bunk, grab your jewel studded mace, paste the intruder on the conk, roll over and dream about how you and Asher-Jaser-Ter-Bousky used to play marbles in the alleys of Thebes.

Think of poor old Tutankhamen. His slumber is about over and he will soon face the public. Pity him. His crockery is to be spilled all over the globe and blundering people of the times will come to stare at him. But then the along the Nile.

HONESTY POLICY PREVAILS

Iowa State, March 1 .- "Honesty is the best policy," is one of the unwritten mottoes of the Iowa State students.

Recent investigations at the College Inn and the College Book Store have disclosed the fact that very little money has ever been lost by business men in trusting a student. Many apparent evidences of dishonesty such as making out cheeks on banks where the issuer had no funds and signing wrong addresses was attributed to carelessness on the part of the student. Ninety-five per cent of the instances in which the above happened were redeemed by the students concerned, according to business men.
