NUMBER 136

ANNUAL CAMPAIGN UNDER WAY WITH FOUR ASPIRANTS

No Candidates Yet Announced For Office of President of Student Body

FRASER IS OUT FOR EDITOR

Velma Farnham for Secretary; Freda Goodrich, Margaret Skavlan for Oregona

It is not probable that candidates for president of the A. S. U. O. will be scarce, but as yet no aspirants for the position have announced themselves. Rumors are plentiful and prospects seem equally plentiful. It is expected that one or more of the contenders for the chief executive's position will throw his hat in the ring within a day or two.

The annual campaign is fairly under way, however, with the announcement of Edwin Fraser for the editorship of the Oregon Daily Emerald, Velma Farnham for the secretaryship of the student body, and Freda Goodrich and Margaret Skavlan for the head of the Oregona.

Speculation on the possibilities for the presidency of the associated students runs high, but there is nothing more than rumor to substantiate any of those mentioned. James Meek, who has been continually talked of as a possible contender, has as yet made no statement. Another who has been mentioned is Claude Robinson. Robinson is also silent in regard to throwing his hat in the ring. Art Rosebraugh, when interviewed by an Emerald reporter last night, characterized talk of his candidacy as mere gossip. "It's the first I had heard of it," said Rosebraugh.

Fraser's Hat in Ring

Edwin Fraser, who has declared his intention of running for editor of the Emerald, is at present sports editor of the paper. He has served two years on the sports staff of the publication and is a junior in the school of journalism. He is a member of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic fraternity and of Kappa Sigma.

Other contenders for the editorial position are not at all unlikely and in all probability more candidates will be announced today or tomorrow. The race for the head of the daily is always an interesting one, due to the abundance of material. A four-cornered race had been considered a possibility, but it is not at all certain at the present time.

Velma Farnham, the first candidate for the office of secretary of the student body, is now editor of the Oregona. Miss Farnham has been active on the publications while in college and was on the Emerald staff before her duties on the Oregona took so much of her time. She is a junior and is a member of Kwama, Tre Nu, Theta Sigma Phi and Gamma Phi Beta.

Two Out for Oregona

A race for the editorship of the Oregona is assured by the entrance of two candidates in the race. Freda Goodrich, the first to declare her intentions, is a major in journalism and has been a member of the staff of the Oregona this year. She has been on the staff of the Emerald for two years and this year acted as daily news editor. She is a member of Theta Sigma Phi, women's journalistic fraternity, Sigma Delta Pi, and Alpha Chi Omega.

Margaret Skavlan, who announced her candidacy late last night, has also worked on the staff of the Emerald for two years and the staff of the Oregona one year. She has been identified

OREGON - O. A. C. HOLD TUG-O-WAR

Strange Teams Used in Corvallis Contest

Once, perhaps, the tug-of-war was listed among the inter-collegiate sports indulged in at Oregon, but it long ago died out. From O. A. C., the other day, though, came news that the sport has been revived, and that already several contests between the school down the valley and the University of Oregon have been fought out. The announcement will be a surprise to close followers of Oregon's fortunes on the athletic fields, but it seems that the college was represented by proxy.

The tugs took place, not on the O. A. C. football field, before cheering crowds, but in an O. A. C. poultry yard, before a class in chicken raising. And the contestants—were thoroughbreds from the poultry farm.

Each member of the class is raising a batch of chicks in an experiment. It being essential that those belonging to different students not get mixed, Diamond dyes were used to solve the problem, and the yard blossomed out like a seed catalogue.

Certain prospective poultry farmers devised the scheme of painting their babies Lemon-yellow, and Orange and Black.

Immediately the chicks became saturated with Oregon Spirit and Beaver fight, respectively, and the first angworm that wandered into the yard was drafted into duty as the rope for a tug-of-war. As yet all struggles have been impromptu, and no record has been kept of the results.

YE TABARD INN EXCELLS OTHER NATIONAL UNITS

Literary Fraternity Produces Many Prominent Writers

Sigma Upsilon, national honorary literary fraternity, recognizes Ye Tabard Inn, Oregon chapter of the organization, as the most active unit of the fraternity in the United States. "The whole fraternity is interested in the work of Ye Tabard Inn," writes E. J. Erwin, president of Sigma Upsilon, in a letter to Gene Whitten, head of the local chapter. "More than any other chapter, Ye Tabard Inn has succeeded in sending out men who have achieved things in the literary world," said Mr. Erwin, who is so interested in the Oregon chapter he has asked Whitten to compile a history of the organization. This information will be passed on to the other chapters for mutual aid.

