Our Pledge to Oregon

The state of Oregon is making it possible for us to obtain an education. Today the Governor of our benefactor commonwealth will be on the campus to administer the annual pledge of loyalty to Oregon.

Assembly attendance is always desirable and usually necessary to a full student citizenship, but today it is a duty. The man or the woman who evades attendance at the pledge day ceremonies gives evidence of a lack of appreciation of our great state and of a shallowness of sentiment.

When Governor Walter Pierce stands on the platform of the assembly hall today let everyone of the University's 2218 sons and daughters now on the campus be there to greet him and to pledge anew their loyalty to a great state, singing:

"Old Oregon, we pledge to thee,
 Our honor and fidelity,
 Both now and in the years to be
 Our never failing loyalty.
 Old Oregon, thy name shall be
 Written high in liberty.
 Now uncover'd stands thy ev'ry son
 A pledge to Oregon."

Out of Bondage, But—

Fellow students, isn't it great to be free?

Honestly now, didn't we all have a feeling of elation as we escaped from parental vigilance and supervision that at times had become irksome?

We sensed in a measure that importance of self, that avalanche of possibilities, that panoramic view of inviting fields of new experiences, that enthusiastic determination to be and to do, and that decision to cut loose from the stable shore line of governed actions and launch out into the depths of life's possibilities—in other words, that sense of freedom our forefathers must have felt when they signed the Declaration of Independence.

But, have we all, as they, accepted the responsibilities that invariably accompany freedom? Have we preserved those unchanging fundamentals, moral, social, economic, that were our guideposts in the old life at home?

Is it too much to predict that our success as educated men and women and citizens of Oregon will be governed largely by the extent to which we hold fast to these fundamentals, especially while we are passing through this period of testing life's experiences and adding our tiny contributions?

Then, and only then, will total freedom be a blessing.

A writer in today's communication column suggests a closed week-end at the middle of each term as a possible way to get more study on the campus. The question in our mind is whether or not students would cooperate with the spirit of the closing. We would like to have some opinions for the communication column on this subject.

COMMUNICATIONS

Letters to the EMERALD from students and faculty members are welcomed, but must be signed and worded concisely. If it is desired, the writer's name will be kept out of print. It must be understood that the editor reserves the right to reject communications.

To the Editor:—

Since the publication of your editorial on the Sunday movie question, in which you suggested that some students who now study on Sunday would not do so if there were a movie, I have heard occasional discussion of just this phase of campus life: the effect on scholarship of "closed" social seasons.

In fact I have heard more than one student say that one or two mid-term week-ends might well be roped off and kept free from social events. The two-week period preceding examinations, already so set aside, is a tremendous relief.

I do not know who set aside the pre-exam weeks. But I wish, whether it was faculty or student, that they would consider the mid-term week-end also. Of course this action would have no effect unless the week-end were as faithfully guarded as the other closed period.

the women's gym. It was a fast game from the start, the Delta Zeta's holding down their opponents with good guard work.

KAPPA SIGMA DEFEATS S. A. E. IN CLOSE GAME

Beta's Will Meet Phi Sigma Pi's Today at Four and A. T. O.'s Will Play Phi Kappa Psi at Five

The Kappa Sigma quintet remained in the race in league B of the Joughnut series by defeating the Sigma Alpha Epsilon five in a close contest, 13 to 10. Both teams worked the ball down well to within shooting distance of the basket. The Kappa Sigs made every shot count, while the S. A. E. shot repeatedly but could not seem to find the hoop.

Fraser and Byers were the shining lights for the winners, while King showed up to best advantage for the losers. The Kappa Sigs ran up a nice lead in the first period and were out in front 9 to 3 at the end of the half. The losers came back strong in the second half and outscored their opponents, but the lead piled up in the first half was too much to overcome. The Delta Theta Phi team failed to show up for the second contest and consequently forfeited the game to the Bachelordom hoopers, 2 to 0.

The games for today:
 Beta Theta Pi vs. Phi Sigma Pi at 4 p. m.
 A. T. O. vs. Phi Kappa Psi at 5 p. m.
