Individuals—Or a Type?

Everywhere—on every college campus, there is a peculiar type of man. He does not think as one of a type—he thinks he is individual. He prides himself that he is not as other men. He sees that his clothes are somewhat different. And above all, he lets everyone know that his mental processes are far superior to those of his fellows. This type is sometimes called "the intellectual smart aleck," although some have called it the "thinkety-thinkers."

Not content to merely think out loud in the presence of their mental inferiors they proceed to show themselves different in less important acts. They vary in the minor conventionalities merely for purpose of so doing. And by so disagreeing with society—they themselves become members of a type.

Members of this class are not at all pleasant because they insist on presenting their views at every opportunity. They take care to let everyone understand that a distinct personality is present.

And—after all—when you become acquainted with them—after they have forgotten the necessity of impressing you, they are agreeable and perfectly normal. You find that they are not as peculiar as you thought them at first. They seem pretty good fellows after all.

Down in their hearts, members of this class will be elated at the recognition afforded in this editorial.

The Responsibility of the Seniors

"To the senior, traditions have their greatest significance. His feeling toward these events is one of affection. He is experiencing them for the last time. In a few short weeks they will be but memories.

"Perhaps there are those to whom traditions have no meaning, other than that they are 'foolish fads' of college life. To the student, however, there is something impressive about the fact that these traditions have been handed down from class to class and will doubtless continue to be similarly handed down as long as the University may exist."—Cornell Daily Sun.

Today is Memorial Day! Holidays are useless unless there is a general realization of the significance.

LABORATORIES ARE REBUILT

Cement Floor Made in Basement Room of McClure for Research Work

The room in the basement of McClure hall in which a cement floor has been made will be used for a research laboratory, according to Professor F. L. Shinn of the chemistry department. Some of the benches that were taken out will be replaced and the room will be partitioned off to house the heavy machinery of the chemistry department.

Motors, lathes, compressed-air-pump, and woodcutting machinery will be installed in this room. These heavy machines will not jar the building with the new cement floor, but with the old wooden floor they would have caused an annoying vibration.

The new laboratory will not be ready for occupancy until next fall, according to Professor Shinn. When it is finally completed it will release one of the rooms on the second floor of McClure for use as a physical chemistry laboratory. A partition will be run through the room and one part will be used for the balance room and the other for the physical chemistry laboratory.

DR. RICHARDSON GIVES TALKS

Since the first of the year Dr. Ira Richardson, of the extension division, has visited 93 high schools in 32 counties in Oregon. He has spoken to 10,437 students at assemblies and held conferences with 2,077 high school seniors, talking to them about higher education. Dr. Richardson presented to the students the opportunities offered at the University. A pamphlet put out by the University called "Making the Most of Life," was also given the high school seniors. The pamphlet tells how to apply for admission at the University, and the professional and cultural opportunities offered. An idea of expenses is also covered.

The alumni association will be entertained by a banquet and address Monday afternoon.

COLLEGE RESTRICTS USE OF CARS

STANFORD UNIVERSITY—Agitation covering a period of four years has resulted in the framing of an amendment to the constitution of the associated students which provides that only men who have spent more than six quarters in the university may own or operate motor cars on the campus. As all freshmen will room in Encina hall next year, enforcement will be simple. The administration, the athletic interests, and many campus organizations have declared themselves opposed to the automobile as destructive of Stanford spirit if allowed to be used promiscuously by underclassmen.

WINIFRED CHANCE VISITS

Winifred Chance, ex-member of the junior class, visited the campus over last week-end. Miss Chance is moving from her home in Lewistown, Idaho, to San Francisco. She expects to enter the University of California either this or next year.

AIR TRAVEL TOO COSTLY

Speedier Transportation for Extension Lecturers Not Yet Practical

Who knows? Perhaps some morning 10 years hence the field lecturer from the University extension division, may saunter out to an airplane garage stationed somewhere near the extension building, hop into a sky-flying machine and arrive in Portland in time to give an 8 o'clock lecture.