Ye Tabard Inn was installed on the Oregon campus as a chapter of the national organization in October, 1915, and since that time W. F. G. Thacher, professor in the department of English and instructor in journalism, has been largely instrumental in directing the activities of the group of writers. One of the charter members was Edison Marshall, who in recent years has won national recognition as an author of short stories and novels. Charles Alexander, of Albany, a writer who sells his stories to some of the best known magazines in America, is an honorary member of the local group. Ernest Haycox, one of the active members, is now writing for national publications. Robert Case is another former Oregon student, a member of Ye Tabard Inn, who is in the writing game. Wilkie Collins, former instructor at Oregon who has written several books, is an honorary member of the University chapter also. Many of the members are engaged in magazine and newspaper work at present.

Faculty members of Ye Tabard Inn are W. F. G. Thacher and Melvin Solve. The student members are Leith Abbott, Phil Brogan, Monte Byers, Harold Evans, Lawrence Hartmus, Ep Hoyt, Claire

JUNIOR CLASS TO LAUNCH PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN TONIGHT

Mysterious Stunt Promised by Varsity Vanities Manager; Fun in Store

WEEK-END REPORT BOOKED

Question of Campus Clean-up Also Likely to be Brought Up at Meeting

Members of the Junior class are destined to get a thrill and perhaps a few laughs tonight when the mystery feature of the Varsity Vanities advertising campaign will be aired by the committee in charge at the first Junior class meeting of the new term, scheduled for 7:15 in Villard hall.

"This stunt is different from anything that has been tried on the campus and we want the wholehearted cooperation of the class in making it a success," said Ted Baker, vanities manager.

The Vanities show is developing into a work of professional excellence, according to campus critics who have viewed it. Considerable attention has been attracted on the campus by the presentation of several of the songs from Imogene Letcher's "Mummy Mine" musical comedy. The fact that an Oregon girl has achieved such a success in this line of work has obtained considerable press comment in the newspapers of the northwest.

In addition to the divulging of the advertising stunt the class will discuss various phases of Junior week-end and Doug Farqu, general chairman, will make a report to the class on the progress of the plans. There will probably be an airing of the campus clean-up question. An opportunity will be given for both the traditionalists and the group wanting the clean-up eliminated from the campus day to express their views.

Reports indicate that a large number of high school students have already signified their intention of visiting the campus during Junior week-end, May 18 and 19. The committee in charge have every item of preparation well in hand and the chairman is exceptionally anxious that the class as a whole know exactly what has been done in order to assure complete class support.

SEABECK CONFERENCE DRAWS OREGON WOMEN

Annual Meeting is Scheduled for June 26 to July 6; Y. W. C. A. Takes Charge of Arrangements

The Seabeck conference, one of the most interesting events of the year for University women, will be held from June 26 until July 6 this year at Seabeck, Wash., according to announcement made yesterday by Florence Buck, in charge of arrangements for the affair. Twelve University women definitely decided to go, and many more have expressed interest in the conference and stated they may attend.

Seabeck conference is open to all college women in Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana. The work to be taken up this year will include lectures on Christian fundamentals, lectures on foreign work, and discussion groups of the women who attend. Among the speakers will be Judge Florence Allen of Ohio, the first woman to sit on the supreme bench in the United States. Dr. H. L. Bowman, clergyman of Portland, will also lecture, having charge of the Christian fundamentals work.

The mornings are devoted to the lectures and discussion. Afternoons are given over to all forms of recreation and sports. Included in the list of sports for this year are tennis, swimming, golf, rowing, hiking and baseball. Seabeck is near Seattle on Hood's canal on the Sound.

It is planned to have various meetings and picnics for the women who intend to go to Seabeck, said Miss Buck in order that plans for the conference may be made. A committee has been appointed to arouse interest in this conference. Members of this committee are Eugenia Zeiber, Helen Darling, Margaret Phillips, Elizabeth Rauch, Phyllis Coplan, Edna Largent, Portia Kidwell, Ruth Powell, Virginia Keeney, Virginia Pearson, Catherine Spall, Margaret Livesley, Doris Parker, Margaret Boyer. Everyone interested in the conference is urged to see some member of this committee or sign up at the Y. W. Bungalow.

