CONTEST WILL END MAY 15

Bennett Prize of $20 Goes to Best Essay; King Last Year's Winner

Students desiring to enter the Bennett Essay Contest will have ten more days in which to turn in their work, according to Prof. George Turnbull, chairman of the Bennett Essay Committee. The closing date of the contest has been extended from May 1 to May 15.

The $20 prize is given annually, in several universities, by Philo Sherman Bennett of New Haven, Connecticut, and was won in Oregon last year by George King. His subject was "State Government."

"The contest, which may deal with any phase of the principles of free government, should have an especial appeal to students," said Mr. Turnbull, who expressed the belief that majors in political science, economics, history, sociology, law and journalism might well give some attention to this chance to win $20. The essays are limited to 5000 words, and the essays must be unsigned and accompanied in each case by the name of the contributor and the title of the essay in a sealed envelope.

Among the suggested topics are "Tendency toward Federal Regulation of Subjects Formerly Controlled by the Individual States," "Limiting of the Federal Supreme Court's Power to Declare Laws Unconstitutional to Cases where there is a Vote of Seven Members for it," "A Federal Court for the Settlement of Industrial Disputes," "Relation of the Government to the Railroads," "Modification of the Volstead Act to Permit Manufacture and Sale of Light Wines and Beer," "A Uniform Marriage and Divorce Law for the United States," "The Oregon Alien Land Law."
