

VALUE OF UNIVERSITY PROPERTY COMPILED

L. H. Johnson Completes List
After Months of Labor

An inventory of the property of the University of Oregon which has just been compiled under the direction of L. H. Johnson, comptroller, reveals the fact that the institution represents a total investment of $2,329,884 in land, buildings and equipment on the campus. This inventory has been completed after months of labor on the part of the University comptroller, whose duty it is to supervise all purchases made for the institution.

The volume containing figures on the value of every item of property and is enclosed in a heavy binding, owned by the University measures about an inch and a half in thickness. Two copies have been issued, one going to the secretary of state, to whom a statement of the University's finances in this form is due at specified times, and the other will be kept on the campus.

The items in the inventory are segregated by departments, the value of the buildings and apparatus of each being recorded in detail down to the smallest expense item represented by a pencil sharpener or a paper cutter. The copies were made by Gilbert Tyson, local accountant.

Among the significant items which are displayed in this inventory is that of the estimated value of the 33 buildings on the campus, which is $1,500,536, and it is noted that the sum of $563,848 has been expended to date for equipment.

These figures are exclusive of the school of medicine in Portland, the Warner Art collection, Fenton Law library, Indian Art collection, Robinson exhibit of paintings, and other gifts made to the University since its establishment. The largest single item for apparatus is that of $162,771 for library books, since these are the part of the equipment of the campus which is used most generally by members of all departments.

U. H. S. FIVE TO START PRACTICE ON THURSDAY

Three Members of Championship Team of Last Year Lost Through Graduation Route

Regular basketball practice at the University high school begins Thursday afternoon. The first part of this week is being devoted to hikes and gym work to get the players in shape for practice.

Three members of the team which won the state championship last year have been lost through graduation. Clarence Bradley, all-state center, must be replaced, as will Don McCormick, forward, and Ted Ruch, guard.

The loss of Bradley will be the most keenly felt by the team, since very few in the school are qualified for that position. However, Dick Fields, who played on the second string last year, is expected to show a great improvement this year and may fill this position.

The guard positions will be amply taken care of by Tom Powers, all-state guard, and DeVerl Hempey, who played on the team last year. Bidings, also an all-state man, will play forward, but the position as his partner is still open.

Two other letter men, Lester Hanks and Clemens Hayes, will be out Thurs-

ADDITION TO LIBRARY WILL BE CONSIDERED

Building Committee of Board of Regents to Discuss Means of Relieving Present Congestion

The proposed measure of building a wing to the library to relieve present congestions will be discussed before the building committee of the board of regents at their meeting next week. Even though finances permit a new library to be planned it will be two or three years before it would be complete and in the meantime the crowded conditions must be relieved.

The original suggestion was to build a one-story addition. It is believed, however, that a smaller three-story building would meet present needs better since this way all reserve books could be kept together in the new building. Otherwise, some of the books would have to be kept where they are now in the main building and the rest in the one-story addition. The relieving of the congested conditions of the reserve department is at present the greatest need of the library, according to M. H. Douglass, librarian.

If the addition is built, it will probably be on the north side of the library and it is hoped that it could be completed by the opening of the fall term next year.

ENROLLMENT IS LARGER IN ALL DEPARTMENTS

276 More Men Than Women Registered;
Business Administration Leads Professional Schools

Total enrollment of the University for the fall term is 2,412, according to Carlton Spencer, registrar. Of this number, 1,344 are men and 1,068 women.

Figures have also been compiled by departments. These figures do not include students who are taking work in a department, but who are not registered as majors there. The school of architecture and allied arts, 43 men, 86 women, 129 total; school of business administration, 339 men, 61 women, total 400; school of education, 28 men, 119 women, total 147; school of journalism, 91 men, 105 women, total 196; school of law, 45 men, 3 women, total 48; school of medicine, 186 men, 17 women, total 203; school of music, 10 men, 74 women, total 84; school of physical education, 26 men, 83 women, total 109; school of sociology, 2 men, 31 women, total 33; college of literature, science and arts, 574 men, 489 women, total 1,063.

The increased enrollment in nearly all departments and the substantial increase in the registration in the University is made this year in spite of higher scholastic qualifications exacted from the candidates for admission, according to the registrar.

NEW COURSE OFFERED SENIORS IN LAW SCHOOL

Aim Is to Give Student Public Spirited View of Work; Is Offered to Seniors of Department

This year, for the first time, there is being offered in the University of Oregon law school a course called "The Administration of Justice." It is taught by Dean William G. Hale, and is for seniors in the school.

In explaining the object of introducing the course into the law school curriculum, Dean Hale stressed the importance of it, declaring that though the student generally leaves here pretty well informed on the different phases of legal work, when he gets out into the field as a practicing attorney, he is confronted by problems which do not strictly belong in his work, but which are of considerable importance in the successful performance of it.

"The real aim of the course," explained the dean, "is to give to those who plan to enter the legal profession a public-spirited attitude toward their work."

"Too many men, after they finish their special training and get out into the world, settle down to their own small task, and once settled, devote all their time to it, oblivious to the opportunities for service in their community. We are giving the course in the hope that it will inspire our graduates to go out into their chosen fields, and either help the limited few who are striving to keep the altar fires of public welfare going, or get the young lawyer to start such altar fires for himself."

There are always issues and movements on foot which, in their furtherance, can use good, well-trained workers, according to Dean Hale. Right now in Oregon, for instance, there is a general feeling among barristers that there should be a revision of requirements for entrance to the bar, making them more strict. Apropos of this movement, Judge F. A. Wilson of The Dalles, president of the Oregon State Bar association, together with the secretary of the association, and Dean Hale, is contemplating a trip to eastern Oregon, to make a survey of conditions and sentiment there. Also, explained the Dean, the attorneys of the state can do much toward bringing about law reforms. This subject is being taken up in the class.

"In short," summarized the dean, "we are putting into the course in the administration of justice those things which do not properly belong in any other courses in the school, but which, we feel, are essential to the make-up of the successful lawyer of the type for which we are striving, the lawyer with a deeper educational background."

DRAMATIC CLUB FORMED

University High School Students to Present One-Act Performances

A dramatic club composed of 46 students of the University high school was organized Friday. Tom Powers was elected president. The organization was divided into six sections, each of which will present one-act plays at the assemblies. In February, a three-act play is planned, the cast to be chosen from the entire group. Each section will have a student director and stage manager, who will be responsible for many of the rehearsals.

Other officers of the group are: Vice president, Vera Folts; secretary, Lova Buchanan; treasurer, Helen Hanna; general stage manager, Fred Burton; general property manager, Lester McDonald.

PADDY-THE-NEXT-BEST-THING NEW ATTRACTION AT CASTLE

More than a quarter of a million dollars were spent on the production of "Paddy-the-Next-Best-Thing," Mae Marsh's latest photoplay made in London and Ireland, in which she makes her formal return to the screen after an absence of two years, and which has been booked as the feature attraction today and Wednesday at the Castle theater under an Allied Producers and Distributors Corporation release.
