The "Preppers" Are Coming

Opportunity for student cooperation and support will be afforded with the conference of high school editors, managers, presidents, and secretaries to be held next week. The annual meetings of the High School Press association and the Association of High School Student Body Officers bring a desirable class of high school students to the campus. It is the task of those handling the conference to make attractive for the visitors not only the official sessions in which they are participants but also the impression given by the student body at large.

Presumably these young people are the intelligenzia of the state preparatory schools. Upon entering institutions of higher learning they should be equipped to carry on the work which is now in progress. These students should be material for executive and managing offices which our political body requires. Regarding them in this light, they are to be given the most meticulous attention, and their visit to our campus and their association with Oregon students should be as pleasant as we are capable of making them.

The delegates from the high schools will number about 200. They will be in conference all day Friday, January 11, and most of the day on Saturday. Ample time will be given them to meet and associate with college students. It is not necessary that the University assume a festive aspect for their benefit, but it is necessary that the seriousness of their purpose be recognized and a genuine interest in them be taken while they are here.

Though the conferences are designed especially for high school students, University men and women are not precluded from sitting in on the meetings. Consideration of the outstanding student problems in the high schools will take place at the convention. There should be those among us who have not lost all trace of our high school friends and interests, and who want to know how high school problems today compare with those which worried us when we were "preppers."

A committee has been working since early in the fall term to perfect the arrangements for the entertainment and accommodation of the delegates. When the student body is called upon to unselfishly endorse and make for the success of their two-day visit, the call should meet with a zealous response.

Sweaters for the football men who earned them have arrived. They are to be presented to the lettermen at "College Night," next Friday. This is to be a ceremony in connection with the entertainment of the high school guests who will be here then.

The student body should be interested in witnessing the award of the "colors" to those who battled for Oregon in the past season. Some of the men will receive their last stripes from their Alma Mater. A good cheering crowd on hand to let those men know that their services are appreciated will send them away with the feeling that their efforts have not been in vain, and that "somebody cares."

There is no better tie than the personal touch. A private letter from you, addressed to some high school student whom you know, will be on hand during the conference next week, will serve to stimulate in him an added interest in coming.

FEES DUE IN TWO WEEKS

Students Who Pay Dues Late Will be Dropped From University.

Students are given a few weeks more to recover from the financial strain of Christmas before having to pay registration and laboratory fees. These fees will have to be paid during the week from January 21 to 26. The penalty for not paying in one's money for registration and laboratory fees on time is to be dropped from the University. If such happens, it is necessary to petition to be reinstated.

So far, the business office has been busy handling the money that comes in from those changing courses. Late registration fees, which began yesterday, are also payable at the cashier's window.

Richard Barthelme is seen as the star of "Twenty-One" at the Rex theater today. "Twenty-One" is a modern story, having been adapted to the screen from the novel "Wild Apples," written by Grace McGowan Cook and Alice McGowan. In "Twenty-One," Barthelme is said to have a role that is particularly well suited to his talents.

ART STUDENTS UTILIZE NEW POWER BUILDING

Home Found for Drafting Rooms and Library; Designing Classes Change Quarters

The space provided by the structure which has been built over the power plant is being used by the school of architecture for an art library and drafting rooms. Since this structure has been completed and the power plant moved to its new home across University street, the allied art court is nearly finished. The library not only contains books, but is used as a reading room as well. It was established particularly for the use of students majoring in art and contains, beside art books, periodicals and plates of various sorts.

A part of the old drafting room has been partitioned off to make room for the library and an office for Prof. W. R. S. Wilcox, that which remains is used by the freshman class in design. The other design classes have their desks on a slightly raised platform in the new structure, while the mechanical drawing drafting room is at the west end of the sociology building. The "benches" were especially designed for the school of architecture.

SIGMA XI MEETS JAN. 15

All Members of Society in State Are Invited to Attend

The local chapter of Sigma Xi will hold its regular monthly meeting Tuesday, January 15, on the campus, according to an announcement by its secretary, Harry B. Yocom, professor of zoology. Dr. W. P. Boynton will give a paper on "Equations of State and Entropy." The regular business will come up at the meeting.

