Shifting the Responsibility

Those who have criticised American college students for lack of culture and lack of interest in learning could well heed the words of Hans Tiesler, University of Berlin student who visited the Oregon campus some months ago, on the completion of his tour. Members of the party of visiting students agreed that most American youths failed to appreciate art and culture. But instead of blaming the students themselves, as is usually the case, Tiesler attributed that condition to the youth of American civilization.

To those who had an opportunity to talk with members of the party while they were on the campus, Tiesler's declaration is especially interesting. It is as follows:

"I have visited some of the fraternity houses at your universities and have seen the stupidest and most terrible pictures upon the walls. That kind of art one does not see in European colleges. Another instance of your disregard for the beautiful was evidenced at the University of Michigan. The day we were there a football game and a symphony concert were both scheduled to take place. The entire student body, with the exception of one fellow, swarmed through the gates of the football field. And to almost every university man, it appears to me, a basketball game is of far more importance than the League of Nations.

"I do not know if it's fair to blame them, for your civilization is comparatively young. You, who are not even 500 years old, have all the riches of the world, but to gain that wealth you have not found time, perhaps to develop a love for culture."

Tiesler's viewpoint is, of course, widely different from that of the American student. It is so different that it is difficult to refrain from accusing the European national of jealousy. Nevertheless, he has been truthful in placing the burden on American civilization rather than upon the college students themselves. His statement is interesting, as the opinion of the outsider.

A Few Facts

The public at times appears to have the delusion that a newspaper is a sort of free publicity agent, which may be utilized without end when the news is pleasant, and which should suppress any item that causes discomfort or annoyance to any particular individual.

The Lantern at times suffers from delusions of this kind among the faculty and student body alike. If a speaker is to come to the campus, those sponsoring his appearance wish a story to be printed about him every day. If there is nothing new to tell, the editor is asked to reprint the former story. The public apparently fails to realize that there is other timely news which must appear in the news columns.

Then there is the other case; when a disagreeable happening takes place, or when an individual word or phrase may cast an implication upon an individual. The editor is blamed for printing the story and maledictions of all sorts heaped upon his head.

The newspaper also has to contend with the person who "does not want publicity," and who refuses to give out interesting and timely news, with the person who holds back a piece of live news for several days and then wishes it given prominence, and with the person who continually wants his name in the paper.

Someone has said that anyone thinks he can run a ball team or a newspaper. The saying, it seems at times, is only too true.—Ohio State Lantern.

SCENES MADE OF CAMPUS

Films of Junior Week-end Activities to be Shown in High Schools of State

Negatives of the film taken on the campus during Junior Week-end were inspected yesterday afternoon by Alfred Powers of the extension division, Jack Benefiel, graduate manager; John MacGregor, student body president, and Claude Robinson, president-elect for next year.

The negatives were selected which showed the best scenes. These will be sent back to Portland, where they will be made into the positive and titled. As soon as they are returned, the pictures will be shown on the campus. The reel will later be sent to different high schools in the state, so that an idea of the campus and activities may be given. Besides Junior Week-end activities, such as the burning of the fresh caps, tug of war, track meet, baseball games and painting of the "O", pictures were taken of Eugene and athletics taken part in by the women's physical education department. Views of spring football practice are included in the reel.

JUNIORS SHOULD FILL OUT CARDS All juniors who are planning to graduate next year should go to the registrar's office before the end of spring term and fill out an "Application for Degree" card. During the summer these cards will be checked up with existing records and when students return in the fall they can find out just what requirements they need toward graduation.

JOURNALISM SENIOR MARRIES Earle Voorhees, who will graduate from the University this June, and Ruth Helene Geisler, ex-member of the junior class, were married Sunday morning, according to word received here yesterday. Mrs. Voorhees was at the

BUSINESS SCHOOL WILL SEND OUT QUESTIONNAIRE

Blanks to be Submitted for Filing Expenses and Statement of Profit and Loss; Merchants to Benefit

The Bureau of Research of the school of business administration has prepared a questionnaire which is now on the press, to be sent out to all the retail merchants in Oregon. The questionnaire is for statistical purposes, and information obtained thus will be compiled for the benefit of the retailers of Oregon.

