

WORK ON UNIVERSITY CATALOGUE STARTED

Material on Departments Due This Week

Work on the 1924-1925 University of Oregon catalogue is progressing, and it is hoped that all the material for the book will be in shape so that it can go to press by spring vacation, according to Mrs. George Fitch, secretary of the University offices.

The material for the first part of the catalogue is ready since it is mostly revised from former issues. This material usually includes a plan of the campus, the University calendar, the teaching faculty at Eugene, University regulations, the board of regents, the colleges and the schools of the University, and something of the history and the location.

The department and the schools have not yet sent in the write-ups but they are not due until the middle of the week. This material includes a description of the department, the requirements of each, the course of study, and the faculty conducting the courses.

The catalogue also contains information regarding scholarships, loan funds, prizes, University regulations concerning entrance requirements, registration, and graduation requirements. There is also material on student activities, publications, descriptions of the campus buildings and grounds, and the University museums.

There are from 5000 to 6500 copies of this catalogue printed each year in order to supply every one who wants one. Because of the large number, there is necessitated a long run on the press. It is for this reason that the printing is held until spring vacation so that the press will not be used for printing the Emerald.

This catalogue is characterized as the University's "Who's Who." It contains all the information that any one would need or want to know about the University, Mrs. Fitch says. So often students call to find out information which they could easily find in this publication.

clubs were restricted to upperclass members.

"The affect of this restriction was what amounted to the 'rushing' of men down in the big prep schools, and the informal association of these 'rushes' during their underclass years, until they were elected en masse at the beginning of their junior year. The system was vicious. A man coming in from the outside had no chance at all.

Mr. Wilson failed to break up these clubs during his administration. He established the university "commons" where anybody and everybody might eat under really superior conditions.

His preachments have not apparently failed of their effect, however, for in recent years a number of the most important and leading students have refused bids to these clubs."

Very naturally, Woodrow Wilson had a distinct message to college students. Speaking at a celebration of Founder's Day at Swarthmore College, a day dedicated to the memory of William Penn's founding of the state, he said in part:

"Men have not had to come to college, let me remind you, to quaff the fountain of this inspiration. You are merely more privileged than they. Men out of every walk of life, men without advantages of any kind, have seen the vision; and you, with it written large upon every page of your studies are the more blind if you do not see it when it is pointed out. You could not be forgiven for overlooking it."

Again he said: "We die but once, and we die without distinction if we are not willing to die the death of sacrifice. Do you covet honor? You will never get it by serving yourself. Do you covet distinction? You will get it only as the servant of mankind. Do not forget, then, as you walk these classic places, why you are here. You are not here, merely to prepare to make a living. You are here to enable the world to live more amply, with greater vision, with a finer spirit of hope and achievement. You are here to enrich the world, and you impoverish yourself if you forget the errand."

Can the most ardent "practical" man restrain admiration for this avowed and heroic idealist?

And finally in the tumultuous years of 1914-15-16, who would have thought

"SCHOOL FOR SCANDEL" NEXT GUILD HALL PLAY

Eighteenth Century Life Satirized in Comedy

Sheridan's "School for Scandal," the next Guild hall play, will be given February 22, 23, and 24. This is one of the best known classical comedies, and it has always been renowned for its delightful irony.

A satire of eighteenth century life, it is invested with a quaint spirit of formality which seems odd to us now; but it is close enough to human nature to retain its original appeal.

The play is not a starrng vehicle, but several characters serve to keep up the interest. There is Sir Peter Teazle, th testy old gentleman, recently married to a pert young country maid, who does not seem to understand him. In an effort to keep up in the "fashion," Lady Teazle spends great sums of Sir Peter's maturity" after passing through the martyrdom of post-war reaction and prejudice.

Dr. Edmund S. Conklin who was to address the University students and faculty next Thursday on "The Making of Personality" will give his lecture at a later date.

On Your Birthday

Remember your mother. A flower token to your Mother on your birthday brings you right to her. It's the nicest compliment you can pay "the best pal you ever had," and is next best to flowers delivered by you in person. If Mother is far away we can deliver "Flowers by Wire" just as satisfactorily as around the corner.

money, engendering some strife. Their quarrels form not a small part of the wittiest parts of the dialogue.

Two young brothers, Charles and Joseph Surface, nephews of the wise old Sir Oliver, play extremely important parts. Charles is, according to reports, the profligate and spendthrift one, and his reputation is daily lowered by new tales. Joseph, on the other hand, is supposed to be the model industrious, sober, and moderate young man, with not a single enemy. The real "School for Scandal" is the society in which Lady Teazle, Lady Sneerwell, Mrs. Candour, Sir Benjamin Backbite, Crabtree, and others move. Intrigue develops eventually, involving almost everybody.

In the matter of production, Mr. Reddie, who is directing the play, plans to have simplicity paramount, giving as much as possible the eighteenth century atmosphere in stage settings and technique. The inter-
