

COMING PLAY OF UNUSUAL NATURE

Mrs. John Leader to Take Role in Production

SETTINGS ARE EFFECTIVE

"Peter Ibbetson" is Drama of Subtle Tragedy

Mrs. John Leader, who played Alice in "Alice-Sit-By-The-Fire," and also took a part in "The Scarlet Pimpernel," last year, will play one of the leads in the forthcoming Guild hall production, the role of the Duchess of Towers in Du Maurier's "Peter Ibbetson."

Fergus Reddie, who is directing the play, will interpret the difficult title role, and a very large cast of both junior and senior company members will support the leads.

Lighting Good

An immense amount of work is being done on the costuming, the scenery and the lighting effects which will play a great part in the atmospheric effect of the play which deals not in melodrama, but in the subtle tragedy that is the result of the clash between a super-sensitized dreamer and the coarser grained man of the world.

"Peter Ibbetson" has not a so-called happy ending. It is a true characterization of an unusual type. The hero, as a small child with little Mimsy, the devoted companion of his childhood, furnishes a study for child psychologists. The two play constantly with their dream companions—the Prince Charming and the Fairy Tarapatapou.

Seats Usual Price

Juanita Jackson will give several dances during the play, with Dave Swanson. Miss Jackson, who gave a recital recently, is trained in the Denishawn school.

The play will be produced three nights, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and seats will be fifty and seventy-five cents, as usual.

and "Wiegenlied," with an absorbing appreciation for the dramatic content with much flexibility of voice and a pleasant and always substantial tonal quality.

In a style peculiarly her own, she gave a group of German songs and won from her hearers generous applause. A group of songs by French composers, especially "Notre Amour," by Gabriel Faure, and "Le Beau Reve," by A. Flegier, contained examples of coloratura embellishment, which Miss Case gave with assurance and much ease. Mozart's "Alleluja" showed the wide range of tones at her disposal as well as skill in using them.

The singer showed expressive capacity and admirable tonal expression in "Dawn," by Pearl Curran, which greatly delighted the audience.

She was very generous with her encores, two of her numbers including "Robin, Robin, Sing Me a Song" and "Will O' the Wisp," compositions by her accompanist, Charles Gilbert Spross.

At no time during the concert was there an unsteadiness in her voice which might have imperiled the intonation. She is delightful to hear because she brings artistic intelligence to all her work, and she sings with the strong sense of the individual style.

determine which of the two remains in the first division.

The Phi Kappa Psi five is winner of the Delta Tau Delta game by default and this assures that organization of having a tied percentage with the winner of the Sigma Chi-Phi Delta Theta contest. If Friendly hall should beat the Betas it would be on an equal as far as scores are concerned with the Phi Kappa Psi team.

Club Starts Strong

The Oregon club started the season with a strong, fast playing team, but was hard hit by injuries, which carried it down into seventh place and the chances are that it will remain there unless the Fiji game is turned into victory.

Delta Tau Delta has had hard luck in the season's contests. Several of the players were lost to the team due to illness, which in turn forced the organization to forfeit some of their contests. They now hold the undisputed possession.

The Phi Deltas annexed another victory in league "A" yesterday afternoon by defeating the Oregon club in a very fast and well played contest, 19 to 14. Both teams played well and worked the ball down fast by clever passes and brilliant dribbling, converting the baskets by accurate shooting. The two teams were fairly evenly matched and put up a pretty battle.

Tuck is High Man

The Phi Deltas put on an extra burst of speed, however, toward the close of the game and chalked up enough counters to win. Tuck made 10 of the winner's points, while Gerke made 6. Morelock and Westernman played the best ball for the losers.

The final games, which wind up the series Monday are:

Sigma Chi vs. Phi Delta Theta, at 4 p.m.

Beta Theta Pi vs. Friendly Hall, at 7 p.m.

Phi Gamma Delta vs. Oregon Club, at 8 p.m.

Campus Speakers to Try Out for Varsity

Washington March 6; the University of Southern California, March 4, and the University of California, March 13, making an especially heavy program spring term, and necessitating early preparation, for the coach and his assistants will be rushed with the large number of contests in March, and consequently work should begin in earnest the very first of next term. That is why Mr. Rosson is particularly desirous that the tryouts be cleared out of the way this term, allowing uninterrupted work in January.

Col. Leader Leaves Co-eds Regretfully

ethics versus idealism. Again I will stagger at his riposte. Once more in spirit will I take my Sunday hike with Goodwyn Thacher and we will argue an afternoon away in world problems, like two kids hitting at each other across a wide table, because our views never come near enough to even clash.

Again will I be foiled in a Mephistophelian effort to blacken the fair fame of Margerites like Timmy Cloran or Larry Schreff, and above all the personal pictures will come a vision of the stern and unbending Colin Dymont, coming to a supper party of mine at the Rainbow after the movies, the other guests being some unutterably charming and attractive co-eds with their escorts, but Colin was the leader of the revels and the soul of the feast.

Every time I come back, our girls make me feel more keenly the broadening silver fringe at my temples. Even up here, across the bootlegger's line, I can see them like rose tinted will o' the wisps dancing just out of my reach, getting farther and farther out of it! And what a hideous mistake they make.

After the American girl has passed the stage of longing for a young Lord Lochinvar with plumed hat and jingling sabre, to swoop down on her and carry her off in front of him on his coal black charger—her ideal mate in a sort of human door mat with "welcome" written on it.

Now, no girl of any spirit, least of all, an American girl, really wants a human football for a mate. It would make her sluggish and fat and lose all her pep, and I would be the ideal mate for the co-ed of my dreams. I would carry the fight to her from the stroke of the gong—I mean from the end of the marriage service, and I would slug toe to toe with her until death did us part.

I can see her and me sitting lovingly on either side of our hearth, thinking of mean things to say to one another, and as years rolled on, and silver threads began to show in her crowning glory, long practice would enable her to swing an even meaner rolling pin, and to the end of our lives we would carry the old Oregon Fight to one another.

But, heigh-ho, the dream has lasted too long, and the northern mists are chilly things to dream in, and the "Stand Before the Dawn" isn't the only bitter hour in one's life, and my sword arm hasn't the same lithe swing it once had, so I will crush down all thought of people on the campus for a few months and—Good Luck, Goodbye.
