The Tide of Victory

Oregon's debate coach and his team deserve a great deal of credit for the splendid victory they won over O. A. C. and Reed college. Their success checked a slight tendency on the part of some persons to feel that this is a losing year and we had just as well give up hope.

The general sentiment following the announcement that the state championship had been won was one of real elation. "I wish I had gone and heard the debate," was the general comment the morning following the contest.

There is now no doubt that Oregon has a good coach and a good team. Support of forensic activities should be strengthened and larger crowds should attend debates. The sight of familiar faces in the audience is a great help to a speaker. In addition to giving his team needed support there is always much valuable knowledge to be gained by the audience in listening to the arguments. Varsity debate speeches are the result of months of preparation, and the material presented is usually well worth while.

The debate team has taken the lead in what we hope will be a generally victorious year for Oregon. More power to them!

Dean Allen's Return

Dean Eric Allen, father of Oregon's school of journalism, comes back from Europe to a desk stacked high with business and to a large group of students, new and old, eager to welcome him home. There's a lot to do, but also there's much to tell, and the students are loaded with questions to ask of their old friend and counselor.

The Emerald confesses a proneness to refer to the unique spirit of comradeship and cooperation which is typical of the denizens of the journalism shack. Much of this may be traced directly to the personality of the Dean.

Earnest and enthusiastic in his work, Dean Allen returns with his already broad vision widened by personal touch with men and things of the Old World, and his students are happy in the prospect of attractive intellectual vistas he will open for them. He brings back ideas.

The joy of students and friends in the return of the Dean is sincere and deep.

In keeping with the general movement to send delegates to the Student Volunteer Convention at Indianapolis the student body has selected a capable representative to join the Eugene delegation. When the tag day is held to make that delegate's trip possible, let's get behind the enterprise. A great deal of good can come to the campus through the ideas which will be brought back from the mighty gathering of 6000 or more university and college students. New ideas from other places are a great antidote for campus provincialism.

Two representative Oregon men are being examined today by the Rhodes Scholarship board in Portland. Should one of them win it would be a great tribute to the University as an intellectual center. Whether they win or lose, the student body is confident that the showing they make will be worthy of Oregon men.

ONE YEAR AGO TODAY

Some High Points in Oregon Emerald of December 8, 1923

Basketball practice has started at the University. Six of last year's lettermen turned out for the first practice.

An Amendment to the constitution of the A. S. U. O. constitution has been proposed, whereby the yell leader would become a member of the student council.

The "knockout number" of Lemon Punch will appear on the campus tomorrow.

The University of West Virginia has asked for a football game with the University of Oregon, to be played in San Diego on Christmas day.

Student indifference to the importance of the varsity yell staff necessitates a complete reorganization of the staff, according to a story appearing in this morning's Emerald.

Ye Tabbard Inn of Sigma Upsilon, announces the election of Professor Wilkie Nelson Collins into associate membership.

An editorial in this morning's Emerald deplores the top heavy program in doughnut sports.

Professor E. L. Packard, of the geology department is the author of an article entitled, "New Species From the Cretaceous of the Santa Ana Mountains of California," appearing in the bulletin of the geological sciences.

Evangeline Foster has been elected treasurer of the Temenids.

Over organization of student activities, is in a large measure due to faculty influence, is the sentiment expressed by faculty members.

A lost and found department has been established at the Co-Op.

At the Theatres

CASTLE

"Beautiful ladies whom nobody loved." The reason?
 The ladies of the court of King Philip, IV., of Spain, appearing in the Paramount picture, "The Spanish Dancer," starring Pola Negri and coming to the Castle theatre next Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, lived in an age of framework and steel girders. Enormous hoops and panniers made it very difficult for love-lorn courtiers to even touch their lady's hand.
 In support of Miss Negri in this production is Antonio Moreno, while the principals in the supporting cast include Wallace Beery, Kathlyn Williams, Gareth Hughes.

REX

With the flash of the first scene of "The Printer's Devil," which started yesterday at the Rex theatre, one can see that here is something really refreshing—something different from the ordinary run of pictures.

It is one of those time-honored stories that we all love to see—one that reminds us of youth and care-free days and brings back happy memories.
 Wesley Barry and Harry Myers carry the star roles. A Felix cartoon comic, a new H. C. Witwer, "Fighting Blood" story, and Rosner's music are also on the Rex program.

GLEE CONCERT DELAYED

Exam Rush Causes Postponement of Annual Club Appearance

Due to the great rush always apparent at the end of the term, the Men's Glee club which was to appear on the campus during the latter part of this month, will not present their concert until January 8.

concert," said John Stark Evans, the director, yesterday.
 He also said that the program is real "snappy," and he is hoping it can be given at the Heilig theater.

TO LIMIT HOLIDAYS
 As a result of the "illegal holiday" taken by the students of West Virginia university to celebrate the tie score between the Mountaineers and Penn State, the students will be allowed no holidays in the future to celebrate athletic victories.
