

OXFORD ASPIRANTS WILL BE EXAMINED

Winner of Rhodes Scholarship
To Be Picked By State
In December

The state examination for determining who shall receive the Rhodes scholarship to Oxford from Oregon for the year 1923, will be held December 8. Colleges and universities will select their representatives between October 1 and October 7. This means that the candidates from the University will be chosen during the first week of the fall term and all students wishing to try out for the scholarship should make their intentions known this spring, according to information received from Dean Dymont's office.

Candidates for the scholarship are given two examinations. They are first examined by the committee for that purpose from their respective schools, and then those chosen from the various colleges of the state are examined to determine the winner. The committee on foreign scholarships of the University consists of Dean Colin Dymont, chairman, Prof. E. S. Bates, and Prof. Donald Barnes.

Subjects Not Restricted

A Rhodes scholarship is tenable for three years and the annual stipend is 350 pounds or about $1,750. No restrictions are placed on the scholar's choice of subjects. A candidate to be eligible must be a male citizen of the United States, must be between the ages of 19 and 25, and must have completed at least his sophomore year in college. A student may apply in the state in which he resides or in a state in which he has received at least two years of his college education.

The qualities which are considered in making the selection of a Rhodes scholar are: qualities of manhood, force of character and leadership; literary and scholastic ability and attainments; and physical vigor, as shown by interest in outdoor sports or in other ways. The University of Oregon has had more Rhodes scholars than any other institution in Oregon, according to Dean John Straub. Two years ago Kirby Miller of the University won the scholarship. He is not at Oxford. Last year a man from Reed College, in Portland, was the successful candidate.

Pacific Coast Represented

Scholars will be elected from 32 states this year. All Pacific Coast states are on the list, while the largest states in the union, such as New York and Pennsylvania, are not represented.

PINOCHLE TOURNAMENT APPROACHES LAST BOUT

Vonder Ahe, Campbell, and Haney Will Play for Championship in Closing
Contest Wednesday Night

Bret Harte might return to the campus Wednesday night for local color for one of his gambling stories. Three flashy miners from the geology department, the glints in their eyes vying with the sparkle of the horseshoe tie pins, loud snorts subduing their strident tones, will shuffle the cards to decide the pinochle champion of the University.

The three best card sharks left in the semi-finals of the tournament are Karl Vonder Ahe, who has won six games and lost three; and Ian Campbell and Ed Haney, who have five wins to their credit and four losses. Vonder Ahe, according to close observers, has been the most consistent player, but the odds in his favor have dropped. The announcement of his engagement may possibly make him nervous and spoil his steady hand, in the theory of the onlookers. Haney and Campbell plan to play hard to prevent the championship from being taken away from Condon Club members, and to keep the prize deck of cards on home territory. Admission of ten cents will be charged to witness the keenest card contest on the campus. Dates are not prohibited, say the promoters of the affair. However girls must present affidavits as to their deafness or wear ear-stoppers.

Dr. Warren D. Smith, head of the geology department, will act as honorary chairman. Don Zimmerman, president of the G and M society, will officiate as acting chairman. Troy Phipps, former pinochle chairman, will be official score keeper, with Phil Brogan, managing editor of the Emerald, assisting.

ELEANOR HOUK CHOSEN AS COSMOPOLITAN HEAD

Plans Made for Picnic; Miss Harkness
To Give Illustrated Lecture at Next Meeting

At an executive meeting of the Cosmopolitan club last Friday, Eleanor Houk was elected president to fill the vacancy in that office. C. S. Pil, president of the organization last quarter, is not in school this term, and Lester Turnbaugh, vice-president was called to act as head of the club until a meeting could be held.

At the meeting last Friday the club made plans for a picnic of the organization sometime soon, and the information was also given out that Mrs. Ione Harkness, senior in the history department, is to give an illustrated lecture at the next meeting of the club, May 8. Her subject will be "Tibet" and she will exhibit curios from many countries. The Cosmopolitan club, as its name implies, has a membership that is representatively world wide for many of the students who belong to the organization come from foreign lands. The club was founded on the campus last fall to provide an organization for the foreign students who have gathered at the University.

