Now and Forever

Two days of deliberate reflection on the Bovard-Bohler controversy bring a realization that the question must be settled now and forever. The differences between the office of the dean of the school and the coaching staff have done more to arouse discontent among the alumni than any other factor. As long as the antagonism bursts into flames at frequent intervals the state will extend little support to University athletics.

Bohler merely stands for the present varsity coaching staff. The issue is not between Bovard and Bohler, but it is between Bovard and the varsity coaches. If Dean Bovard does not reverse his decision to oust Bohler it will naturally follow that the others are to go. Perhaps the University could replace them. But the issue should be made clear. Student sentiment on Bohler has little weight. Is there any reason to believe that it would for any of the others?

When Dean Bovard became head of the School of Physical Education he undertook a difficult task. He was given an opportunity to put physical education on a definite basis. It was a broad program and it was not at all easy to introduce. Now, doughnut sports are on a sound foundation. More men are taking part in athletics than ever before. Another dean might have recognized varsity sports as a stimulant to intramural games. Bohler has been asked this spring to coach varsity baseball, freshman baseball—and to cap the climax to do outside work other than doughnut baseball. It is too much to ask one man to do. Bohler has the intramural program at heart and realizes that he can do more for it by turning out winning varsity teams than in any other manner. If the dean's policy is to prevail the campus must realize that the other coaches will soon follow Bohler. In the interests of the University and of her athletics one faction or the other must go.

By Way of Explanation

Due to a misunderstanding on the part of an editorial writer for the Sunday Emerald the last issue carried a short article upholding the Junior class and the student council for the abolition of the Campus Day tradition. The appearance of the article was entirely accidental. The Emerald still contends that the action of the council was a mistake. It still contends that some day Oregon will awaken to find herself shorn of her traditions and her individuality.

Eventually, Why Not Now?

It was with the convenience of the students in mind that the new plan of paying fees was devised. A great deal of the value of the scheme will be lost if everyone waits until the last day or two. And besides, the business office has announced that no matter how long the line the windows go down at three o'clock on May 7. Pay them today.

DR. WHITE VISITS CAMPUS

Sociologist to Meet Students Interested in Christian Work

Dr. Lynn T. White, professor of Sociology in the Presbyterian seminary at San Anselmo, California, will be a visitor on the campus on Wednesday and Thursday of this week according to Bruce J. Giffen, student pastor of the Presbyterian church.

He will meet a group of women at the Anchorage on Wednesday evening at 6 p. m., and on Thursday he will meet the men at the Y hut. Dr. White will be glad to talk with any students interested in specialized training for Christian work.

The institution he represents is the only Presbyterian institution for training west of Omaha.

Mr. Giffen asks that not only Presbyterian students, but any interested in this field, make an appointment to meet Dr. White at some time during his stay in Eugene.

The normal flower of this kind has a round stem, topped by five of six blossoms. This specimen has a stem one half an inch wide, equal to seven ordinary stems, but not thicker than a single one. Seventy blossoms are carried on this broad stem.

EDISON MARSHALL TO HUNT

Noted Writer and Friends Leave North for Aleutian Peninsula

Campbell Church, accompanied by his son and Edison Marshall, left Friday for a bear hunt on the Aleutian peninsula southwest of Alaska in the Bering Sea.

The Kodiak, an exclusive Alaskan bear and the largest known kind in existence, is to be their game. These bears are light brown in color, high shouldered with massive heads and shaggy coats. In addition to hunting, Mr. Marshall will get local color for his next book.

FAMOUS SCOTCH COLLIE ACTOR

Included in the all-star cast of "Mighty Lak' a Rose," the Edwin Carewe production for First National, now at the Rex theatre, is Jean Bronte, a Scotch collie, who bases her claim to stardom on the many pictures in which she has played an important role. Those who watched her performance in her last picture, "Moonshine Valley," called her a real star, almost a human being.

Jean, seeing herself on the screen for the first time after the making of "Moonshine Valley" was quite excited. She barked and ran from one to another of the group assembled to watch the picture, then settled down to watch her shadowed self intently, growling now and then at the mystery of the business.

B. A. PICNIC POSTPONED

The Mayday picnic which was planned for Wednesday afternoon by the school of business administration has been postponed indefinitely. This action was taken Saturday by the committees in charge, when it was found that too many campus activities conflict with the date set for the picnic. No time has been set for the event.

