A Worthy Enterprise

The annual financial campaign of the campus Y. M. C. A. is on. Every man student at the University will be asked during the next two days to contribute toward the support of the organization. Those of us who are informed as to the work of the "Y" will lend our support voluntarily and gladly. Others will naturally ask what the "Y" is doing and why we should back it with our money and our time.

A few of the reasons we may consider it a privilege to lend what aid we can are that:

The campus Y. M. C. A. is an organization of students.

The $800 that is being asked from the students for the year 1923-24 is to be expended by them for upkeep of the building, for printing, phone, etc., and for the expense of bringing speakers to the campus.

The Y. M. C. A. is the only inter-denominational agency doing welfare and religious work on the campus.

The hut is used daily by a large number of men, especially non-fraternity men, as a social center.

The employment bureau, free to all men of the University, helped students obtain, during the past year, 3000 jobs, representing a total earning of $27,000.

Great lecturers are brought to the campus each year for short speaking campaigns. Last year these men were J. Stitt Wilson, Dr. Harold Bowman, and Dr. E. F. Swartz.

The "Y" is the largest student organization in the world.

The foreign students in the University are extended a friendly service, and a real effort is made to bring them in contact with the best in American life.

Oregon's campus Y. M. C. A. is doing a good and a necessary type of work. It deserves support.

Old Oregon—Top-Notcher

The Emerald is glad to welcome its sister publication, Old Oregon, to the campus again. The first number of volume six of this most interesting alumni magazine has just appeared on the campus and promises to maintain the reputation gained last year of being one of the top-notch alumni papers in the United States.

We are especially fortunate in having an alumni secretary who knows Oregon from the inside and out. Grace Edgington has been connected with western educational institutions for a number of years and has gained a remarkable reputation of putting over whatever job she attempts.

Although written for alumni, Old Oregon is so good that for the first time in history students are reading it with real interest. The style is lively and the make-up a pleasing example of what a remarkably good woman journalist can do with her ability. The task of keeping the alumni interested in Oregon is a difficult one, due to the many demands of their business and social life. From what we could gather during the summer from former Oregon students who subscribe to Old Oregon, she is succeeding very well.

In the October issue we liked the editorial page especially. It is a striking justification of woman's place in journalism.

Old Oregon is doing a great work for the University. It will be invaluable in the coming endowment activities. The Emerald is proud to be on the same campus with you, Old Oregon.

One Year Ago Today

SOME HIGH POINTS IN OREGON EMERALD OF OCTOBER 22, 1922

There are now 34 honor societies on the campus, 19 of which are national.

The Columbia-freshman game played yesterday resulted in a tied score of 7 to 7.

Three definite routes—one for sober people only; one around Cape Horn (advice was to take plenty of lunch along), and the other route adapted for athletes, were recommended for those who go from the journalism shack to the composing room.

A war club stained with human blood and a buckskin doll ornamented with hair that once adorned a white woman's head are among a number of Indian relics donated to the University by Mrs. Ada Millican.

The following poem signed Link appeared in today's paper:
Little fossil, whyinell
Did you die and leave your shell
On that Cretaceous ocean floor—
That should have been your proper fate.

Why did you not disintegrate?
That should have been your proper fate.
Then I'd not have to sit up late
To assemble you once more.

CONTEST PLANS MADE FOR OREGON HISTORY

Stories to be Told in Students Own Words of Direct Information From Those Present

To create an added interest in the history of Oregon, the extension division has worked out plans for a local history contest in the schools of Douglas county. Arrangements for the contest are under the supervision of Miss Mozelle Hair, director of organization and administration correspondence.

The first settler in the district, the first home, the history of the school, the first store, when the first orchard was planted, and Indian legends are examples of story subjects to be handled by the students. Stories are to be told in the student's own words and information gathered first-hand from persons present when the incident occurred. Best forms of English will be observed, including clearness, spelling, punctuation and good organization.

The idea of the contest plan originated from a request made by J. A. Churchill, state superintendent of public instruction, that Oregon history, especially local history, be emphasized to the pupils. Mrs. O. C. Brown, rural supervisor, and O. C. Brown, county superintendent of Douglas county, are assisting Miss Hair in the work of the contest.
