

DEAN H. WALKER CALLS MEETING

House Representatives To Have Conference

DEFINITE PLANS MADE

Student Living Committee Has Many Problems

With no provisions for joint meetings of Pan-Hellenic and Interfraternity Councils, many student problems have been coming to the Student Living Committee, and there appears to be a general desire for a conference of representatives of living organizations, declared Dean H. Walker, chairman of the Student Living Committee, late yesterday. Consequently arrangements have been made for such a meeting to be held Tuesday evening, February 12, in Commerce building.

In order that the meeting should be of the greatest benefit with the least waste of time, a definite program has been made up, and a special committee appointed to study and report on each question. This will be followed by general discussion if time permits, and action may be taken toward settling some of the problems.

Subjects are Given

The program and committees are as follows:

"Living Committee Regulations, and a brief discussion of Insurance, Accounting, Fire Prevention, Sanitation, and Standards" by members of the Student Living Committee.

"A Uniform Scale of Wages and Duties for Employees," Mary Clerin Ernest Hendrickson, Douglas Farrell.

"Full Term Agreements Between Householders and Students," John Piper, Virginia Pearson, Henry Karpenstein, Dean Virginia Esterly.

Meeting at 7:15 P. M.

"A Uniform Method of Securing Scholarship Information During the term," Claude Robinson, Dean Esterly, Mr. Walker, Nancy Wilson, and Carlton Spencer.

Junior Week-end, Ed Tapfer, Mary Hathaway, Maude Schroeder, Frank Carter, and Arthur Rudd.

Two or three persons in each organization will attend, but it is left entirely to each organization to indicate its representatives.

The meeting will be held at 7:15 p. m. in room 105, Commerce building.

PORTRAYER OF JOB IN DRAMA IS FINE ARTIST

of mood of a drama of Aeschylus.

George Somnes, as Job, is an artist of depth and passion. On that lonely desert, he is Job, the tragic figure in the land of Uz, who "feared God and turned away from evil." His portrayal is realistic in a high sense, powerful, and finely worked out. The Stuart Walker players in this piece are attempting something entirely new; something which seems to give us at least an approach to the power that must have been in the Greeks' portrayals of their own dramas, which for the most part we can only read to-day; but this is mood.

"Once upon a time"—the blue curtain part at the afternoon performance—the merry story teller steps aside, and we are in the Never, Never Land of brilliant colours, sunshine and silver tears, singing beggars, blind sages, and kings and queens with gold crowns. We must look through the wide blue eyes of David Little-Boy, as the Queen called him, to understand the quaint imagery of the production, but we must be grown up to appreciate the subtle, though naive wit that runs through the three little plays, "Six Who Pass While the Lentils Boil," "Sir David Wears a Crown," and "The King's Great Aunt Sits on the Floor." It is a performance for both kindergarten ten tots and savants,—savants of course who still like sea shells and wild strawberries. Pageantry and a gorgeous spirit of play predominate. Stuart Walker combines a fine idealism with a gentle travesty on modern customs and manners. The cast without a single exception, displays enthusiasm and finesse in their portrayals, and the exquisite illusion is maintained throughout.
