

HOMECOMING BRINGS GRAD FROM INDIANA

Charles E. Henderson Comes Long Distance to Join Class Reunion of '93

Chas. E. Henderson, '93, lawyer of Indianapolis, arrived here yesterday for Homecoming and the reunion of his class, at which six of the eleven members will be present. Henderson has come farther than any "grad" and has come ostensibly for this event. He expects to return Monday or Tuesday. Miss Amelia Henderson, his daughter, accompanies him and will visit in California on her way east.

The Hendersons are guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Johnson, whose home is headquarters for the members of '93. Mrs. Johnson is permanent secretary of the class.

The class will have no formal meeting, but have planned several things that they will do together. At the campus luncheon a section of the balcony will be set aside for them. Saturday night before the big dance, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson are entertaining the class at dinner at the Osburn. Sunday will probably be devoted to calling on friends of this class, which led on the campus thirty years ago.

This is Henderson's third visit to the campus since his graduation. He last visited in 1909.

Miss Henderson graduated from Wellesley in 1920, where she obtained her master's degree.

priceless blue and white china. The collection of Chinese lacquer, undoubtedly one of the finest of its kind in any American museum, draws the visitor. Three cases of embroideries and tapestries are colorful displays. A close examination reveals the painstaking and beautiful workmanship.

Exhibits Numerous

Examine the cabinet on the south wall. Exclaim at the glory of the turquoise blue vase. Do not overlook the mirror-black vases; it would be impossible to pass by the five-color china. This cabinet will prove to be one of the most popular exhibits in the museum.

The other exhibit rooms contain further surprises, and finally, an overwhelming one. After passing between rows of beautiful Manchu costumes, the visitor arrives at the Chinese pavilion. Here are five lifelike figures, garbed imperially as befits a Manchu—the empress, the emperor, the prince, the princess, and the general in charge of the palace. Adjacent to the pavilion sits a Ming emperor, a grave and solemn figure, clad in the robes of his office.

In the room above are the priceless Chinese paintings which are from the collection of Gen. Normann Munthe, of Peking, one of the greatest Oriental collectors in the world. Gen. Munthe has been collecting for 30 years. He gave Mrs. Warner the unrestricted choice of 19 of his paintings. In return he asked only that she make a gift to the mother Christian Science church in America. Gen. Munthe is a Christian Scientist, and declared he would give the paintings to America because Christian Science teachings came first from this country.

Old Bronze Purchased

From Mrs. Richardson, of Hong-kong, Mrs. Warner was able to purchase many priceless relics, including the general's uniform, a very old bronze, a piece of Chinese crackle war, and other objects.

Dr. John C. Ferguson, an expert on Chinese antiques; Mrs. Ferguson, Miss Jane Fair, of Peking, and Mrs. Sawyer, the wife of the American vice-consul at Shanghai, all helped Mrs. Warner in her search for Oriental art works last spring. Because of the assistance of Mrs. Eric Clarke, Mrs. Warner was able to obtain the Manchu headdresses and other additions to the collection.

Prof. Fergus Reddie superintended the lighting effects for the Chinese pavilion in the museum, and arranged the figures in the pavilion. Paul Walters modeled the figures. Dean Lawrence, of the school of architecture designed the pavilion.

DEAN STRAUB COMING BACK TO REST AT HOME

he underwent at the Portland Surgical hospital, he would be in better condition physically than he had been for ten years.

Dean Straub left Eugene for Portland on October 4. After an extensive physical examination, he was obliged to submit to a serious operation for an ailment that was slowly poisoning his system and threatened his life. The dean was assured that the operation would not cause him serious pain for more than a week after its performance, but the face of the matter is that he suffered intense physical pain until a few days ago. This Dean Straub bore bravely, but in the process of endurance his nerves were shattered.

It was suggested that an "Oskie" be given for the dean when the noise parade marches by his home this evening, but those in touch with his physical condition stated that it would be better for him if no demonstration was staged.

"Do not expect to see the dean on the campus or at the game. His condition, though rapidly improving, will not yet permit him to participate in the excitement that prevails at an Oregon-O. A. C. football game," say those who are acquainted with his physical condition.

Extreme precaution in the matter of handling Roman candles is asked by the committee. Any accidents in this line would mean that such fireworks be abolished another year.

Rally to Be Peppy

The rally at the armory will start at 8. Pat McArthur, '01, is to be toastmaster. There will be speeches, by ex-yell-leaders, former football stars, coaches, prominent alumni and one by Colonel Leader. The team will also be on the stage at the rally. CLUB OF OREGON NORMAL SCHOOL STUDENTS MEETS

School club, which is composed of graduates of that institution. J. B. V. Butler, vice-president of the normal school, was the chief speaker. Others were Mary Donaldson, president of the club; Murial Paul, president of the normal school alumni; and Grace Edgington, alumni secretary of the University. New members of the club were welcomed, and Oregon normal school songs were sung.
