Oregon looks to be the under dog in the conference race when veteran material is considered. Every team, with the possible exception of the Aggies, has a host of lettermen back. At present Washington with a host of monogram men back looms as championship stuff. Bagshaw has spent some time developing his teams and it is about time for him to blossom this year.

Exendine, new mentor at W. S. C., will take up the burden left by Gus Welsch. There will be no change in the system used as Exendine.

Welsch and Lonestar Dietz all played at Carlisle Indian school under the great Warner. Exendine comes to the western college with a good record and his work is pleasing to the Cougar crowd.

Since equestrianism has been added to the curriculum of women's physical education on the campus, we can hope that the next woman champion at the Pendleton Roundup will be a co-ed from the Oregon campus.

Gonzaga is making fast progress in the ranks of Northwest football and looks to repeat this year with a team of veterans and strong material in new students. The Spokane school has applied once or twice for admission into the conference, but their application has been turned down. If they continue the same brand of ball, they will have to be considered.

Hugo Bezdek started the year right with a victory for his Nittany Lions. Hugo used to do the same thing at Oregon when he coached the Lemon-Yellow.

Despite the loss of several big men, Andy Smith is looking forward to a successful season. He has a big squad as usual and there is a good chance of his repeating last year's performance.

BOHLER PLACE UNFILLED TRACK PROSPECTS POOR

planning a track meet in which the men will compete.

For over a decade Hayward has been shaping track teams for the University. Those interested in track may look back through the pages of Oregon cinder history and find the names of Dan Kelly, Walter McClure, Chet Fee, Moose Muirhead, Mose Payne, Elton Loucks, Art Tuck and many others who garnered points for the varsity. Men of the same calibre as these are not developed in a few weeks or months. It takes time and patience and lots of endurance for an athlete to gain perfection on the track and in the field events. "We win our meets in the fall and winter term," is the way Bill sums up the present situation.

Lots of Room on Oval

After gazing at these names of former heroes, we begin to wonder if there are any Kellys, Fees, and Muirheads, hiding around the lounging rooms. There is lots of room on the Hayward oval and Bill has never been obliged to use traffic cops to keep order. It would be pleasing to see at least a century and a half of candidates trotting around the track or working out on the field events.

This dearth in material ought to be an incentive to some of these "moaning Romeos" to do their stuff in spikes instead of patent leathers on the maple.

What Is Certified Milk?

The dairyman who desires to produce certified milk must become a member of the "Certified Milk Producers' Association." In order to become a member of this association he must pay a fee of so much per cow, and his barns and equipment must conform to the standard set by the association. His cows must be free from tuberculosis and tests for this disease must be made at frequent intervals. Having become a member of the association, the dairyman must faithfully follow a set of rules that cover every phase of the production and handling of milk. Finally, the milk must have a bacteria count of not more than 10,000 per cubic centimeter. The term "certified" as applied to milk production stands for production under nearly ideal conditions. The standard is extremely high and the product is necessarily expensive.

Of Portland's more than 150 dairies, only two are "certified," and their product retails at 20c per quart.

Dr. E. V. McCullum, of Johns Hopkins Medical School, says in the July issue of McCall's Magazine:

"By all means use pasteurized milk, unless you have plenty of money and can afford to buy certified milk. The latter is raw milk which has been produced under nearly ideal conditions of cleanliness, from healthy cows, by healthy workmen, and with great attention paid to cooling and promptness of delivery but it is now too expensive to appeal to the majority of consumers."

There is no certified milk produced at Eugene. BLUE BELL milk is clean milk that has been scientifically pasteurized.

It is clean, wholesome and SAFE!