Fiery Local Lawyers Expose Fearful Fraud

One thousand dollars is an unusual price to ask for a fountain pen and especially so when it is a well-known make, retailing at $2.50, but Odgen Johnson, law school student, finds that after accepting the pen in payment for some typewriting he is sued for its value by his former employer, "Shorty" Meyers, also a law student. The dispute will be settled in the court of Justin Miller in the circuit court room this evening. And at the same time some of the future powers in the legal world will get some practice in the ways of a court.

Representing Mr. Meyers is Forest Littlefield, and representing Mr. Johnson is Abe Rosenberg, both of whom are delving into the legal details of the case.

"The plaintiff claims that the pen is a family heirloom and that he did not agree to give it to Mr. Johnson as a payment but I will take every step to protect my client from such a graft," said Mr. Rosenberg in speaking of the case.

NINE HIGH SCHOOLS WILL CONTEST AT TRACK MEET

100 Preppers To Compete with Fresh
Runners Junior Week-end; Event
Has Three Purposes

The freshman track squad will have keen competition in the meet to be held on Hayward field Saturday, May 19, when nine high schools will compete with it as a part of the Junior Week-end program. The high schools that will send teams to the University for the meet are Washington, Lincoln, Franklin, Benson Polytechnic, Commerce, Jefferson, Roosevelt, of Portland; Columbia University, also of Portland, and either Mount Angel or Chemawa will compete. Nothing has been definitely decided as to which of the latter teams will enter the meet. Each team will be made up of 12 men. It is probable that the high schools will run off a preliminary meet on Friday afternoon after the O. A. C. and Varsity contest.

The purpose of holding such a meet is three-fold, namely: as a drawing card to attract future University students to the campus; to afford the freshman track team competition; and to foster athletics and physical education among the high schools. Approximately one hundred high school athletes will participate in the meet. Admission will be by student tickets and guest tickets. A crew is working on the north end of Hayward field, getting it into shape for the meet.

PATTERSON GOES TO ORATORY MEET

To Represent The University
For the Second Time
This Year

Paul Patterson for the second time during the school year will represent the University of Oregon at an oratorical contest, when he goes to Moscow, Idaho, on May 24 to compete with speakers from the Universities of Washington and Idaho in the Northwest oratorical meet. Not only did he win the right to go to this contest as a result of the tryouts held in Villard hall last night, but he won the Mrs. Wilson Jewett prize, an award of $40 offered through the public speaking department to the student winning in the tryouts. Other students participating in these tryouts were Ernest Henrikson, Wayne Meek and Kelsey Gullfoil. Faculty members who acted as judges were Dean W. G. Hale of the law school, Dr. J. H. Gilbert of the economics department, Professor Roland M. Miller, also of the economics department, and Professor Melvin T. Solve of the English department.

Is Forensic Manager
Patterson is a senior in the school of business administration and is from Seattle, Washington. He holds an enviable record in forensic activities, having been a member of the Varsity debating squad for four years, forensic manager during this year and the Oregon orator at the Old Line oratorical contest held at Albany the earlier part of this year.

The Northwest contest is an annual event carried on by the University of Oregon, the University of Washington and the University of Idaho. The prize offered by the league conducting the affair amounts to $100. Last year the contest was held at the University of Washington, this year it is scheduled to be held at the University of Idaho, and at the University of Oregon next year. The Idaho representative won the event last year, at which Ralph Bailey, also a member of the Oregon debating squad, went as the University orator.

Interest In Contest Keen
The tryout held last night is the last opportunity for this year that University students in general will have to compete in oratorical work, as the Failing-Beeckman orations scheduled for commencement week, are open only to members of the graduating class. Students at the University have displayed unusually keen interest in oratory this year according to Professor C. D.

Thorpe of the public speaking department, and the prospects for next year are good. Last year he said students had to be urged to turn out for the tryouts, but even then they did not always respond and as a result no one tried out for the Peace orations. This year every tryout has had a good turnout, and many dark horses as well as experienced speakers have come out to the tryouts.