The University school of business administration recently made an investigation relative to the advisability of recommending the acquisition of a passenger airplane to be operated between Eugene and Portland for the purpose of expediting the work of University instructors who weekly make trips to Portland to meet classes in extension studies. It was found that air transportation would cost from $9.59 to $15.46 a trip more than passage by rail.

C. L. Kelly, associate professor in the school of business administration, directed the investigation and secured data from the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America and from several airplane companies. It was estimated by Mr. Kelly that the operating cost of a HS 2L six-passenger plane with Liberty motor, a ship valued at $7,000, for one flying hour would be $29.98. The flying time between Eugene and Portland was set at two hours, or a cost of $59.96. The life of the motor was estimated as 800 hours and that of the plane three years.

The report of the school of business administration stated that the plan for air conveyance for instructors is not practical at present and that the cost is out of proportion to the time that would be saved and the inconvenience that would be eliminated.

POSITIONS FOR STUDENTS

Y. M. Bulletin Board Offers Enticing Prospects for Budding Salesmen

Letters offering enticing positions of every sort to the students on the campus are to be found tacked up in the "Y" hut. Each one expresses the desire that the young man be of desirable character and possess all those things which go to make an ideal salesman. One company wants salesmen who "will easily make $50 a week" soliciting freight bills. Another wants its horse plate to be distributed to the four corners of the earth. Still another writes that there are exceptional opportunities to him who wishes to sell automobile accessories; another a publisher of books desires to start one of the "beloved" book agents in the world with a line on religious literature. Are you clever at selling footwear? Then there is an opening for you with a certain hosiery company.

With this varied array of positions offered for the summer months it seems as though there ought not be any trouble in getting a job with possibilities of making enough money to start the next school year right.

JUNIORS, SOPHOMORES, WIN

Frosh Humbled 27 to 13 and Seniors Lose Lead by Score of 46 to 8

The junior and sophomore baseball teams were the winners in last night's interclass contests. The juniors humbled the freshmen 27 to 13 and the sophomores swamped the senior ten 46 to 8. Thursday the juniors will battle with the sophomores, the last game before the final match, which will be played off during field day, Saturday, June 2. Up to last night's games, the sophomores and seniors were leading in the interclass series and were doped to play the final game of the season. The sophomores have maintained their lead but the senior hitters lacked the ability they have formerly shown in piling up the score.

STANFORD PLANS ALUMNI DAY

STANFORD UNIVERSITY—Undergraduate stunts will be featured on Alumni Day, June 2, which festivities should surprise even the "old grads" into exclamations. Gene Kern, toastmaster at the alumni-only banquet, was one of the best known men on the campus. Class reunions will be held at 3:30 in the afternoon.

DOUGLAS MACLEAN AT REX

Douglas MacLean, star of many past Thomas H. Ince productions, has the leading role in "The Sunshine Trail."

a zippy western comedy-drama with a new twist which is now running at the Rex theatre. The picture tells the amusing story of a doughboy-cowboy who returns from the war, just three years late, to find that his girl is engaged to be married to "the other fellow" in the belief that her soldier-sweetheart is dead. The doughboy, who has been given a fine memorial funeral by his fellow townsmen, is greeted as an imposter when he comes home. After a series of adventures which are both thrilling and amusing, he is thrown into jail. There's a surprise ending that carries a big kick.

FROSH WIN IN VOLLEY BALL

Sport Is Popular Among Girls and Interclass Competition Keen

The freshmen volley ball team was the winner in last night's games with the junior players, the scores of the two games being 15 to 5 and 15 to 9 in favor of the freshmen. So far the freshmen players are at the head of the interclass series having won from the sophomores, 15 to 8 and 15 to 2 in Friday's games. There has been a good turnout for this sport this year, according to Sue Stewart, who with Ruth Tuck has been coaching the class teams. This is the first season that volley ball has been put on an interclass basis for competition. Helen Shapfer and Velma School have been doing very good work for the freshmen six, and Florence Baker has shown up well for the junior team. All class games will be played off this week-end and for Thursday the following games are slated:

Sophomores vs. seniors at 11 o'clock.
 Freshmen vs. seniors at 5 o'clock.