PROFESSOR MCKNIGHT ILL

Professor J. J. McKnight of the school of business administration, has been ill at his home for the past week. He was threatened with pneumonia, but is reported to be recovering.

BISHOP REMINGTON IS TO SPEAK AT VESPERS

Athletic Minister Will Deliver Mother's Day Address

The Right Rev. William P. Remington, Episcopal bishop of Eastern Oregon, has accepted the invitation of the University vespers committee to deliver the annual Mother's Day address here Sunday, May 13.

Bishop Remington is serving his first year in Oregon, having come to this state in 1922 from North Dakota to take charge of the territory formerly under the supervision of the Right Rev. Bishop Robert L. Paddock. Bishop Remington is credited by newspapers as being a man of varied and perhaps unusual interests for one in a ministerial position. He is an athlete, who has approached world records in the high jump, running broad jump and hurdles. If he is not pitching for a baseball team he prefers second base to any other position.

Bishop Remington is said always to have taken his religion with him when entering an athletic contest. In 1900 he was one of the all-American team entering the Olympic games at Paris, where he is declared to have created something of a sensation by praying before entering a certain event.

The Bishop is interested in the work of the American Legion, having served six months overseas as a chaplain during the war. He is an advocate of playgrounds and public recreational movements, believing that they can be used to safeguard our modern system of civilization if properly directed. He is also interested in international civic clubs. Sunday schools are another of his hobbies, one of his first steps since assuming his new duties having been to strengthen the Sunday School organizations in his new field.

TRAINING WEEK PLANNED

Y. W. Cabinet and Council Members Will Take Exam on Work

This week, until Thursday will be known as the cabinet and council training week for members of the campus Y. W. C. A. cabinet and council. All phases of Y. W. work including the study of organization, program and office work will be taken up by the girls. On Thursday a set of sealed examination questions will be given to each girl to write out. The examination papers will then be sent to Seattle where they will be looked over and graded.

The purpose of such a course is to prepare all members of the council and cabinet for next year's work and to give them an idea of what the other Y. W. associations are doing.

WILD ANIMAL PICTURE, CASTLE

Risking their lives at every turn, braving death by ferocious beasts which had never before set eyes upon human beings, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson, celebrated explorers and naturalists penetrated the heart of the African wilderness and for two years photographed at close range wild animals in their natural state. While one turned the camera on a leopard, raging in fury because his lair had been discovered, the other held him at bay with a carefully-aimed rifle. Yet even then there was no safety from the other beasts of the forests which might—and did—steal stealthily down behind them, ready to fight desperately man's unwelcome transgression into their domain. In the bewildering photoplay, "Trailing African Wild Animals," at the Castle today and Wednesday, you will see these fearless beasts of nature as they exist on the plains and in the jungles of the dark African continent.

"STRUTTIN' ALONG" IS TONIGHT

"Struttin' Along," the all-colored musical comedy revue, with a cast of 75 singers, dancers and comedians, including a chorus of 30 beautiful Creole girls, will present its engagement at the Heilig tonight.

Mamie Smith is the star, and her symphonic orchestra is to be the feature of the play. Brilliant costumes, snappy musical numbers and novel scenic effects make the show one of unusual interest.

STUDENT BODY CONTROL OF LEMMY ADVOCATED

Professor Thacher Believes Oregon Comic Magazine Has Passed Probation Period

"The principal reason I am interested in the Lemon Punch," says Professor W. F. G. Thacher of the journalism department, "is that it has been a spontaneous undirected student body enterprise and as such ought to be recognized and encouraged."

Professor Thacher believes that a magazine such as Lemon Punch should not exist very long in connection with such an institution as the University of Oregon unless controlled by the student body, and it is his opinion that the magazine has gone through its period of probation and has justified its existence and that, therefore, the student body should lend its name to it and give it a place on the campus along with the Emerald and the Oregonian.

Professor Thacher thinks that the contents of the Lemon Punch can be improved upon and he says, "My idea is that editorially the Punch, without any preconceived ideas or without imitation should attempt to make itself a distinctive and original medium of student expression, in which there is not only humor, but comment, criticism and satire."

No fear need be felt about finances in connection with the magazine, according to Professor Thacher, who thinks it would not only make its own way but would give a reasonable profit to the student body at the end of the year.