Dr. Yocom says that all members in the state of Oregon are invited to attend the meeting. A circular will be sent out to them where the organization has knowledge of their presence in the state. The University chapter is the only chapter in the state of Oregon. The December meeting of the chapter was held in Portland at the medical school and the April meeting will be held there also. Two meetings are held in Portland each year for the benefit of the members there.

FILTER PLANT INSTALLED IN MEN'S SWIMMING TANK

A new filter plant has just been installed in the men's gymnasium. The plant has been purchased for some little time but has been put in working order during the vacation. The water heretofore has been purified in the tank and had to be changed all at once, but with the new system the water will circulate and be purified as it circulates. This is the same as the system used in purifying the water in the tank in the women's gym.

CONVENTION DELEGATES WILL RETURN TONIGHT

The University of Oregon's delegates to the student volunteer convention meeting in Indianapolis during the Christmas holidays will be back on the campus tonight ready for Monday classes. The thirteen students who represented the University at this conference are: Helen Andrews, Mary Bartholomew, Mary Donaldson, Arthur Everett, Ethelyn Forrest, Arthur Gray, Orlando Hollis, Edith Howe, Edwin Kirtley, Paul Krause, Yester Turnbaugh, Charlotte Winnard and James Stewart. They will probably give a report of the convention to the various Eugene churches Sunday afternoon.

ASTRONOMY LABORATORY SOON TO BE IN OLD PLANT

Professor E. H. McAllister of the astronomy department will take over the old steam plant and convert it into a laboratory for his department as soon as the old boilers and equipment can be dismantled. This dismantling will begin in two or three weeks. Only about half of the new laboratory will be occupied by Prof. McAllister's classes. Victoria Avakian of the normal arts department will occupy the remainder with classes in clay model work.

DEAN ESTERLY TO SPEAK IN THE DALLES THIS WEEK

ATTRACTIVE COURSES RAISE GRADES HERE

The grades at the kollege this term were far higher than had been anticipated by the faculty; many of the students managed to drag down reasonably good grades by doing some last minute make-up work, and several succeeded in saving themselves disgrace by staying over during the Christmas vacation and making up their cuts in pool and billiard laboratory work.

The dean yesterday expressed himself as being very well pleased with the way the boys had responded to the raised standards of this last term. "I am surprised and delighted with the manner in which our students have come through in their work during the last three months. This result verifies my opinion that college should be made attractive and not repulsive to students. In fact it is that opinion that has led me to install all of the modern conveniences in my college equipment. Music and meals are a great attraction to thought, and I have both of these in my class rooms."

One of the policies of the Obak Kollege is to not attempt to flunk out as many as possible, but instead they encourage their students to better work and more enjoyment in doing it. The Kollege is expecting an increased enrollment this term, most especially of football men; this last term many of the football men were forced to carry only part time work in the kollege because of their outside activities, now though they are having a great deal more time and many have already shown their intention to carry out their class work down here.

GUESS WHO

This well known campus character, snapped in an unconscious moment by the Krier's photographer, has just returned to the city after a rather extended Christmas vacation. The remarkable facial expression so prominent here is due to the pleasing results of the Obak lunch counter; for this man had already seen the current issue of the scandal sheet when he posed for this surprising picture.

The hangman's noose affair around his neck is one of those things that often results from Yuletide affection; the young lady contributed this offering, according to his own statement, admitted in a moment of repentance that she had not done it on purpose, but had really thought that ties of yellow, lavender, scarlet and pale indigo combination should be becoming to a man with straw colored hair and red nose—she knows better now.

The moral of this story is that if you too have been the innocent victim of careless gift selections, or if you have suffered the rather embarrassing experience of having quite a collection of F's published after your name in the "News Bulletin" you will find a smile of contentment at the snow white Obak lunch counter.