The 12 University women who have definitely expressed their intention of going are Mrs. George Bohler, Mrs. William M. Case, Miss Dorothy Collier, Louise Davis, Helen Andrews, Charlotte Winnard, Marian Linn, Elizabeth Phelps, Mary Clerin, Edna Largent, Florence Buck and Eloise Buck.

Lorna Coolidge to Star in Spicy, Barrie Production

Cupid-Plugged Professor in Play Seeks Shelter from Sickness, But Heart Only Becomes Harbor of More Archer's Arrows

Lorna Coolidge whose last successful appearance was made in "Come Out of the Kitchen," will play the part of Lucy White in "The Professor's Love Story," James Barrie's comedy, which will be produced by the University Company and Professor Fergus Reddie on Wednesday, Thursday, and Saturday nights of this week. The title role will be played by Mr. Reddie, and Charlotte Banfield will take the part of Agnes, the sister.

The play is rich in comedy, rich in human feeling, and technically perfect. It is on the same high level of artistry that has marked the Guild Hall productions and the work of the University Department of Drama and the Speech Arts. The last play, La Malquerida by Benevise was a decided step forward in attempt and a higher level gained in achievement.

The story of the professor is not an unusual one but is unusual in its treatment. The professor, failing in health supposedly, in love in reality, decides to leave the town for a rest and all unknown takes the object of his affections and the cause of his discomfiture along with him in the person of his secretary, Lucy White. Lucy, however, is not the only one who admires the professor and compli-

ORCHESTRA WILL GIVE HOME CONCERT FRIDAY

Leading Campus Musicians To Be On Classical Program

The University of Oregon Symphony Orchestra will appear in its annual Home concert at Villard hall at 8:15 next Friday, in a program of classical selections. The soloists appearing with the orchestra are Miss Alberta Potter, violinist, and Mr. George Hopkins, pianist.

During the Easter vacation the orchestra toured the Coos Bay country, playing five towns. This is the second trip that the orchestra has made to the harbor, the first one being three years ago. The last trip was very successful, all the newspapers of the harbor speaking favorably of the orchestra's performance.

University students in all the towns were active in creating interest in the concerts, and large audiences attended each performance. The orchestra more than made expenses on the trip. At each town where the organization appeared, students and friends threw open their homes, so that ample accommodations were furnished for the care of the members of the orchestra. The people in all the towns showed an excellent spirit in their relations with the students comprising the personnel of the orchestra.

This is the fourth annual trip that the orchestra has made. Besides the two trips to Coos Bay towns, the orchestra has also toured Southern Oregon, and last year made a very successful trip through Eastern Oregon and Southern Washington. The trip to the harbor this year included Marshfield, Bandon, Coquille, Myrtle Point and Reedsport.

Miss Alberta Potter, violinist, has made four trips with the orchestra as soloist, and has received admirable press notices wherever she has appeared. The Portland Oregonian has published a very favorable criticism of her work. For the Home Concert she will play the "Fantasie Appassionato" of Viouxtemps.

All of the selections on the program are new to the campus and some of them are very difficult. The "Concerto in B-minor" by St. Saens, for piano-forte and orchestra, is especially difficult, having most complex rhythm. This composition requires for its proper rendition the use of two pianos in addition to the orchestra, a combination which is very unusual.

"Carmen Suite No. 1," by Bizet, and selections from the "Firefly," by Friml and "Pagliacci," by Leoncavallo, comprise the rest of the orchestra part of the program. A string trio will also be a feature of the concert.

Tickets for the concert next Friday night may be obtained for 75 cents at the Eugene music store, Kuykendall's drug store, or the Co-op.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Meeting of Organization representatives Wednesday evening at 4:15 in the office in the Men's Gymnasium to discuss changes in intramural program.

FIRST GAME LOST TO IDAHO SQUAD BY SCORE OF 4-3

Seventh Inning Rally Results in Four Runs; Many Errors Made by Oregon

FITZKE PITCHES NICE GAME

Second Contest of Series Will Be Played This Afternoon on Kincaid at 4

Hard luck coupled with a flock of errors in the seventh inning cost Oregon the first baseball game of the season against Idaho yesterday afternoon, the score finally standing four to three for the Vandals. All four tallies came in their part of the seventh, which has always been considered the lucky inning for the Lemon-Yellow tossers.

