The Four Year Man

The four year student is one of the problems of University life. There are all too many who start and never reach the finish line. They are the ones who have made the mistake. Great are the temptations to turn one's back on the problems and discouragements which accompany a career in college.

Those who have witnessed most grief resulting from students dropping out of college are the living organizations. Their strength is weakened by the failure of the old members to return. It is said that little service or aid is given the organization by the individual until he has attained junior status.

The University being in a peculiar position has difficulty itself in retaining the interest of indifferent scholars. It is within the power of the organization to plant the seed of the "four year idea" in the virgin minds of the incoming classes.

So hammer away, you seniors. Let your final endowment to the alma mater be the revelations made by you to the freshmen and sophomores. Show them how you have struggled, suffered, and endured hardships, and yet how happy you are now to call yourself a four year man.

"Unite to Fight for Oregon"

Of all events in the school year, that of the graduate's return is not excelled in importance. As the welfare of an educational institution such as ours is measured by the integrity of the student body organization coupled with the efficiency of the scholastic curricula, so is it dependent upon the loyalty and support of those who have been graduated from its halls.

Homecoming is less than three weeks distant. The directorate which has in hand the success or failure of the arrangements gives assurance that the plans are all in order and that the program will be successful provided it has the last increment of support from the students.

A significant slogan has been selected for this year's celebration. "Unite to Fight for Oregon" means that each and every Oregon student and Oregon booster must doff his hat to the colors and pledge undivided support to the success of November 23 and 24.

Come, let's unite; and what's more, let's fight. We'll show the grads we are unchanged; we are the same Oregon they knew. We are larger than ever. But our numbers have not weakened our strength.

Let's all work now for the greatest Homecoming. Each man and woman playing his part can serve to perfect the plans. Individual cooperation and work—these above all, will make for greatest success.

RIFLE SHOOTING PROVES POPULAR WITH WOMEN

Captain Murry Says That Only Few Who Signed for Sport Have Dropped Out. Men Lack Interest

Interest in do-nut rifle shooting among the girls is very good, according to R. O. T. C. officials. The girls who have signed for practice have been showing up fairly regularly and only a few, so far, have dropped out of the running.

weather sets in they will probably make up for lost time.

The men are not showing the interest they should show, many of them taking the attitude that they are doing the school a favor by turning out. They are not. The do-nut rifle competition is for their own pleasure and good.

Captain Murray says that the general lack of interest in the shooting is due to the fact that it is not a recognized sport on the campus. Many colleges and universities over the country give the sport minor standing, placing it on a par with soccer, swimming, and the like. He believes that if the University would give rifle work recognition there would be much more interest taken in it.

One Year Ago Today

SOME HIGH POINTS IN OREGON EMERALD OF NOVEMBER 6, 1922

A recent action of the Lane County Creditors' Association has placed Lemon Punch in a more or less of a helpless financial position.

Marie Garnette Swearingen, age 15, enjoys the distinction of being the youngest student in the University.

The Oregon team is yet unchristened. Dean Dymont favors a dignified name. "I do not approve of naming our teams after the birds of the air, the beasts of the field, the reptiles of the water, nor the insects that crawl on the trees," says the dean.

FLASH VIEWS OF THE DOINGS OF COLLEGE FOLK ELSEWHERE

Freshmen women at McGill University, Montreal, Canada, are termed "freshettes" to distinguish them from the freshmen, and wear green bows as an indication of their rank. The men wear red and white headgear.

Every student in the University of California is expected to submit to vaccination for smallpox and typhoid fever or pay his own hospital fees in case of illness.

University of Indiana's memorial fund has almost reached $1,150,000. This drive is being conducted for Indiana's new stadium, Union building and woman's dormitory.

Stanford Chaparral and the Columbia Jester will combine for an issue in the near future. The Jester won the Judge's college wits' contest in 1921, while the Chaparral won it in 1923.

Rex Underwood to the youngster passing with highest average the mental and physical tests, determining the playing capacity of the child.

Pauline was selected from among 26 applicants. Jean Sutherland, 8, and John Caswell, 9, were also chosen to receive a year's instruction.

Underwood is working on an hypothesis by which these children will be tested. He thinks there might be some method of determining the possibilities of a child as a musician by administering mental and physical tests at an early age. The department of psychology gave the mental tests and Underwood himself compared the manual flexibility of the children.

CASWELL BACK FROM TRIP

Former Members of Oregon Faculty Seen During Visit South

Dr. A. E. Caswell, head of the pre-engineering department, has returned from a two-week trip south. He visited Stanford University, San Francisco, Fresno and other points of interest.

While at Stanford, he met Professor Carl R. Douglass, formerly of the University of Oregon faculty. Professor Douglass is at present doing graduate work at Stanford.

Miss Ethel Sanborn is also at Stanford. She had just recovered from a short illness at the time of Dr. Caswell's arrival. Miss Sanborn was formerly connected with the botany department.

While at the University of California, Dr. Caswell was in communication with Don Wilkinson, '23. Wilkinson is at present a graduate assistant in physics at the University of California.