Blanks will be sent out, providing for filing all expenses incurred, together with a profit and loss statement. A folder containing a simple explanation for answering the questions is included, to insure uniform classification and to make clear the nature of information that is desired.

For the present, the statistics will be limited to retail stores only, but later on it is part of the program of the Bureau of Research to extend this service to all lines of business, according to Miss Malejine McManus, secretary of the school. The information gathered will be strictly confidential, and will be used only for compiling data for benefit of the retailers of the state, in accordance with a request made at the convention of the Oregon Retail Merchants' association last winter.

U. OF C. GLEE CLUB LAUDED

California Artists Furnish Music for University Students

About 200 couples attended the dance and musical entertainment given by the University of California glee club in the Armory Saturday evening. The balcony was well filled with those who did not care to dance. Nineteen men of the California Glee club, which has won renown in Europe as well as America, took part in the entertainment, and a ten-piece band consisting of banjos, saxophones, violins, trumpets and piano furnished music for the dancing and vocal selections.

The vocal selections and vaudeville acts were given between dances and they were enthusiastically received by those present. The Glee club appeared at Corvallis last week and reports from that city show that it was as well received there as here. The men were returning from a northern tour, having gone as far north as Seattle.

JOURNALISM SENIOR MARRIES

Earle Voorhees, who will graduate from the University this June, and Ruth Helene Geisler, ex-member of the junior class, were married Sunday morning, according to word received here yesterday. Mrs. Voorhees was at the University last year and is a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority. For the past year she has been teaching in the public schools of Grants Pass. Voorhees is a member of Sigma Delta Chi, men's journalism fraternity, and is on the Sunday Emerald staff. Last year he was night editor on the Daily Emerald.

GEOLOGISTS TO GIVE PICNIC

Big Event of Evening Is Awarding of Cup to Highest Scholarship Junior

The geologists of the University will hold their annual camp-fire party Friday on the banks of Row river, near Cottage Grove. While the cuisine artists form the camp-fire cooking class are rustling grub for the hungry miners, geology faculty and fair milkmaids of the Pacific coast, the audience will indulge in baseball games and running contests. If the men run short, the feminine guests of the party will be signed up to take care of the outfield offerings.

That night around a roaring campfire, the yarn spinners will reign supreme. Competition as to the best story teller will run high as the familiar phrase, "Well, I remember"—is oft repeated.

The picnickers will leave Eugene Friday afternoon and will drive to their destination. A number of Mazamas from Portland will be guests of the geologists.

The event of the evening will be the awarding of a cup to the junior who has the highest scholastic standing for the year. Another award will be made to the geology major who has attained the highest scholastic record of the department.

CO-EDS PLAY BALL TODAY

Junior and Freshman Teams to Battle on Cemetery Ridge at 5 p. m.

The junior and freshmen women's baseball teams will battle tonight at 5 o'clock on the ridge behind the Woman's building, if the weather is good; otherwise the game will be called on the indoor diamond. The remaining interclass games will be played off this week and the final game between the senior and sophomore teams is slated to come off on the annual field day, which will be June 2. Both these teams have shown up well in the interclass series, the senior ten possessing seven of last year's varsity, while the sophomore battery comprised the varsity's a year ago.

Following is the lineup of today's game:

Juniors—F. Baker, p., M. Alexander, c., B. Garrett, 1b., H. Howells, 2b., G. Murfin, 3b., V. Quinlan, l. s., M. Read, r. s., T. Robinette, l. f., T. Haynes, c. f., L. Quinlan, r. f.

Freshmen—M. Onslow, p., M. Wagini, c., I. Dale, 1b., R. Mac Gregor, 3b., P. Boston, l. s., E. Murphy, r. s., F. Ward, l. f., J. Wood, c. f., B. Razor, r. f.

COURSES TO BE OFFERED SCHOOL ADMINISTRATORS

Specialists Enlisted to Aid in Summer Session

Superintendents, principals, supervisors and high school teacher who come to the campus this summer will find that a special effort has been made to provide courses in education to meet their particular needs. Since the demand for professional courses in summer school is large, one or more specialists are added to the staff of the education department each summer. The department feels particularly fortunate in securing this year the services of Superintendent William J. Cooper of Fresno, California, and Dr. O. J. Johnson of St. Paul, Minnesota.