The freshman team for yesterday's games was composed of the following girls: L. Vulgamore, E. Prudhomme, R. DeLap, H. Shapfer, V. School and B. Rauch.

Juniors: P. Pyritz, F. Baker, H. Howells, H. Veazie, M. Read and G. Murfin.

EASTERN FIRM WRITES

Radio Supply Company Has Positions for Qualified Student Salesmen

A communication has been received at the office of the president of the University from an eastern manufacturing firm asking for the names of students who might be interested in becoming salesmen during the summer months, with a possible view to permanent connections with the company. The letter is from the president of the Clapp-Eastham company, at Cambridge, Massachusetts, and explains that the salesmen will be required to have a recommendation from the administration of the University. The company is the producer of "Radak," which is its patent name for the radio materials and supplies which it manufactures.

There are headquarters in New York, Pittsburgh and Chicago as well as in Massachusetts, so that applicants need not go far for their first instructions. Any student who feels qualified for such a position and is interested in it may obtain further information from Mrs. Donnelly, at the Y. M. C. A. hut, where a complete record of similar positions which are open to students is kept.

HERE'S A STRANGE NOTION

When asked who was writing the continuity for "Vanity Fair," which he produced for Goldwyn release, Hugo Ballin replied that William Makepeace Thackeray was performing that task. He also gave the same answer when asked who was writing the sub-titles. Mr. Ballin cherishes the notion that the authors of the classics knew what they were about when they wrote their books and that every attention should be paid to their ideas. "Vanity Fair" will be the attraction at the Castle theatre for two days beginning today. In the cast are starred Mabel Ballin, Hobart Bosworth, Eleanor Boardman, George Walsh, Earle Fox and Harrison Ford.

Student Mistreated for his Views on Free Speech—A student at Columbia University was recently taken out by his fellow students and maltreated for upholding his version of free speech and freedom of the press.

Only the week end and one other night during the week will be open for dates. It has not been decided whether one set night will be fixed or whether just any one night may be taken off.

Glasgow University Man Praises the American Schools—Dr. Herbert Gray who spoke at the University of Minnesota declared that American co-education was a great factor in making better men and women. He said it was also a great factor in making saner and happier marriages. England and France are following the example of America in making their larger institutions co-educational, he said.

Seniors Purchase Canes—The seniors at the University of Michigan are buying canes. The design consists of a shaft with a crooked handle, a silver band with a block "M" and 1923 engraved on it. The fad is completed with a horn ferrule.

Co-eds Seek Careers Rather Than Husbands—In questionnaires filled out by co-eds at the University of Ohio husbands are not nearly so much in demand as are careers. College women there, according to the questionnaire, are planning to be business women and career seekers rather than housewives and husband gatherers.

Now Biggs Gets to Class On Time!

AN exciting tale of adventure might be written about the hunting expeditions Biggs used to make after the elusive cap of his old tube of shaving cream. For months Biggs was late to class because he spent valuable minutes scouring the corners of the bathroom for a cap that persisted in getting lost.

But those troubles are over. For Biggs has started using Williams' Shaving Cream, which comes in a tube with a hinged cap that can't get lost. You see pictured here this cap which saves his time and patience and which will do the same for you.

The convenience of the Hinged Cap would alone be ample reason for your using Williams'. But when you consider that in addition Williams' is good for your skin, and is the most remarkable beard softener known, then it does seem that you would be missing a good deal in getting along without it. Buy a tube and see if it isn't vastly better.

Notice the hinged cap. You can't lose it—and the tube changes up!