Hunk Latham lived things considerably in the Oregon half of the seventh by cracking the second ball that Idaho Pitcher Fitzke offered, for a four-bag hike and put Oregon only one tally in the rear. This tally was not overcome though for although Tiny Shields went in as a pinch hitter and got to first, Fitzke kept things well in hand and was at no time in danger in the last two rounds.

Lefty Baldwin for Oregon shows worlds of improvement over his work of last season and allowed but four hits which is pretty fast work for this time of the season. Most of the Idaho men seem to be southpaw batters and Lefty had them eating out of his hand till the unlucky seventh came along and spilled the dope.

Pitcher Works Well

Fitzke, the Idaho football star, took care of the mound for the Gem state men, and did a good job of it. He seemed to consider all bunts his meat and nipped practically all Oregon's attempts in this direction by his snappy work in getting the ball to first.

Dinty Moore, who was put at short for this game, proved his mettle and handled the hot ones with a sureness that gives him a good chance for a regular berth on the squad.

The only other new man on the Oregon team was Cook, who played his position behind the bat well for his first Varsity game. Bill Sorsby, Roycroft and Doug Wright took care of the outfield in great shape and grabbed everything that came their way.

Second Game Today

The second game of the series is slated for this afternoon at four o'clock and should be good judging from yesterday's score.

Oregon	Idaho
Ross, 2 b.	Stiver, s. s.
Roycroft, c. f.	Klefner, 2 b.
Svaverud, 3 b.	Cobley, 1 b.
Wright, 1 f.	Snow, c. f.

FRESH TENNIS NEEDS MEN

Only ten men have reported for Freshman tennis, according to Harry Scott, who is in charge of tennis this year. It is urged that men wishing to try out for the Freshman team report as soon as possible in order to allow for an elimination tournament. If enough interest is shown, games will probably be played with O. A. C.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Faculty soccer will be dropped unless more of the faculty turn out. Tuesday and Thursday at 4:30 sharp.

Golf Proves Attractive Sport To University Girls' Gym Class

By Mary Lou Burton

Probably at some time in her life every woman on the campus has gazed at a golf girl on the cover of the Saturday Evening Post, with her skirts blowing gracefully in the wind, with her becoming sport hat and sport shoes, and a bag of golf sticks slung nonchalantly over one shoulder; and every girl has, in her inmost heart, considered that she herself would look rather picturesque in golf togs. Perhaps she has even gone further and seen visions of herself being presented with a trophy at some tournament, the green field sunshiny behind her, and a group of admiring friends forming a semi-circle in front.

Playing golf, however, requires something more than good looking golf stockings. It requires persistence and time, and enthusiasm, and money, and many are those who have fallen by the wayside in their good intentions to take up this sport. However, there are always a number who have energy enough to stick, and at present 18 girls are taking golf for credit, according to Carolyn Cannon, who teaches sports in the women's physical education department. These girls practice in the men's gymnasium under the direction of Meryl Shaver, and play at the Eugene Country Club once a week.

The Country Club has made a special ruling concerning students, who are considered out of town guests. This means that by paying a green fee of 50 cents each time, the students have the privilege of playing on the course, a privilege which is usually confined to members of the club.

Should other University women desire to take up this really splendid exercise, says Miss Cannon, they can have

Traditions of Oregon Campus Guarded by Student Council

Article No II STUDENT COUNCIL

Which Oregon traditions shall be fostered? Shall any be permitted to die through neglect or abolition?

Student Council is the official body at Oregon which decides upon that important matter. For instance the present Council will pass upon the question, which has been discussed pro and con on the campus for the past few weeks, of whether or not the junior class shall abolish Campus Day as a regular part of the Junior Week-end program.

Frequently such problems arise, and it is the fifteen students who are elected annually to Student Council who decide whether a tradition is worthy and should be maintained or whether or not it has outgrown its original purpose and become a burden.

As the University grows in numbers, such problems become more complex.

Traditions are violated more frequently than in the past, when the student body was smaller, and each individual took a more personal interest in student body affairs. It is therefore imperative that representatives be elected to Student Council who have the most wholesome attitude toward Oregon democracy and the preservation of Oregon ideals, because students and alumni alike will look to this body to see that worthy traditions are respected and observed.

Other duties of Student Council are many. One committee cooperates with the University health service. Another is responsible for the University vesper service. Student Council assists and advises the yell leader, who was recently admitted to the group, in the direction of rooting and rallies, looks