Superintendent Cooper comes highly recommended as a progressive school man, and has been a member of the summer staff of the University of California. His courses on "The Supervision of Instruction" and "The Principal" represent his particular interests in education and should be of practical value to Oregon school men.

Dr. Johnson is a specialist in the field of intelligence testing, having had charge of this work in the St. Paul schools for several years. Dr. Johnson will offer a course in educational psychology and another in intelligence testing. Both Dr. Johnson and Superintendent Cooper will provide opportunities to a small group of advanced students to do research work.

A new feature in the summer work in education this year is the addition of several courses in methods of teaching high school subjects. These courses will be accompanied by a medium sized demonstration class of ninth grade students in the University high school. Members of the methods classes will be expected to observe regularly the teaching of the high school classes as a practical illustration of the principles of methods. These classes will be of value both to experienced and inexperienced teachers as they will deal in a practical manner with problems of interest in the given subjects: English history and science. Mrs. Margaret B. Goodall, R. S. Dickerson and Elbert Hoskin of the University high school staff will have charge of the methods courses.

Additional offerings in the department include a course in "Educational Tests and Measurements," and a course dealing with "The Junior High School" both given by Professor F. L. Stetson, who will be in general charge of the department during the summer. The annual educational conference in which a number of the leading school men of the state will participate will be held on campus on June 29 and 30. The program for this conference will be announced soon. It is also expected that the principals' club, composed of the principals and superintendents enrolled in the summer session, will be reorganized at the beginning of the summer school. This group of professional workers meets frequently during the summer session for dinners and addresses.

CASTLE SHOW INTERESTING

From his tremendous success on the legitimate stage, Glenn Hunter appears in his first movie, "Youthful Cheaters." Mr. Hunter, as the youthful Merton in "Merton of the Movies," was the outstanding hit of last year's New York theatrical season; now into the movies he brings all his youthful pep, pleasing personality, and remarkable histrionic ability. A more ideal picture than "Youthful Cheaters" could not be found, than this thrilling, jazzing, daring story of modern society life to display Glenn Hunter's winning character. Movie fans after seeing "Youthful Cheaters" at the Castle today, will understand why "Merton of the Movies" was such a success on the stage and will welcome Glenn Hunter to the photoplay screen with their absolute approval.

EUTAXIAN ELECTS MEMBERS

Eutaxian literary society at a recent business meeting elected the following persons to membership: Adrienne Hazard, Mildred Johnson, Helen Cantine, Mary Brandt, Helen Adams, Amelia Burrell, Margaret Boyer, Eloise Buck, Hulda Guild and Shannon Pettenger. The new officers elected for next year were: Florence Buck, president; Helen Atkinson, vice-president; Mildred Craine, secretary; Neva Service, treasurer; Lylah McMurphy, sergeant-at-arms. Eutaxian is the oldest woman's organization on the campus.

MADGE BELLAMY AT REX

Madge Bellamy, who plays the role of the pathetic little elephant girl in Thomas H. Ince's "Soul of the Beast," the Metro picture which appears at the Rex theatre for the last time today, declares that there would be no Hollywood scandals if all screen actresses had the ideal home life that has been her good fortune. The photoplay, "Soul of the Beast," was written by C. Gardner Sullivan and directed by John Griffith Wray, under the personal supervision of Thomas H. Ince.

CORRECTION IS MADE

Contrary to the story running in the Sunday Emerald, the Oregon women's tennis teams tied with the O. A. C. players and were not losers to the visitors. The teams of each college won one-half of the matches, thereby tying the score.

Cake Eater —model of 1900

He was called dude and dandy then, but you recognize the type.

He majored in haberdashery and took his degree with honors in soxology.

As if that were not enough, he evolved some variations on the cake walk which made them stare.

He even found time to develop a remarkable proficiency on the tandem bicycle, and on Saturday nights he was good enough to bring pleasure into Another's life by wheeling away to the "Ten-Twent-Thirt."

To crowd all this into four short years would seem enough for any mortal. Yet in spite of his attainments there are times, in after life, when our hero wonders.

The glory of his waistcoats has long since faded, while his books are still fresh and clean. Did he perchance put too much thought into the selection of his hats and too little in what went under them?
